Coffee, tea, or milk?

These Street Department trucks are an everyday sight to Standish Street residents of Newton Highlands. They're parked here while their drivers and helpers take the first coffee break of the day at 7:45 a.m. Their work shift begins, according to the Director of Public Works, 15 minutes earlier, at 7:30 a.m.

Aldermen start reviewing budget

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

The $63 million budget has gone through two full days of review under the watchful eyes of the aldermanic Finance Committee.

Two more reviews are scheduled.

Last Friday night and all day and well into the evening Saturday were given over to the annual exercise of cutting the budget.

But as fast as money is cut one place, it is added another.

Mayor Theodore Mann, who said last week that he had cut more than $10 million from departmental requests and followed that up with another $2.6 million from the prepared budget, topped it all off with a memorandum of what still must be added to the budget.

Wage increases that will result from new labor contracts now under negotiation, bonding of $3 million in teachers' salaries, and the added cost of solid-waste disposal incurred by closing the incinerator at the end of this year have yet to be budgeted.

Finance Committee hearings with department heads last weekend were open to the public and the press, but deliberations on what cuts to make were not, and Chairman Sidney Small declined even to release information on cuts at the conclusion of the executive (closed) sessions.

In the mayor's budget cuts, the Police Department requested budget was cut by $400,000, to just over $4 million, and the Finance Committee has cut more.

The Street Department budget, especially the sections dealing with new equipment and construction, was cut by $1.5 million by the mayor.

The Public Works Committee of the Board of Aldermen, still going over Street Department budgets before they go before the Finance Committee, has reportedly found at least $175,000 more that can be deleted.

The Finance Committee hearings grind on hour after hour, with the weightiness of the subject occasionally relieved by Small's wit or by joking exchanges between aldermen and the department head on the "hot seat," as Small terms the chair for department heads.

But most of the business is serious and so treated. The discussion about whether to contribute to the Newton Guidance Clinic is one example. More members of the committee than not, it appeared, feel that their confidence in the clinic and its directing board, the Mental Health Association, has been shaken and are considering terminating the city's funding.

The mayor wished to give the clinic a six-month trial with $50,000.

A more definite fate has befallen Project Turnabout, a drug-counseling service. The city has withdrawn all its support ($32,000) from the group, which at one time was considered an important tool in controlling drug abuse in Newton.

Times have changed, and drugs are no longer thought to be the problem in terms of numbers of young people involved that it was a few years ago.

Saturday, March 9, the Finance Committee will tackle the long, detailed budgets of the Street Department and the Public Buildings Department.

The full Board of Aldermen will begin its deliberations in open meetings on Saturday, April 6.

The deadline for passage of the budget by the Board is April 15.

Delay school upgrading

Edward L. Richmond, chairman of the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee, sent a letter to Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink last week which indicated that his committee will not be able to act on a proposal for additions and alterations to the Lincoln-Eliot School until at least April 1.

Members of the School Committee have expressed displeasure with this possibility. Sub-bids have already been submitted for the project and the deadline for accepting them, according to Building Commissioner Gene Larson, is April 10.

If the bids are not approved by the Board of Aldermen by April 10, new bids will have to be submitted.

"Everytime we have stopped to reexamine a project we have not saved money," commented School Committeeman Alvin Mandell. "We have lost space and the cost has been the same or more.

Richmond's letter requested information about the Lincoln Eliot project. It also noted that the Aldermen are presently busy with budget hearings.

The School Committee voted unanimously this week to send a letter to Richmond to remind him of the consequences of delaying action on Lincoln-Eliot. It was suggested that an expedient would be for the Building Committee to meet with the Finance Committee since both committees have to approve the project before it goes to the whole Board of Aldermen.

When told about the School Committee's decision, Richmond said Tuesday "we're not going to be pressured."

"They're trying to push us at the most busy time of the Aldermanic work cycle," Richmond commented.

"What has happened this time is a departure from previous practice," Richmond explained. "In the past, when bond appropriations were necessary, estimates would be made by the public buildings commissioner.

"The Board would debate, discuss and either approve or shoot down an appropriation. If approved, the project would be put out for bids."

Richmond said that in the past, if the bids were higher than the appropriation, a project would have to be junked or the Aldermen would be asked for more money.

He said that in order to avoid that possibility, Lincoln-Eliot was first put out for bids. "The principal purpose was so we would know the size of the bond appropriation to request."

Richmond said that speaking for himself, he does not "feel any particular urgency because of the 30 day deadline (the time period in which bids must be approved)."

"We are going to have to debate the issue," Richmond said. He added that he understood that prices might be higher if new bids had to be asked for.

Richmond noted that the first request for Lincoln Eliot from the School Committee to Mayor Monte G. Basbas on Sept. 27, 1971 did not include a gymnasium.

"We want to go into the statistics on which the initial request was made," Richmond commented. "We want to explore the same options which were considered in January, 1971."

Richmond said that he had some questions "about the legality of changing ed specs after the Board of Aldermen appropriated money for an architect."

The design for Lincoln-Eliot passed by the Design Review Committee reportedly included 2,200 more square feet than called for in the educational specifications.

Members of the School Committee and the Public Buildings Committee went on a joint tour of Lincoln-Eliot on Jan. 31. Richmond reported his findings to his committee.

"Upon inspecting the Lincoln-Eliot School, the group saw no overcrowded classrooms," Richmond noted. "No class had more than 21 children, and some had as few as 15, although some students were absent on the day of the tour.

"The structure is well maintained, one wing is of new construction, and the gymnasium, which compares in size to many other elementary schools, was constructed in 1965."

Richmond added that "the library is small and located in a basement. Rest rooms adjacent to the library are inadequate.

Life Care vote deferred

A sudden surge of interest during the past week in the zoning change and permissive use petitions involved in the proposed "Life Care Center" for the elderly resulted in no action on the project by the Board of Aldermen this week.

Despite a favorable report by the Land Use Committee, the Board voted 13-8 to hold further discussion of the densities allowed in the proposed zoning change affecting the Stanton Avenue parcel where the 179-unit Life Care Center would be built.

A new definition of permitted use for residential-care facilities, allowing construction in both Residence D and E districts, had been approved earlier by the Land Use Committee.

Without action by the Board to confirm the Land Use Committee's approval of the zoning amendment, which recognizes a combination residential and nursing-home facility, the two other petitions—one to rezone the land to Residence E and the other for permissive use to construct the building—could not be acted on and were held in the Land Use Committee.

The principle objection to permitting residential-care facilities in Residence E and F districts is the increased density from 1200 to 850 square feet of land per apartment unit.

Former Land Use Committee Chairman Alan Barkin opposed recommitting the petition.

"This matter has been before the committee for a year or longer. Until this weekend there has been no interest in it, even though we are creating a major change in a zoning ordinance," Barkin commented.

Now it's a good thing there's interest, but I'd hate to see it go back and simply become another Land Use item. I hope other members (of the Board) take an active interest in this zone change and permissive use," Barkin continued.

"But we ought to be careful about the way we drag out petitions," Barkin advised. "I hope that what the elderly are getting in the way of services is not why it's back. We are a land use, not a social-welfare committee yet."

Many of the aldermen have expressed reservations about the financial aspects of the Life Care Center and what safeguards can be offered to elderly people who will reside there.

The lowest cost for lifetime residency would be $3,900 for food and maintenance for one person in a one-room apartment, the one-time cost of which would be $10,000.

Land Use Committee Chairman Joseph McDonnell opposed recommittal, saying, "It's interesting that the proponents want it held because they don't

'Save Dudman' move begun by aldermen

Half the Board of Aldermen have signed a letter to Mayor Theodore Mann asking the mayor to retain Richard Dudman, outgoing director of Public Works, "in some capacity that would best utilize his experience in systems analysis and development."

Dudman was scheduled to leave city employment finally March 1, but his term was extended to April 15 to help get the Public Works Department through the budget.

The letter was written by Ald. Terry Morris, who said that the signers "are concerned that the final reorganization that takes place will be durable enough to last the city for the next couple of decades."

"We are pleased," the letter read, "with your open dialogue with the Board as the reorganization (of the city's operating departments) is developed."

The letter referred to "three or four months of hard work ahead," during which time the Board will be deliberating on the reorganization of the Public Works Department, and expressed concern that "continuity and order" be maintained in the Public Works Department during the reorganization discussion.

"We feel that to lose his year and a half of experience as the director coupled with his professional expertise as a management consultant during this crucial period of time would be a mistake," the letter said.

In addition to Morris, other signers of the letter were Ald. Susan Schur, Joan Saklad, Mark White, Eliot Cohen, Richard Bullwinkle, Wendell Bauckman, Robert Gaynor, Jason Sacks, Ernest Dietz, Edward Richmond, and David Jackson.

My son the taxi driver

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Few little kids in Newton tell their parents that they want to grow up to become taxi cab drivers.

But years later, as college dropouts, many Newton youths are found picking up bundles for little old ladies at the Star Market and hoping for big tips.

Cab driving can be initially attractive because you work by yourself much of the time. The only skill it requres is being able to drive, and it is usually easy to get hired by one of the companies in Newton.

Cab companies operate two shifts. One group of drivers works from 6:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

p.m. The night drivers work approximately 4:30 p.m. to 1 a.m.

Taxi drivers spend much of their time waiting on stands for calls from their dispatcher. Some stands can be far more lucrative than others.

If a driver is sent to spend a night in the area of Boston College, he may wait as long as three hours on a slow night for a customer.

If a driver is assigned to the Riverside MBTA station stand, he may be continually driving students to Wellesley College all night long.

Drivers are very dependent on their dispatcher. Many cab drivers have felt dispatchers giving preference to favored colleagues.

For example, assume that there are two cabs waiting on a stand for calls. The first driver might be instructed to pick up a lady in Newtonville who wants go to West Newton.

Seconds after leaving the stand, this driver hears the second cab get a ride which will go from Newton Corner to the airport (the dream journey of many drivers). The first driver might wonder if the airport ride was not held by the dispatcher until he had left the stand.

Drivers have occasionally collectively abused their dispatcher. At one company, on slow nights, drivers used to shout insult into their microphones and leave it to the dispatcher to figure out who was the troublemaker.

Another problem on long nights can be drivers falling asleep. A dispatcher may have to ask for a cab four or five times before he gets a response.

An essential accessory for cab drivers is a street directory. Few, if any drivers, know all the streets in Newton. If a driver forgets his directory, he can assume he will be in for a long day. He will have to either irritate his dispatcher by continually asking where streets are, or be lucky and be sent to addresses he is familiar with.

Having a street directory does not assure that a driver will find a road quickly. Street directories list what streets a road runs off of. What if you've never heard of those streets either?

Sometimes a driver will have to backtrack in his directory three or four streets until he finds one he know to get to. And even directories make mistakes. One directory reportedly lists a street off of Washington Street in Newton Highlands. Washington Street never touches Newton Highlands.

Street guides can be almost useless if a driver is sent to a town he has never been in before. One former driver reports that he was sent to drive a lady from Newton to Dorchester, assuming that his dispatcher could help him find Dorchester.

His cab's radio began to malfunction enroute to Boston, and he began to stop at every pay phone he saw to call for new instructions.

Numerous dollars on the meter later, the driver finally found his customer's destination. He charged her what she said the ride usually cost, rather than the amount on the meter, and tried to find his way home.

Parts other than the radio sometimes break down in cab. One former driver had two cabs he was driving break down in one day.

The first car broke down as he entered one of the airport tunnels. He flagged down another cab for his customer and officials helped him get his cab out of traffic.

When he returned to Newton, he was given another cab. This one stalled out in Newtonville. He was told that there were no more available cabs The driver left and was hired by another cab company that same day.

Cab drivers often pass time by talking about weird customers. One former driver tells of picking up a lady at Howard Johnson's in Newton Corner.

He asked her where she wanted to go and she replied, "Howard Johnson's." When he told her that that was where she was she said she wanted to go to Newton Centre.

The meter read $1.50 when the ride was finished. The lady, who was described as "about 60 years old, and wearing go-go boots," gave the driver $12. He

Lead screening tests March 12

Lead screening tests for school-aged children are scheduled for March 12 at Cabot School in Newtonville.

Tests, conducted by Newton–Wellesley Hospital personnel, determine whether or not lead levels in children's blood are abnormally high. Ingestion of chips of sweet-tasting paint is a common cause of lead poisoning in children, particularly those between the ages of one and six.

Newton Community Service Centers cooperates with Newton-Wellesley Hospital in conducting the screening. Members of R.S.V.P., the senior citizens' group operating from the center, have provided assistance in non-medical aspects of the testing program.

To date, more than 1,100 Newton children have been tested. Medical supervision for the program is provided by Newton-Wellesley chief of pediatrics Dr. John M. Cohen and pediatric practitioner Mrs. Irene Lamb, R.N.

Nutrition

Nutrition Week March 3-9

Mayor Theodore D. Mann has designated the week of March 3-9, 1974, as Nutrition Week in Newton.

"Nutrition Saves" is the message Newton dietitians and nutritionists are emphasizing during the second annual National Nutrition Week.

"With ever-increasing food costs and changing food patterns, we think 'Nutrition Saves' is an important and timely message for everyone," Miss Mary Kennedy, R.D., president of the Massachusetts Dietetic Association, said.

Mrs. June Goodman, R.D., Public Health nutritionist for the city of Newton, explained that proper nutrition saves not only dollars spent on the weekly food budget, but also saves and enchances good health. Daily food intake, including snacks, should be built around the Basic Four food groups—milk, meat and fish, fruits and vegetables and enriched or whole-grain breads and cereals.

National Nutrition Week is sponsored by the American Dietetic Association and its state and local affiliates.

Mrs. Goodman, city nutritionist, has planned a number of activities such as library displays, Dial-a-Dietitian Service, etc. This service enables Newton residents to have nutrition questions answered for them by a qualified dietitian. Simply call 542-6765 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. any Monday through Friday.

Radio Station WJIB will feature a program on March 10 at 10 p.m., and Channel 5 will have a television program on March 5 at 9 a.m. in conjunction with National Nutrition Week.

Crime prevention program well received, Quinn says

Public reaction to the Newton Police Crime Prevention Program at Stop & Shop and Star Markets has been enthusiastically received by Newton citizens.

The program, three days at each of the markets, designed to meet with the public on a one on one basis was inaugurated by Mayor Theodore D. Mann and Chief William F. Quinn with opening ceremonies at Stop and Shop on Monday, Feb. 25, and at Star Market on Feb. 28.

At the opening ceremonies, both the chief and mayor met with shoppers individually and explained the number of programs that citizens participate in. In addition, video tapes were made of interviews and shown periodically during the week.

The programs and interviews were conducted by Inspector William Sullivan of the Registry of Motor Vehicles, Sergeant Charles Feeley, Community Service Officers Robert Braceland, Roy Fairweather and Cadet Ronald Shorton of the Community Services bureau, Sergeant John Likely, Officers Robert Antonellis, Anthony Penzo of the Traffic Bureau; Officers Patricia MacMaster and Marilyn Connell of Patrol Division and Detective Leonard Farrell.

In addition, Deputy Chief Jay I. Moskow assigned Auxiliary uniformed police officers to participate in the program by meeting with and distributing literature to the shoppers. They also took reservations for the use of Operation Identification engravers.

During the week, over 3000 interviews or talk sessions were counted by the officers on duty.

Demonstrations on personal protection and the best way to carry a purse to minimize the dangers of a handbag theft were offered by MacMaster and Connell to interested women.

One enthusiastic young woman was overheard to say, "This is the first time I have ever met face to face with the "fuzz" and I find it quite pleasant."

Chief Quinn stated that due to the reception by the public the program will be continued weekends until each of the Newton villages have been covered. At present, police have been invited by Oak Hill Park, Nonantum and Auburndale Civic Groups.

Quinn also this week commended three men of his Detective Bureau for exceptional team work in following up a Crime Check call recently.

The chief also commended the public spirited citizen who called 911 and reported a stranger was in a Waban home.

Detectives Thomas McEnaney, William Fitzsimmons and Robert Whalen responded, surrounded the house, and flushed out a Boston man who later admitted to nine other Newton "breaks," when pleading guilty to Breaking and Entering in the Daytime, and was sentenced to two-one-half years in the House of Correction, Billerica.

In addition, the chief commended Detective Leonard Farrell for his work in uncovering three other warrants under another name for the defendant.

The chief stated, "This case was a classic in the fact that a wide awake and interested citizen using the emergency number 911, called and informed our men of a suspicious act and they did the rest. This is an outstanding example of what the partnership of aware citizens and good policing can accomplish."

A selection of international television programs will be available in the viewing room.

A display of paintings about TV by Washington area school children will be on show in the foyer of the Kennedy Center.

"The conference will be an exciting showcase for children's television," said ACT Festival co-ordinator, Lydia Kowalski. "ACT believes that this range of programming should be available for all children to watch, to provide them with an opportunity to explore the world's cultures and peoples through television."

Inquiries and registrations are arriving daily, and further registration information is available from ACT, 46 Austin Street, Newtonville, Mass. 02160 (527-7870).

Fishman bill on gas distribution to make alternate-day plan law

A bill to make mandatory a plan for alternate-day distribution of gasoline, has been filed by Sen. Irving Fishman (D-Newton) and other members of the Special Senate Committee to Investigate the Fuel Shortage in Massachusetts.

Sen. Fishman, chairman of the committee, said the plan would be based on the committee's original voluntary gas-allocation proposal, unanimously adopted by the Senate on Feb. 5.

In testimony before the Committee on Governmental Regulations Fishman explained that the findings of his Fuel Shortage Committee indicate the "the voluntary system has been unevenly observed throughout the state. Long lines continue to be problems at many gas stations. Representatives of gasoline dealer associations have explained to our committee that if there is to be an effective odd-even system, it must be a mandatory one."

Reports from other states emphasize that voluntary plans are successful only when there is sufficient gasoline to satisfy more than 80 per cent of the demand.

"In Massachusetts, gasoline allocations for March are in the 80 to 85 per cent range. These allocations, however, are based on 1972 figures and do not take into account any overall increase in gasoline consumption since that time. Our data indicate that March will be worse than February," Fishman cautioned.

"States like New York, New Jersey, Maryland and Hawaii, which found it necessary to adopt mandatory plans, all have been facing similar shortages in excess of 20 per cent. Even Oregon is now seriously considering switching from a voluntary to a mandatory system," Fishman continued.

"The mandatory half-tank minimum, alternate-day system I have proposed does nothing to decrease the fundamental problem of an inadequate supply of gasoline in our area," Fishman said. "This will continue to be a problem of varying degrees of intensity for some time to come."

"The principal objective of this plan, however, is to reduce the hazardous and inconveniently long lines at service stations and thereby restore a semblance of normal gasoline buying patterns," Fishman said.

The plan would make the present voluntary restrictions mandatory.

Under Fishman's plan, the Registrar of Motor Vehicles will determine which vehicles are engaged in essential public services or employed for commercial use. Vehicles so identified would be eligible to purchase gasoline on all days of the week.

The plan would require service stations to indicate through a colored flag system whether or not gasoline is available.

A system of penalties and fines for willful violations is also provided for.

In a related development, Fishman said that the Special Senate Committee had expanded its investigation of the fuel shortage problem to explore the issue of the fuel-adjustment clause, which has caused electric rates to rise while public consumption of electricity declines.

Auburndale woman assaulted, robbed

A 75-year-old Auburndale woman reported to police last week that she was assaulted and robbed by two males.

Mrs. Pearl Hilliard, 50 Robinhood St., reportedly arrived home at 2:45 p.m. last Friday. A bell rang 10 minutes later and Mrs. Hilliard found a man at the door.

The man allegedly showed her a badge in a leather folder and said that he was a police officer. He said he would like to talk to her about someone in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Hilliard reportedly saw a large yellow car back up the street away from her house and asked the man whose car it was. The man allegedly said it was his and at the same time, forced her into the house.

The first man was joined by a second man and they reportedly asked Mr. Hilliard for money.

She allegedly gave them about $100 from her pocketbook and bedroom. They asked where the safe was and she took them to the cellar where they reportedly made her open the safe.

The men reportedly took the entire contents of the safe, including personal papers, a will, income tax records and coins.

The men allegedly took Mrs. Hilliard upstairs to a first floor bedroom and tied her hands with a piece of cloth. Her legs and feet reportedly were bound with a sweater and a silk kerchief was tied around her mouth.

The men reportedly told Mrs. Hilliard not to move for 10 minutes. When she heard the men go out the front door she released herself and tried to telephone the police. A phone wire had been cut, police said.

Mrs. Hilliard went next door and informed a neighbor, who called police.

A 14-year-old boy was reportedly beaten up by four youths on the front steps on Newton North High School on Saturday.

Kobrick named to NRA

Morris Kobrick, 199 Otis St., West Newton, has been named to replace Lawrence Sullivan as the "governor's appointee" to the Newton Redevelopment Authority.

Kolbrick, a lawyer, said that he received a certification of appointment last week. It is expected that he will be a voting member of the Authority at its next meeting on March 14.

Kobrick recently explained the process through which he was appointed. He said that after being initially interviewed by the state Department of Community Affairs, he had "a number of questions he wanted to resolve.

"I investigated who is on the Newton Redevelopment Authority now," Kobrick commented. "I came out with some favorable and impressive comments."

Kobrick noted that he has lived in Newton for 25 years. He is 64 years old.

When asked about the controversial history of the NRA, Kobrick replied, "I don't mind controversy." He said that he is concerned about the reasons for controversy.

"I need to do some homework and studying," Kobrick commented. "I have never met any of the board members.

Kobrick noted that he has represented developers and architects. "I know about Spaulding and Slye," he said. "It's a high grade outfit.

Kobrick is "pretty familiar with laws affecting redevelopment authorities." He said that he has done a little homework and read up on some statutes.

Board president Cohen miffed at wrong school appointments

Through a series of misunderstandings and unexplained events, another point of friction has developed between the Board of Aldermen and the School Committee.

The sore point became known this week at a meeting of the Board, when Board President Eliot Cohen requested withdrawal of the names of Ald. Richard Bullwinkle and Louis Egelson, his appointees to the School Building Advisory Committee, since the School Committee, Cohen said, has appointed Ald. Alan Barkin and Edward Richmond instead.

"I have no objections to Ald. Barkin and Richmond," Cohen said, "but I do not feel that the Board of Aldermen should be the pawn of the School Committee."

The School Building Advisory Committee is composed of three citizens appointed by the School Committee, one School Committee member, three citizens appointed by the mayor, various members from city and school departments, and an indeterminate number of persons appointed by the president of the Board.

The purpose of the SBAC, according to School Committee Chairman Eleanor Rosenblum, is to gather data and make recommendations on proposals and planning for school facilities and on allocation of funds for large-scale maintenance and repair.

Cohen said that the plan had been designed originally to include three citizens to be appointed by the Board, but the School Committee changed its mind on this point in 1972, neglecting to inform the Board that two aldermen were to be appointed by the Board.

The three aldermanic citizen appointees were never notified of SBAC meetings by the School Committee, Cohen said he had learned recently, and consequently never attended one. Their absence was noted by some of the aldermen, who thought simply thaat the appointees were not interested in attending.

School Committee Chairman Rosenblum denied that there had ever been three citizen appointments open for aldermanic action, and could not explain why the mixup was not caught.

This year Cohen made appointments of two aldermen to the SBAC, referring the names of Bullwinkle and Egelson to the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee on Jan. 14.

Public Buildings Committee Chairman Edward Richmond said Tuesday that Cohen's SBAC appointments were apparently on page two of a memorandum on various appointments, and that he never received that page.

In the absence of appointments by Cohen, who was by then on vacation, Richmond said his committee voted tentatively to submit his and Barkin's names as appointees.

Richmond does not know how the names arrived at the School Committee, but he and Barkin have been accepted as members and have attended meetings of the SBAC.

Cohen said on the floor of the Board that he especially had wanted Bullwinkle, Board vice-president and vice-chairman of the aldermanic Finance Committee, and Egelson, chairman of the aldermanic Education Committee to be SBAC members.

Eleanor Rosenblum called the whole affair "a series of misunderstandings."

Student concerns aired at School Committee

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

A student advisory committee spoke to the School Committee this week about student concerns at the two high schools.

Newton North student Michael Silton mentioned vandalism and violence at his school. He said that they are "symptoms" which "tell something about the school."

Silton said that there is apathy and lack of responsibility at Newton North. "It is caused by anonymity," he commented.

Silton acknowleged that students cannot know everyone at the school, but he added that he felt every student should know and be accountable to some faculty member.

"Kids are confused about what they can and cannot do," Silton said. "Not every student can handle open campus.

Silton proposed a strengthening of the house system at Newton North. The high school is presently divided into six houses. Most students take classes in different houses, but are linked to a home room in one of the houses.

Silton offered Riley House as a good model. Riley House sophomores have most of their classes within the house. This can encourage people getting to know each other.

"We're asking for more individual attention for each child," Silton said. "If we strengthen and individualize the houses, this would probably be the best step.

The School Committee has scheduled a special meeting on March 18 for discussion of the house system.

Newton North student Ann Hochberg told the School Committee that Newton North has a weighted system for determining students' class ranks.

Under this system, an 'A' in an honors class is worth more than an 'A' in curriculum I in relation to compiling class ranks.

"Some people are unhappy with the system," Ms. Hochberg said.

She mentioned some possible consequences of the system. "There is pressure on students jockeying for high ranks," she commented. "Students choose courses based on weight.

"Kids with low class ranks may lose self-esteem," Ms. Hochberg added.

She said that rankings may hurt students with employers.

"There are marked inconsistencies between classes in the same curriculum," she commented. Another possible problem is that electives, which are as difficult as tracked courses, are not counted toward rank.

Silton said that students in an honors class can receive three points for an 'F' while students who get an 'F' in curriculum II receive no points toward ranking.

"The weighting system we have now is not right," Silton commented.

School Committee member Dorothy Reichard said that she was upset about what she had heard.

"I think ranking systems are abominable; they ought to be wiped out," Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink said. Fink noted the possibility of error in the initial grade for students, and also the possibility of error in weighting.

Fink added that he doubted whether weighting substantially affected class ranking.

Ms. Hochberg mentioned alternatives to the present ranking system. The included use of an grade point index; a decile system where students are ranked either in the first tenth of their class, the second tenth, the third tenth, etc., the use of a more precise letter grades; and showing grades for all terms. Newton South reportedly uses a decile system.

Silton said that there is "confusion over student records." He stated that he has been denied access to his records twice.

Newton North principal Richard Mechem replied that "we've been showing records to students on a regular basis. I don't know what happened to Mike."

Newton North student Peter Norvig said that there is no facility for safe bicycle parking. He added that he felt biking to school should be encouraged.

It was mentioned that having bicycle lockers at Newton North might be helpful.

Newton South student Emily Shulman said that the most pressing issue at her school is the automotive center.

She asked about the showing of records to students. She was informed that the School Committee has a policy which says that high schools students can see their records.

Ms. Shulman mentioned a communication problem at Newton South. She said that there has been difficulty getting information about programs and curriculum.

It was noted that similar courses at the two high schools sometimes offer different credits to students.

Ms. Shulman said that a small group of advanced math students have no major math course to take after their junior year.

Fink replied that it is expensive to have course for a limited amount of people.

Ms. Shulman also talked about the firing of teachers. She said that it was felt that two of the best English teachers were cut because other teachers had tenure.

"You cannot fire a tenured teacher except with a good reason," Fink said. He added that the School Department tries "to retain good people," either by shifting them to a different school or by rehiring them later.

Silton asked that School Committee members visit Newton North. He also said he would like a study of the coordination of curriculum.

In other action, the School Committee voted unanimously to reconfirm its support for an automotive center at Newton South High School. The School Committee expressed support for a space requirement of 2,160 square feet for the automotive center which would make possible reimbursement from the Massachusetts School Building Assistance Bureau.

Gas mileage in doubt, appropriation cut

The Street Department has been told by the Board of Aldermen in effect to use less gasoline.

Some members seem to doubt that the department is using as much as it says it is.

Allegations of "something strange going on in the Street Department," made a week ago by Ald. Robert Gaynor, were given further credence this week by another set of mileage figures given Gaynor on Street Department trucks.

At Monday night's meeting of the Board of Aldermen, Gaynor presented the figures on the Street Department's 23 pickup trucks. On 16 of the pickups, the odometers were working and indicated gasoline mileages of 2.84 miles per gallon for a 1965 model to 14.1 mpg for a 1970 model.

An automotive expert asked about specific models and mileages, commented that mileage would depend

Anonymous tips

The Massachusetts Attorney General's office has instituted a program which will enable citizens to anonymously inform on drug pushers and users by calling 727-6858.

Called the "drug intelligence hotline", the 24 hour phone service will, it is hoped, provide police with leads in tracking down drug traffickers.

Robert Quinn, in opening the program last week, said he hoped the line would be used by those afraid of direct involvement or reluctant to testify in court.

The program, according to the Attorney General's office, is designed after the TIP program (Turn In a Pusher) now in use in several states.

People in the A.G.'s office proudly pointed to the TIP program track record when asked about it last week.

In Tampa, Florida, they said, there were 67 arrests and 42 convictions over a two year period from hotline tips.

In Ontario, California, there were 859 calls received, resulting in many arrests, included in this was the end to the carreer of a 20-man heroin ring.

The goal of this program is indeed worthy, but the opportunities open for abuse are worth considering.

The parasites who feed a persons' drug habit know better than anyone the seeds of destruction they have sown. And there is little argument that this is one breed of person who should be out of business.

But a drug hotline which promises anonymity to persons calling in tips may open a Pandora's box. And it's hard to shake the shivers of paranoia that comes from thinking about the implications of this program.

The calls that come in are truly anonymous. According to Dennis Sullivan, an attorney with Quinn's drug office, no attempt will be made to obtain the callers identity

And, said Sullivan, the information is used for investigatory purposes only, a warrant cannot be obtained on this type of information alone

An anonymous tip is probably the most unrealiable information there is, so unreliable that the court will not accept it without corroboration as evidence

And yet a phone call to Quinn's office can start the wheels turning.

A persons name is recorded on tape along with any real or imagined suspicions the caller may have

The net throw-out by the police, on the basis of tips, is perhaps too wide. It may, hopefully catch some big fish, but it seems too possible that an innocent small one may be dragged in.

The Attorney General's office promises that every precaution will be taken to insure the confidentiality of any information received. The files will be periodically purged and supposedly identities will be protected.

But there are obvious dangers in a program of this type, no matter how laudable the goal.

And it seems that more precautions are needed to protect the innocent from investigation by the police. Investigations based on phone calls that are unreliable at best.

How much for paper clips?

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

By sitting in on the budget hearings, you learn all sorts of trivia about the operation of the city.

For example, the Election Commission uses $15 worth of Scotch tape a year, and the Department of Weights and Measures checks 2,000 weighing or metering devices every year.

You also find out everybody's salary, and somehow your evaluation of them and their boss is changed by the information, so we'll let that drop.

Reading the Police Department budget is like visiting Fantasyland.

Not only do you find out there is no Blue Cross for the two police dogs, you also learn that they must be rather sickly to need $150 for the next year's doctor bills.

These dogs are also getting more "food and equipment"—$1,500—than lots of children, and more than prisoners, who eat on $600 a year.

One thing the Police Department is not getting is a venetian blind bullet trap for range, along with two Camdex Reloader Automated .38-cal. Ammo. reloading machines ($4,150) and 11 new patrolmen.

What they are getting, though, includes 90 new blankets "for cruiser ambulances and cells" and $500 more for sheets, pillowcases and blankets, "cleaning and replacement."

From the amount for in- and out-of-state travel allowed in most of the departments this year, you wonder who's going to be around to mind the store.

You can find out that City Hall's phone bill will be almost $50,000 next year, and that maybe this is the year that the windows will be washed at City Hall at last.

The deer in the Webster Conservation Area eat pretty well, too, for $2,500.

We will be getting, with any luck at all, $81,000 worth of new books this year at the libraries, you would know if you went to the budget hearings.

But since the greater part of the budget goes for salaries, we can't let them drop.

It is a shock and a disappointment to hear one department head after another come before the Finance Committee and explain that one of his "girls" has been working for him for 8, 10, 12, or more years and may be getting as little as $7,000 a year.

It is a shame to find out that people you know to be competent and pleasant are often paid less than others less efficient and less pleasant.

But it's fascinating, every word. The budget hearings "tell all" about the inner workings of the city, and there's nothing like them.

Pols can back caucus with their supporters

If you have nothing better to do on Saturday, March 23, drop in at the Framingham Town Hall and give a psychological lift to one of the candidates for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General and Secretary of State at the Mass Caucus 74 sponsored by the ADA.

You don't have to be elected a delegate, and you don't need to belong to any organization. All you need to do to cast a vote for one of the Democratic candidates for Attorney General and Secretary of State is show up.

You're supposed to be a Democrat and eligible to cast a ballot in the Democratic primary next September. But they don't even check that carefully. Republicans would hardly be interested, however.

If Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren, former Lieutenant Governor Francis X. Bellotti and former State Representative George Sacco don't pack the place with their supporters, it will mean they're not sufficiently interested in what happens at Mass Caucus 74 to make that effort.

The original purpose of Mass Caucus 74 was to narrow the field of candidates planning to stand against Secretary of State Davoren in the Democratic primary. Boston City Councillor Lawrence DiCara and Newton Representative Paul Guzzi, potential primary contenders against Davoren, both have agreed to abide by the action of the March 23 Caucus.

That promotes speculation by this agent as to whether Guzzi and DiCara would withdraw from the Democratic primary if enough of Davoren's supporters show up at the Caucus to vote him its endorsement. There is nothing whatever in the rules governing the Caucus to prevent that from happening.

Dolores Mitchell of Watertown, one of the organizers of the Caucus, explains that the basic Caucus rules are modeled after the successful citizens' caucuses of the past three years.

"Every Massachusetts resident eligible to vote in the September, 1974, Democratic Primary is invited to attend the Mass Caucus '74 and participate in candidate evaluation and selection," she declared.

"All candidates for the Democratic nomination for Secretary of State and Attorney General will be invited to address the Caucus and lobby for its support. Once the candidates have spoken, a series of votes will be taken to determine which, if any, of the candidates the Caucus wishes to support," she concluded.

Candidates for the Democratic nomination for Attorney General are former State Representative George Sacco of Medford, who resigned from his post in the House to devote himself to his campaign; former Lieutenant Governor Francis X. Bellotti; Norfolk County Register of Deeds Barry T. Hannon and Edward F. Harrington of Needham, former federal crime-buster. Others may also enter the field.

Harrington is an amateur in politics. Sacco, Bellotti and Hannon are all established vote-getters although Bellotti is the only one who has made state-wide campaigns in the past.

Bellotti was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1962. He toppled the then Governor Endicott Peabody in an upset in the 1964 Democratic Primary, but was defeated by John A. Volpe in the subsequent election. He won the Democratic nomination for Attorney General in 1966 but lost to Elliot Richardson in the final election. In 1970 he placed third behind Boston Mayor Kevin H. White and former State Senate President Maurice A. Donahue in a race for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Sargent is unbeatable within his own party

Carroll P. Sheehan, former State Commissioner of Commerce, either is one of the greatest optimists in the State's history or one of the Commonwealth's finest political actors.

Sheehan not only is opposing Governor Francis W. Sargent for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in the September primary but declares that he expects to defeat him in September and go on to win the final election in November.

Nothing is impossible in politics, but that is about as close to a political impossibility as you can get in a real life primary contest.

A survey of Republican voting sentiment conducted by this writer indicated that there is no way Mr. Sheehan, Peter Fuller, Buck Dumaine, John Buckley or any other candidate could defeat Sarge in the GOP primary next September.

The storm signals are flying high for Governor Sargent in the November election because of the gasoline shortage and the high cost of living. Those are factors which conceivably might change in the next seven or eight months, but right now Sarge and the other Republicans have plenty to worry about as far as the November election is concerned.

Incidentally, the people questioned by this observer are indignant about waiting in line for an hour to buy gasoline and are disturbed about inflation, economy and jobs. But the Watergate scandal is no longer a big issue with them.

They would like President Nixon and Congress to get on with the business of running the country. They're fearful of what the Soviet Union might do and what might happen to the United States in the period of chaos which certainly would develop if Nixon were impeached.

All this is not necessarily good news for Governor Sargent and his advisers, but Sarge is in no danger of losing his bid for Republican renomination in the September primary.

He is in trouble with a lot of Republican politicians, but not the rank and file GOP voters, most of whom are not quite sure what the pols in their party are upset about, but they suspect it's not the same things which are bothering them right now.

Governor Sargent is being given some credit by Republicans, Democrats and Independents for easing the gasoline shortage in Massachusetts, but his political future may depend on how long it remains eased.

Several sitting Democratic Governors have been defeated in party primaries, either when seeking renomination or a seat in the U.S. Senate. They include Endicott Peabody, Foster Furcolo and Charles F. Hurley. In every instance, however, the candidates who toppled them in the primaries were themselves defeated in the subsequent election.

As far as we can recall, no Republican Governor has been defeated for renomination in modern history.

Back in the days when the GOP controlled both branches of the State Legislature, the Republican candidates for Governor would serve a sort of political apprenticeship. They would rise to become Speaker of the House of Representatives or president of the State Senate and then would run for Lieutenant Governor.

After a four-year training period as Lieutenant Governor, they would almost automatically become the Republican nominees for Governor. Until the end of World War 2, a Democratic Governor was the exception to the rule in Massachusetts. Paul A. Dever started an era of Democratic Governors.

Some political analysts believe Governor Sargent might be in a stronger position for the final November election battle if he had a warmup run in the primary.

That has been true of several Democratic candidates for Governor who gained momentum in the primary which carried over into the election campaign. They got their supporters mobilized and achieved a winning psychology.

Congressmen say gas rationing still likely

Several members of the Massachusetts delegation in congress privately express the belief that President Nixon has been over-optimistic in predicting the amount of gasoline which will be available to the American people during the coming spring and summer.

They say there still is a real likelihood that it will be necessary to resort to rationing in order to achieve a fair distribution of what gasoline is available.

One Congressman told the writer the gasoline shortage may get worse instead of better this spring if rationing is not introduced.

"President Nixon wants to avoid the expense which would be involved in gasoline rationing, but I don't believe he will be able to do it," he declared.

"I am afraid we simply will not have enough gasoline to go around without rationing," he added.

Another Congressman voiced concern that Energy Chief William Simon may be robbing Peter to pay Paul in switching supplies to relieve gas-short areas and lessen public protests.

Meanwhile, businessmen on Cape Cod, where the tourist trade is vital to the economy, are worried about what will happen there if gasoline is still in such short supply next summer that people who usually vacation on the Cape are afraid to drive there. That is especially true on the lower Cape.

Many persons have delayed in renting cottages or making reservations in hotels and motels on the Cape until they learn what the gasoline situation will be this summer.

The appraisals of the gasoline shortage by Congressmen from this state do not provide much cause for optimism on the Cape.

Sarge campaign chest is full; Others worry

One thing Governor Francis W. Sargent will have going for him in the upcoming gubernatorial campaign is money—M-O-N-E-Y.

Sarge raked it in while it was still respectable to attend a $1000-a-person cocktail party or to give a contribution to a candidate for public office.

New political contenders are beginning to pay the price for the fact that molasses-mouth Sam Ervin, pious Lowell Weicker and the other members of the so-called Select Senate Watergate Committee made campaign-giving the next thing to a sin and certainly a shady transaction deserving of careful scrutiny.

The colleagues of Ervin and Weicker, who will be up for reelection next fall, will discover that it will not be easy to raise enough money to finance a half-decent campaign.

Many political pundits assume that the reason Ervin is retiring from office is that he realizes few persons would give him a contribution for fear he would whistle for the nearest District Attorney and demand an investigation of the giver's motives.

In the not too old days a businessman would give a political candidate $500 or $1000 and request that it not be listed.

"It's not that I'm ashamed of giving you a contribution," he would explain to the candidate. "I'm not. But if my wife learns I've given you $1000, I'll have to buy her a new mink coat, and she's hardly worn the one she has."

Who is running our school system?

To the Editor:

Who is running our Newton School System? The School Committee? The Mayor? The Board of Aldermen?

Traditionally, it has been the School Committee (with the guidance and direction of the superintendent of schools). Have policies and business administrators become so paramount that the children's welfare is second or third in the priorities of our elected and-or appointed officials?

To speak loosely of alternatives is cheating the children of our school in what is rightfully due them - quality education!

I also ask that the PTA Council refute the comment made by their President, Mr. John Webber, who was quoted by the "Newton Graphic" as saying that people in the Lincoln-Eliot area never came to the PTA Council to talk about additions and alterations.

He said that he did not favor additions and alterations. Either Mr. Webber was erroneously quoted, or we would suggest he be more guarded in his statements to the press. To our knowledge the PTA Council which has supported the three schools - Lincoln-Eliot, Davis, and Underwood - in their quest for new additions has not reversed its decision.

A commitment was made by the School Department, School Committee, and Board of Aldermen to this community. We would like to see this commitment honored, for indeed, the needs of our children have not diminished through these years. It has, in fact, increased!

We, of the Lincoln-Eliot community, feel and have felt for a long time that the children of this community have been short-changed and deprived of adequate and proper educational facilities. Eight years ago, we mounted a campaign culminating in a commitment by the School Committee and the Board of Aldermen (in 1971-1972) to our community.

Through all reviews our request was viewed favorably and yet we see action stalled and delayed for whatever excuse was convenient for that particular year. Agreement in principle, but not on action. The basic problem, however, remains. The children of Lincoln-Eliot do not have proper educational facilities.

The newest delaying tactics include both possibly busing and re-districting which we totally oppose! The children in our community deserve adequate facilities in our community.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 21, at a joint meeting of the Public Buildings Committee and Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen we were alarmed at the insensitivity to our community which is served by a Title I Program (Federal funding) when busing and re-districting were mentioned as alternatives to our school facility needs.

We would like to point out here that were it not for the Title I qualification of our school area the cost to the Newton taxpayer to provide adequate educational facilities and staff throughout the city would have been considerably higher and would have been reflected in the tax rate. Over the past few years the amount of federal funding has provided a relief to the tax rate.

Practically speaking - in terms of money - our machinery is geared to the special needs of the children in our area that receive the benefits of Title I.

It is in the best interest of the children to provide the best education to suit the needs of all the children collectively. Progress and moving forward are the goals of education.

It is difficult to fully explain the aspects of complex federal legislative programs such as Title I to otherwise busy officials. While they may want to understand and support the program, in reality, few have the time or inclination to review data in depth. Instead they assume an advocate position and demand proof for all Title I decisions and aims. At this point, we would like to take issue with those few people who sit on the Board of Aldermen and hold that the demographic study by Dr. Silluzio of the School Department which predicts a small enrollment drop in Lincoln-Eliot in next four years. May we ask all on the Board of Aldermen to read this study as carefully and as thoroughly as we have. In the next four years our miniscule enrollment drop will still show us at 100 percent capacity! We should focus attention on problems rather than argumentative statistical interpretations!

We feel that in the relatively underprivileged areas of Newton like Lincoln-Eliot that the elected city officials, mayor, aldermen, and School Committee have been using this Title I school assistance as a crutch and a way to avoid their responsibilities to provide fully adequate educational facilities and staff. It is time for the Lincoln-Eliot area to get what is long overdue — a quality elementary school which their children and taxpayers deserve.

Now! We call upon the elected authorities to take affirmative action on the Lincoln-Eliot building adequacy situation, rather than looking for loopholes, alternatives, delays, etc. The children cannot wait for interminable reevaluations!! We want action now!

Is it possible that our own "Garden City" is facing its own "Watergate?"

Mrs. Theresa M. O'Halloran
President, Lincoln-Eliot PTA

Webber on Lincoln-Eliot

To the editor;

A column written under the name of your reporter, Tom Graves in the edition Feb. 28 requires some clarification.

1. As indicated in a telephone conversation to you and also Mr. Graves, I have never conversed on any subject nor have I been interviewed by him on any matter. Exception, he asked me to identify some of the aldermen that were speaking at a joint meeting of the Finance and Public Buildings committee meeting last week at City Hall.

You indicated that since Tom is assigned to the School Committee meeting he was unfamiliar with the aldermen.

2. My name was used in conjunction with an organization, the PTA Council.

However, to clarify the records, any opinion or statements representing the council would have to be the result of a proposed motion, seconded, as well as voted on by the members present at the council and those having voting power and the results so recorded.

(Example was the Cabot School PTA requested our support on a capital outlay construction problem that was lagging. The council voted to support the issue, a letter indicating our concerns was transmitted, an acknowledgement was received from City Hall and to the best of our knowledge action is progressing to fix, repair the various plumbing and bathroom needs of this school.)

3. Tom Graves has not been present when I expressed my opinions on the Lincoln-Eliot proposed additions. Therefore I consider it unethical to report on my conversation with a third party without my expressed approval because other portions of the conversation were excluded. Tom Graves is also the sports editor of The Graphic and he should realize foul balls do not count—only home runs count in the box score as earned runs.

Crisis for children

To the Editor:

In May, 1968, the Lincoln-Eliot community presented a report to the Board of Aldermen on the necessity of an addition.

Now that addition is threatened by the action of certain members of the board. However, the educational needs of the Lincoln-Eliot children have not changed.

At that time, we were willing to temporize with internal revisions and the attendant problems of over-utilization of space. The following deficiencies still prevail: classrooms, auditorium, health room, art room, music room, multi-media space, counselling rooms, principal's office, lunch and breakfast program facilities, and Title I rooms (we need six and are forced to use everything from backstage cubbyholes to bathrooms).

The crisis in housing children cannot be emphasized enough. There is no area in the school where either a large or small group of children can meet for special projects or programs. Furthermore, All-Newton Music School has a branch at Lincoln-Eliot. Did you ever try to study music in a room little larger than a closet?

The library program is seriously curtailed because by virtue of state law nor more than nine persons are supposed to be in that former storage area. An in-class library program is far from adequate.

The gym program is constantly interrupted because of shared space with the lunch program. Their tables are stored in a section of the gym also, making impossible a full utilization of what is not even a first class physical education facility but just an exercise room.

Our children have enough social, economic and educational handicaps without further subjecting them to an inadequate facility. We must take our children out of marginal space. We need an imaginative learning center tailored to the needs of our children.

Overkill on 'underfinancing'

To the Editor:

With reference to Mr. Nathanson's letter in the Graphic of Feb. 28, one of the two "simple truths" he cited is not true, at least as yet; the other "Truth," viewed in its most favorable light, is a matter of disputable opinion.

His claim that "teacher salary increases have not matched even the rise in the cost of living" is not supported by the evidence. The present cost of living index uses the year 1967 as its base period. As of January, 1974, the index stood at 142, a 42 percent increase.

A comparison of the teachers' regular salary scale in September, 1967, with the current scale shows that teachers with a bachelor's degree have had, at the starting level, a 44 percent increase and 43 percent at maximum. Those with a master's degree have increased over 47 percent to start, and over 45 percent at maximum. Masters' plus one are 50 percent higher at both starting and maximum levels, while doctors' start 53 percent higher and are 49 percent higher at maximum.

It should be noted that in '67 it was possible, in six more years after reaching maximum, for some teachers to earn about $2,200 more. Today more than half of the $2,200 is gained by the "longevity" element in the newer salary scale and the remainder is equalled by other fringe benefits gained by the teachers during the period. Moreover, teachers now reach maximum in one year's less time.

Therefore, certainly for the teachers in Newton, the rise in the cost of living has been more than matched by increased remuneration.

Mr. Nathanson's second claim, that "education in Newton is grossly underfinanced," is a grievous distortion if the term "grossly" is to be taken literally. Without that modifier, "underfinanced" is at best a matter of opinion, not "simple truth."

was just over $15 million; the budget for fiscal '74 on a twelve-month basis is calculated at over $27 million—an increase of $12 million, or 80 percent. In terms of tax-rate dollars, the portion of the 1967 tax rate for total school costs was $36.50 per thousand dollars of valuation: in the current tax rate it is $71.16, an increase of $34.66, or nearly 95 percent. Just look at tax rate breakdown on the face of your old bills. This, Mr. Nathanson claims, is gross underfinancing!

I would disagree.

School enrollment declines

The following letter has been sent to S. Wendell Kravitz, president of Newton Citizens for Education:

Dear Mr. Kravitz:

I bring to your attention the enclosed article which appeared in last Sunday's edition of the "New York Times" relative to the subect matter of declining school enrollment in the New York Metropolitan Area. The article has far-reaching implications for all suburban communities, and in many ways parallels our situation in Newton.

It would seem to me that Newton Citizens for Education would be the ideal forum for a wide-ranging and open public discussion of this problem as it applies to our Newton school system. As the article points out, and in my perception as a layman, the ramifications of a declining enrollment are (a) potential school closings, (b) redistricting, (c) busing, (d) curtailment of school building projects, (e) cuts in staff, and (f) metropolitanization, to mention only those that are immediately apparent.

I am certain that there will be other more subtle effects, and I would want Newton, as a community concerned about quality education, to openly face this problem and deal with it in ways that will not affect the superb quality of our current public education system.

For more than one year, I have heard informal comments from school teachers, administrators, school committee persons, aldermen and informed citizens, that declining school enrollment is a major problem in Newton, that at least one and perhaps three elementary schools will soon close, and that redistricting will be necessary. One need only visit particularly the elementary schools in our Newton school system and observe the surplus of space and the small classes in many areas to understand the effects of a declining enrollment. And you will note that this is the first year in recent memory in which the School Committee has cut personnel in the system by reducing 30 positions.

It appears that we are not merely on the threshold of the problem, but well into it. This is a matter that demands informed and constructive discussion, and input from concerned parents, educators, academicians, demographers, city government officials, and the community at large.

Would you kindly bring this matter to the attention of your organization and let me know whether you are interested in sponsoring a conference or forum to deal with this important matter.

Great concert

Dear Editor:

It was a great privilege to attend the concert Sunday at Newton North High School.

The efforts of the choruses and orchestral combinations of the North and South high schools, representing many hours of work, combined into a harmonious, uplifting experience. The fine young men and women, who performed with aplomb and joyous participation, and the teachers in particular who led the groups, are to be heartily congratulated. They speak well for the educational system in which they participate

Hey, old man

Dear Editor:

I seem to recall a recent news-note announcing that henceforth the lady members of Newton's Board of Aldermen will be referred to as "Alderwomen." Since "alder-" derives from "elder" or "old," do the ladies really wish to be known and addressed as "old women?"

Halfway house a good idea

To the Editor:

It is my understanding that a halfway house is being considered for Newton to house former mental patients.

The halfway house is supposed to provide a homelike atmosphere for the former patients and help prepare them for their final return to their families and a normal life.

I think this is a most worthwhile project. Many former patients try to lead too busy a life with too many responsibilities directly after they have been discharged. A halfway house would help them slowly return to a normal life, gradually taking on more responsibilities.

If a halfway house is established, I hope that it will not be isolated from the community but rather accessable to the everyday activities of the town or city. I hope that more projects like this shall be considered for Newton.

Employment Agency opens in Norwood

A new full service employment agency has opened in Norwood. Owned by John and Geraldine Felty, the Bailey Empoyment Service of Norwood is located at 10 Cottage street and will serve both area employers and job applicants.

"The Bailey Employment Service of Norwood," said Mrs. Felty, "is in a position to fully explore career possibilities for qualified area residents, whether they hold skills in executive positions or secretarial positions. Working with other offices of the Bailey Employment System, which has over 55 offices in the Eastern states, the Norwood office can find good jobs for people anywhere in the United States."

"Our System was responsible for filling over $30 million worth of job positions last year," Felty added, "and the total aggregate worth of systemwide placements for this year should exceed all of our previous records. With the increased needs of the marketplace which must be served during this country's economic changes," he continued, "1974 should be the Bailey Employment System's best year yet."

For 20 years before joining the Bailey organization, Felty was an engineering manager with various companies, including Xerox and Univac. Mr. and Mrs. Felty reside in Cumberland, Rhode Ialsnd.

The auditorium has been converted into one large classroom for two sixth grade classes, and an adjacent room has a third sixth grade class. This space is quite large, and all three sixth grade classes were orderly, performing their work in various locations within this three-room complex."

Richmond said that the building has a large number of dead storage areas. He noted that "the kitchen area has been proposed to be moved in the new addition from its present location into the existing gymnasium, thereby rendering the gym almost unusable, and a two stage gymnasium, is proposed for construction."

Richmond has stressed that "the School Committee asked us to go to Lincoln-Eliot. He said that there was no docket item concerning Lincoln Eliot pending when the visit was made.

DPU charged with cheating consumers

'The DPU has cheated the consumers of Mass. by ignoring their legitimate interests — by discounting their problems when it comes time to grant rate increases.'

BOSTON (UPI) — Rep. Michael J. Harrington, D-Mass., says the Department of Public Utilities (DPU) has "cheated" Massachusetts consumers to the point where they might refuse to pay their electric bills.

Harrington, appearing Monday at a DPU hearing on a $12.5 million rate increase requested by Massachusetts Electric Co., said, "The DPU has cheated the consumers of Massachusetts by ignoring their legitimate interests — by discounting their problems when it comes time to grant rate increases."

About 250 Massachusetts Electric customers and scores of elected officials joined Harrington in opposing the rate hike. The company says it needs $6.5 million to make up for decreased revenue resulting from energy conservation and $6 million because of inflation.

The congressman told the group, "The purpose of the DPU is to protect the consumers of this state, but one would never know by listening in on a typical rate hearing."

Need For Balance

"There is no discussion of what the consumer can afford to pay," he added. "There is no balancing between the needs of the company and the needs of the customers. Instead, only the needs of the company and its stockholders are considered."

Harrington said that since 1971, Massachusetts Electric Co. profits have increased $13 million, or 30 per cent. At the same time, he added, consumers have seen their food costs increase 25 per cent and their heating prices rise 50 per cent.

"The question then is," Harrington saidn "if somebody has to suffer in 1974, who should it be, the stockholder who has sat back for the last two years and seen his dividends increase almost 30 per cent, or the consumer who has seen the cost of living go out of sight during the same period?"

"To me, the answer is obvious," he added. "Reject the rate increase. If the dividends have to go down, let them go down."

Harrington said "unless the DPU begins rejecting rate increases of the utilities then it will be hastening the day when the consumers of Massachusetts will ignore the orders of the DPU and simply say: 'I cannot, and I will not continue to pay my electric bill.'

have the votes. The only change since committee was to change the minimum age to 65 (from 60). Why return it to committee?"

Several aldermen gave reasons for recommittal as a concern with the density or the financing of the enterprise, while Ald. Terry Morris was concerned with possible charges of "tailoring the zone change to the particular use."

Barkin pointed out that "tailoring" of a zone has been done legitimately, as in the case, for example, of the Marriott Motor Hotel and the Newton-at-128 industrial park.

A vote of 13-8 sent the item back to Land Use Committee, where it may be discussed at next Monday's committee meeting.

A proposal for a medical-office–building condominium to be built at Washington Street and Neshobe Road was denied unanimously by the Board. Neighbors had objected strongly to the threatened increase in traffic and noise.

The denial of the medical building was "without prejudice," meaning that the petition may be resubmitted at any time.

A resolution submitted by Ald. Joan Saklad supporting state and federal regulations of handguns was approved with little debate.

Finally adopted was an ordinance banning smoking in supermarkets and food-preparation areas. This ordinance, proposed by former alderman, State Rep. Lois Pines, was debated at length, as it had been several times last year.

Taxi-

asked if she had made a mistake. The lady acted insulted, and the driver left with a 700 per cent tip.

Inebriated customers can present unusual problems to cab drivers. One former driver reports that he found the street a man wanted to go to, but the customer could not identify which house was his. Not until the cab had gone up the street two or three times was the question resolved.

Having a beautiful woman in the cab can also cause trouble.

A former driver tells of looking back at a pretty girl in the back seat and driving into a car in front of him.

On slow nights, when 40 per cent of the meter fares, plus tips, averages out to about $1.40 per hour, drivers may wish they had kept their childhood dreams of becoming policemen or firemen.

Or better yet, their parents' dream of their becoming a doctor.

Mileage-

somewhat on whether the pickups are six or eight-cylinder vehicles, whether they have heavy-duty springs, and what loads they carry, but in his opinion the mileage figures given, even on the older trucks, show lack of maintenance, probably "bad valves or a bad carburetor."

For heavy equipment, mileages were reported for a 1973 open rubbish truck as 1.04 mpg, up to 4.79 mpg for a 'sewer worker," among the trucks with working odometers.

Gaynor cited figures for Engineering Department and Water Department automobiles, which had an average of 10-12 mpg and 12-14 mpg, respectively, while Street Department cars had a considerably lower average.

The Board of Aldermen, debating a request from the Street Department for an additional $71,000 for fuel, cut the amount to $63,000 by an admendment of Ald. D. B. Cohen, and passed the amended request by a large majority.

A later appropriation request may be necessary for additional funds for gasoline. Its passage may depend on whether the Street Department repairs or replaces all faulty odometers, as promised, and on gas mileage records during the next month or two.

Babe Ruth - Lou Gehrig combine on Las Vegas night

NORWOOD—"We realized it would be best for all concerned if we combined our efforts for one well-supported night." This was the agreement reached between the Norwood Babe Ruth League and the Lou Gehrig League when each organization learned the other was planning a similar fund raising effort during the same time period. The result promises to be a most interesting and exciting Las Vegas Night to be held at the Norwood Armory on Friday night, March 29, 1974.

The two organizations completed highly successful seasons last year, but both face heavy equipment costs this year. The proceeds from the Las Vegas Night will be used for this purpose.

The Babe Ruth League has experienced phenomenal growth during the past four years, and now provides organized baseball for over 200 boys between the ages of 13 and 15. The consequence of this growth now requires entensive uniform replacement, and six teams will have new uniforms this year.

The Lou Gehrig League, now operating on a regional basis, provides baseball activity during July and August. In Norwood alone last year, Lou Gehrig fielded five teams, and more are planned for this year. This will only be the second year of the league's existence, but its growth seems to know no bounds.

The key to success for the event will be a good turnout. The night is not limited to Norwood residents. Everyone in the area who is interested in games of chance is welcome to enjoy himself or herself and help the kids at the same time. Bring your own group and make yourself at home.

No one will go thirsty during the course of the night, and free refreshments will wrap up the evening. Tickets are nominally priced at $1.00-person and can be obtained by calling: Barry Quinlan, 762-7391; Dick MacEachern, 762-4978; Dick or Barbara Kinter, 762-8842; Charlie Auditore, 762-9270; John Poole, 762-0533; Lou Caccavaro, 762-0933; Carole Powers, 762-2264; or Hank Klosowski, 762-6926.

Tickets will also be available at the door.

Goal tending wins for Whalers

CHICAGO (UPI) — Al Smith's "great goaltending" made the difference for the New England Tuesday night as the Whalers scored two goals in the third period to edge the Chicago Cougars 3-2.

"The great goaltending of Al Smith was the difference tonight," Whaler Coach Ron Ryan said. "He's on a streak now with seven wins, two losses, and one tie in the last 10 games.

"Of course he didn't have to face a single rebound. Our defense kept clearing the puck out of there and when you do that, you win games."

Tom Williams and Tom Webster scored at 2:48 and 8:05 to give the East Division leaders the victory. Webster stole the puck from Chicago's Jim Watson and fed Williams for the game winner.

Mike Byers scored New England's other goal on a 15-footer in the first period.

The Cougars took a 2-1 lead in the second period when they scored both goals. Rosaire Paiement's breakaway on Larry Mavety's pass at the blue line gave Chicago the leading goal after Mavety's goal had tied the game 1-1.

Smith, who stopped 35 shots, seemed surprised at his recent record.

"I've been struggling along after my injury just trying to get back to .500 but I'm pleased the way my game has come around.

"Our team record is unusual. We've never won more than two games in a row nor have we lost more than two games in a row and we're leading our division by five points. Toronto is pressing us and I think we'll need 90 points to clinch the division championship."

FRED STOLLE SIGNS

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Fred Stolle, "one of the finest mixed-doubles players in the world," according to Billie Jean King, signed with the Philadelphia Freedoms Tuesday for the upcoming World Team Tennis (WTT) season.

Stolle won numerous world mixed-doubles titles with Margaret Court, Ann Haydon-Jones and Lesley Bowrey as partners. He also won the U. S. Open title at Forest Hills in 1966 and reached the Wimbledon finals in 1963, 1964 and 1965.

PLAY STARTS

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Lobsters of the new World Team Tennis circuit will play their first home match May 9 against Hawaii at Boston University's Walter Brown Arena. The team will play 20 home and away matches during the circuit's first year.

A photo contest for amateur photographers and animal lovers of all ages has been announced by the Animal Rescue League of Boston.

The contest will be held in two divisions, adult and junior (under 18), according to Dr. Carlton E. Buttrick, League president. Prizes will be awarded in each division for two categories - black and white and color - and certificates will be presented for honorable mention. Judges for the contest will be Bob Howard, photo columnist with the Boston Herald American, Ed Fitzgerald, photo columnist with the Boston Globe; and Dave Wurzell, photo editor of United Press International.

All entries should be unretouched and enlarged to 5 x 7 inches or 8 x 10 An animal (or animals) must be the center of interest in the photo, but may be pictures alone, with people, with other animals or with inanimate objects as props. Each photo submitted must have the photographer's name, address (and age if a junior entry) affixed to the back with a label or sticker. Negatives should be kept by contestants in case they are needed later for reproduction or enlargement.

Photographic equipment and supplies valued at approximately $50, $25 and $10 – donated by Lechmere Sales – will be given to the first, second and third prize winners in adult and junior divisions, for both color and black-and-white categories Additional special awards will be presented, courtesy of Park Square Camera and Photo, and Ralph Harris Co.

Deadline for entries is April 26 and winners will be announced during Be Kind to Animals Week (May 5-12). Send entries to: Animal Photo Contest, Animal Rescue League of Boston, P. O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117. All photos submitted become the property of the Animal Rescue League of Boston.

Reliable Fence Co. now largest in east

Recently five progressive companies in Massachusetts merged to create the largest and most active fence company in this area.

Allied Fence Corporation, Framingham; Roelrige Fence Co., Inc., Walpole; Reliable Fence Co. of Cape Cod Inc., Hyannis; Reliable Fence Co. of the North Shore Inc., Peabody; and Reliable Fence Co., Inc., Norwell; are now one corporation – Reliable Fence Co., Inc. By making this decision, numerous advantages have been realized to improve quality of products and all related services.

Now one fence corporation has at its disposal the most experienced and creative executive force in the industry. The following officers now are able to pool their ideas and talents to solve any and all unique fencing problems: Anthony V. Orlando, president and treasurer; Charles T. Skulsky, executive vice president and clerk; Charles P. Richmond, vice president and controller; Edward Pellini, vice president; and Lawrence Routenberg, vice president. With this direction, Reliable is expected to surpass 10 million dollars in sales for 1974.

To provide immediate customer service, Reliable has innovated satellite branches to disperse information, reveal comparisons of quality and price of fencing products, and sell materials to the handy homeowner. Along with its established locations in Falmouth, Harwichport, Raynham, and Stoughton, the firm is opening new satellites in Bedford, Plymouth, Quincy, Tewksbury, Wareham, Worcester, and one at a New Hampshire location. Customers can now choose the right fencing for their homes after viewing the various styles at a convenient Reliable outlet.

In discussing the merger, Anthony Orlando stated, "This development causes innumerable advantages within the company framework – tighter service control through one strong central office, elimination of overlapping costs, increased mobility of products and personnel, and generally a more smoothly running machine that can produce an even finer product at a reduced cost."

Ribbon cutting

Filene's officials and local residents assisting in the ceremony, left to right, were: Filene's model, Valerie Dray; Tracey Heitman, 4, of Newton; Filene's chairman of the board, Weston P. Figgins; Commissioner Quinn, Mayor Mann, James M. Colman of Needham, store manager; Mark Heitman, also aged 4 of Newton; and Filene's model, Cindy Corbin.

Mostly for women

Across the Kitchen Counter

Years ago, children trudged through the snows to school warming their hands on hot freshly baked potatoes in their pockets. The potatoes would then keep warm on top of the schoolroom stove until lunch time when, along with a sandwich, the potato would provide necessary vitamins and energy as well as the added bonus of being good hunger satisfiers.

Unfortunately, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, diet-conscious people have been avoiding potatoes as though they were ice cream sundaes whereas the medium-sized spud, boiled, baked or pressure-cooked, provides only about 100 calories, or about as many as a large apple or an orange. That same spud contains worthwhile amounts of Vitamin C, two important B vitamins as well as minerals such as iron, phosphorus and potassium.

It's those sauces or gravies (or fats used in frying) that add calories; however, moistened with a little skim milk and seasoned with salt, pepper, herbs such as parsley or onion make delicious low-calorie eating.

Potatoes are classified by their shape and skin color. They are long or round, and their skins may be "white" (from white to buff color), red, or russet (normally having a brownish, rough, scaly or netted skin). They are also classified by use–there are "new" potatoes, general purpose potatoes, and baking potatoes.

"New" potatoes are best when boiled. They are generally harvested before the skins have "set". General purpose potatoes, both round and long types are available year-round and are used for boiling, frying, and baking. The most widely grown and best known baking potato is the Russet Burbank.

When shopping for potatoes, look for those that are firm, well shaped, and smooth with few eyes—they should be free from large cuts, skinned areas and decay. Don't buy potatoes that are green. Greening is caused by exposure to natural or artificial light. Sometimes only the skin is affected, but greening may penetrate the flesh. The green portions contain the alkaloid solanin which causes a bitter flavor and is said to be harmful to some people. If you find potatoes with internal defects, such as hollow in the center or severe internal discoloration, take them back to your grocer for replacement.

Has it been a long time since you've enjoyed a fluffy, white baked potato? Plan on having them soon but please, don't bake them in foil (they'll steam))–scrub them clean and rub just a touch of shortening over them because eating the skin is as delicious as the insides. Bake them at any temperature from 325 to 475 degrees depending upon what else is being cooked simultaneously (a lower heat would mean putting the potatotes in earlier); at 400 degrees a potato about 4 inches long should take approximately 50 minutes.

PIZZA POTATOES

2 large baking potatoes
1 clove garlic, minced
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ pound Italian sausage, crumbled
3 tablespoons each, chopped green pepper and pimiento
1 can (8-½ oz.) peeled tomatoes, chopped
Mozzarella cheese, grated

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Bake potatoes for 1 hour or until done. Cook garlic in oil; add sausage and let brown. When potatoes are done, cut in half and remove fles, saving jacket. Mix potato lightly with sausage, pepper, pimiento and tomato. Spoon mixture back into potato skins; top with cheese and put back in oven for another 15 minutes. Serves 4.

GOURMET POTATOES

6 medium size all purpose potatoes
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
¼ cup sour cream, at room temperature
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
¼ cup margarine
1½ cup sour cream, at room temperature one-third cup chopped green onions
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Cook potatoes in water to cover until fork test indicates they are done. Cool. Peel and shread potatoes coarsely. In a saucepan over low heat, combine cheese, ¼ cup margarine, stirring occasionally, until almost melted. Remove from heat and blend in the sour cream, onions, salt and pepper. Fold in shredded potatoes and turn into well greased 2-quart casserole. Dot with 2 tablespoons margarine. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes. Serves 8.

ORIENTAL STYLE NEW POTATOES

2 pounds new potatoes
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 cup chicken stock or bouillon
1 cup cooked green peas
1 can (5 oz.) water chestnuts, sliced
1 can (4 oz. sliced mushrooms

Meanwhile, prepare sauce; Dissolve cornstarch in chicken stock or bouillon. Bring to a boil and cook, stirring until slightly thickened and clear. Add peas water chestnuts, mushrooms and soy sauce. Heat just a few minutes. Drain cooked potatoes; pour sauce over, tossing gentle to combine. Serves 6.

BAKED POTATO SLIMS

½ cup water
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
½ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
¼ cup grated Romano (or Parmesan) cheese
1 envelope Shake 'n Bake seasoned coating mix for chicken
Salt

Pare potatoes and cut into strips (as for French fries), crinkle-cut strips, slices, triangles or cubes. Mix water with oil and Tabasco in a small shallow dish; add potatoes to moisten. Mix Romano cheese with coating mix in plastic bag. Shake excess moisture from potatoes and shake in bag, 8 to 10 pieces at a time, until evenly coated. Place potatoes in single layer on baking sheet lined with foil. Bake in 400 degree oven for 30-35 minutes (20 to 25 min. for frozen potatoes). Sprinkle with salt. Serves 4

HEAVENLY BAKED POTATO WITH SPINACH

1 pkg. Frozen spinach
1 teaspoon salt
2 eggs
½ can Cheddar cheese soup
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon minced onion
1 teaspoon chives

Cut potatoes in half, lengthwise, scoop out pulp, leaving shells intact. Put the potato pulp into your mixing bowl with all ingredients (drain cooked spinach first) and beat till smooth. Pile mixture lightly into the 8 shells. Top with a tablespoon of cheese to your liking. This is optional. Bake at 450 degrees for 10 minutes.

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026

A lovely letter from Mrs. I. N. Drucker, Newton: Question: A favorite yeast recipe of mine is the Cinnamon Rolls you had in your column quite some time ago. This recipe calls for 3 egg yolks only, as a result I have accumulated egg whites on top of egg whites. Do you have a recipe for chocolate chip egg white cookie which comes out smooth, shiny and uniform like the ones I buy in the bakery. Also any other recipes which I use over and over again.

Answer: To begin with, you'll want to be able to measure your egg whites for use in individual recipes, so be guided by this: Generally, 8-10 egg whites equal 1 cup egg whites. Here are two cookie recipes and a cake recipe that should diminish your egg white supply!

DEBBIE'S PEPPERMINT KISSES

(From Homemade Cookies, Food Editors of Farm Journal)

4 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 teaspoon peppermint extract
1½ cups brown sugar, firmly packed
1 pkg. (12 oz.) semisweet chocolate pieces

Beat egg whites, salt, cream of tartar and peppermint extract together until soft peaks form. Add brown sugar gradually, beating all the time. Beat until still peaks form. Set aside 48 chocolate pieces and fold remainder into egg white mixture. Drop teaspoonfuls 1-inch apart onto plain paper spread on baking sheet. Top each with a chocolate piece. Bake in slow oven (300 degrees) 20-25 minutes, or until set and slightly brown. Remove from paper while slightly warm this way: Remove paper from baking sheet, spread a wet towel on the hot baking sheet and place the paper of kisses on top. Let stand only 1 minute. The steam will loosen the kisses and they will slip off easily on a spatula. Makes about 4 dozen. Note: Instead of plain paper, you can line baking sheet with waxed paper.

CHOCOLATE CHIP MERINGUE COOKIES

2 egg whites
dash of salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 cup chocolate bits
1 teaspoon vanilla

Using a rotary beater, beat egg whites stiff in the upper part of a double boiler. Add salt and gradually beat in sugar. Put over boiling water and continue beating until the mixture gets sugary around the edges. Add walnuts, chocolate bits and vanilla and stir well. Drop by small teaspoonfulls onto a well greased baking sheet. Bake in a 250 degree oven for almost an hour, or until they are set and firm so that they can be removed without breaking. Cool on a rack, then store tightly covered. Yield: 1½ to 2 dozen.

MOONLIGHT CAKE

3 cups sifted cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
two-thirds cup shortening
2 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
5 egg whites

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream shortening with sugar and vanilla until fluffy. Add sifted dry ingredients and milk alternately in small amounts, beating well after each addition. Beat egg whites until stiff, but not dry and fold into batter. Pour into greased pans (3 9-inch layer pans) and bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Turn out on rack to cool. Frost with your favorite icing.

Question: Would you please include in one of your colums a recipe for a Salad Vinaigrette. Thank you.

Mrs. A. F. C., Walpole

Answer: A crunchy, zesty, delightful salad for any time of the year!

SALAD VINAIGRETTE

two-thirds cup salad oil
one-third cup vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce

1 tablespoon dried dill weed
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 tablespoon chopped chives
1 can (1 lb. 4 oz.) chick peas, drained
1 can (15 oz.) artichoke hearts, drained
1 can (6 or 8 oz.) mushrooms, drained
1 pkg. (9 oz.) frozen whole green beans, cooked, or 1 can (1 lb.) whole green beans, drained
2 cups raw cauliflowerets

Combine salad oil, vinegar, salt, sugar, Tabasco, dill, parsley and chives; beat or shake until blended. Place drained chick peas, artichoke hearts, mushrooms, green beans and cauliflowerets in large bowl. Add vinaigrette dressing and marinate in refrigerator for 3 hours or longer. Yield: 12 servings.

Question: I would like to prepare some very special Purim hamantaschen (the triangular-shaped pastries) but instead of filling them with the customary poppy seed or prune filling, I would like to fill them with either chicken or liver and serve them as appetizers. Can you help me, please? Many thanks.

Mrs. T. C., West Roxbury

Answer: Somewhat on the order of piroshki, little tricorn-shaped turnovers of seasoned pastry stuffed with, in this case, delectable chopped liver filling and sprinkled with poppy seeds, you're sure to enjoy these:

APPETIZER HAMANTASCHEN

Chicken Liver Filling

1½ pounds chicken livers
½ cup cooked green peas
1 teaspoon Accent
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup tomato sauce

Place livers on foil-lined baking sheet and broil until no longer pink on inside. Chop finely or put through a food mill. Mix with peas, Accent, salt, pepper, onion and tomato sauce in bowl.

Pastry

6 cups all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon dried dill weed
4 teaspoons caraway seeds
2 cups vegetable shortening
½ cup cold water
2 eggs, beaten
Poppy seeds (optional)

Sift flour, baking powder and salt into large bowl. Add dill and caraway seeds. Cut in shortening until like coarse meal. Gently stir in water to make a dough. Divide into 2 or 3 parts and roll out on floured surface until thin (about ⅛-inch thick). Cut into 4-inch squares. Brush with beaten egg. Place 2 tablespoons liver filling in center of each square. Fold into a triangle and seal edges. Brush tops with beaten egg. Sprinkle with poppy seeds, if desired. Bake in 400 degree oven for 20 minutes until golden brown. Yield: 18 hamantaschen.

Skin care A B C's

Haven't you wished many times there was something or someone who could tell you how too really understand your complexion?

This is what Elizabeth Arden's famous Red Door Beauty Classes are all about. For the 11th year, Jordan Marsh will effect its own Elizabeth Arden Salon—soft pink wallpaper and bright red doors—a staff of trained beauty experts under the guidance of beauty expert Olivia Heraty, will concern themselves with teaching women how to take care of their skin as well as the proper application of makeup.

At a recent luncheon, Miss Heraty, a vivacious blonde Doris Day look-alike, introduced William Hanley, president of Elizabeth Arden, who spoke of the dramatic changes taking place as a result of the firm being purchased by the Eli Lilly Company three years ago.

What do the classes teach? Classes will begin with the most important—skin care. For the city, as well as suburban dweller, there'll be an indepth discussion on pollution and how it can affect skin and hair.

The most important thing you can do for your skin is to conscientiously remove all traces of makeup before going to bed. Strangely enough, it's one of the most neglected beauty routines with the oft heard excuse: "Oh just this once, I'll skip the cleansing . . ." But the "just once" becomes a habit and that's when skin problems develop.

Elizabeth Arden offers a personal skin care system. Your beauty expert at the Red Door Classes (or your cosmetic salesgirl) will diagnose which one of the three skin types you are: normal, oily or dry.

Count the seconds as we outline the ease of say, normal skin care:

Cleanse with Skin Deep Milky Cleanser to quickly whisk away any nighttime accumulation of possible pore-clogging oil or soil. Time: Tissuing off, 25 seconds . . . with water-splashing, 35 seconds.

Tone with Skin Lotion after cleansing. Once-over with lotion soaked cotton gently "wakes up" skin . . . helps refine texture and improve moisture. Time: 25 seconds.

Moisturize with Velva Moisture film—visible one minute, transparent the next—smooths the way for more perfect makeup. Time: 20 seconds.

EVERY NIGHT

Cleanse with Skin Deep Milky Cleanser. Apply with soft, unhurried strokes and massage in gently . . . then tissue or rinse away tension, soil and makeup. Time: It's up to you—seconds if you're tired and in a hurry; longer as you unwind from the day's activities.

Tone with Skin Lotion—your assurance that every tiny trace of soil, makeup, surface pollution is thoroughly "rinsed" away. Time: 40 seconds.

Rebalance with Beauty Sleep, a very special non-greasy cream that replaces moisture lost during the day while you sleep. Time: 35 seconds.

Why should you bother to take the time to follow these simple steps? Because your face and you deserve it! The better you look, the better you'll have—so the psychologists tell us.

At the informal luncheon, Mr. William Eagan, vice-president of Jordan Marsh, spoke warmly of the unusual personalized relationship between Elizabeth Arden's cosmetic experts and Jordan's Pacesetter woman.

Complete files are kept of all Red Door "graduates," indicating skin type, as well as any skin problems and type of makeup used. Special mailings alert customers of new products available and a visit to the counter will prompt a trial application for the customer's approval.

Olivia happily informed everyone that Jordan Marsh ranked No. 1 in the country in Red Door Beauty Clinic attendance. "In fact," she smiled, "last year the overflow of about 200 women had to be redirected to classes held in the suburban branches."

At the classes, you will receive a fabulous collection of Arden preparations plus a $2 credit toward any Arden purchase for only the admission of $5. To enroll, call: 426-9000 Ext. 2922 and 654.

Twelve two-hour classes will be held, March 18-23. Monday—1:30 and 5:30 p.m., Tuesday—10 a.m. and 2 p.m., Wednesday—1:30 and 5:30 p.m., Thursday—10 a.m. and 2 p.m., Friday—10 a.m. and 2 p.m., Saturday, 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

PREDICTION: A clearly beautiful future for your face when you graduate the Elizabeth Arden course!

Considering program for asthmatic children

The establishment of a physical conditioning program for asthmatic children is currently being considered by the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

The Association, which is supported by Christmas Seal contributions, would like to organize a breathing exercise and physical conditioning program for asthmatic children in the Norfolk County-Newton area, as well as an educational program for their parents.

The program would begin next fall, depending on community interest, and would be held in a YMCA facility. Breathing exercises have been demonstrated to be valuable in child's management of his asthmatic condition. Participation in group recreational activities could improve a child's attitude toward his asthma and increase his self-confidence

Parents interested in having their children participate in such a program may contact the Lung Association at 745 High Street, Westwood, Massachusetts, 02090, or call 326-4081.

Make sure your range is on the level —if it is on uneven ground, cakes won't rise evenly.

Kallah Weekend at Temple Reyim

Temple Reyim, Newton, will hold its sixth annual Kallah Weekend March 20-22. The theme of this year's Kallah is "Our Jewish World — The Message in the Media."

The Temple Reyim Kallah entails a full weekend of Shabbat services and three lecture and discussion sessions with a distinguished scholar. Guest lecturer for this year's Kallah will be Gershon Winer, formerly dean of the Herzliah Jewish Teachers' Seminary prior to his moving to Israel in 1970.

Winer will elaborate on major themes of modern Jewish development, as seen through Yiddish and Hebrew literature. A first lecture, on "The Romance of the Shtetl" will explore Yiddish literature as a reflection of Jewish ideas and universal values, as seen especially in the writings of I. L. Peretz, Sholom Aleichem and Abraham Reisin.

A second lecture will discuss the ideas that support and propel Israel's society, reflected in modern Hebrew literature as well as in the writings of the founding fathers.

In the third lecture, Winer will examine changes in Jewish consciousness in the last decade, and the meaning of the challenges of 1967 and 1973 to established Jewish attitudes. In this discussion he will bring insights into ideological currents developing in Israel during recent months.

Winer is a graduate of Yeshiva, Columbia and Michigan State Universities and of the Jewish Theological Seminary. He has served as rabbi in Grand Rapids, Michigan, and on the faculty of Long Island University as well as at the Herzliah Seminary.

He has continued to teach since moving to Israel in 1970. Winer has written English, Hebrew and Yiddish articles on contemporary Jewish thoughts and literatures, and has recently authored a book, "The Founding Fathers of Israel."

The Temple Reyim Kallah maintains the ancient tradition of learning for Jews at this season when, in Talmudic times, Laymen would gather at the academies to study with leading scholars.

Previous Temple Reyim Kallah themes have included Jewish history, the prophetic and priestly traditions, the beliefs of modern Jews, the humanity of God, and the contemporary search for Jewish identity.

Working with Rabbi Philip Kieval, the Kallah Committee is chaired by Mrs. Sylvia Apelbaum and includes Mrs. Charlotte Chipman, Mrs. Carolyn Essig, Mrs. Sally Green, Mrs. Clara Miller, Harry Perlmutter, Mrs. Eleanor Scholl, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Schneider, Dr. Theodore Singer, Dr. David Stollar, Mrs. Selma Waldstein and Bernard Zigman.

Tha Kallah Weekend is made possible by the sponsorship of Mrs. Ella Blauer, Mr. and Mrs. George Chaletsky, Mrs. Lucille Cutler, Dr. and Mrs. Alvin Essig, Mr. and Mrs. Saul Goldweitz, Mr. and Mrs. Sol Kaufman, Dr. and Mrs. Davide Limentani, Mr. and Mrs.Morris Katz, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Milton, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Perlmutter, Mr. Joseph Rosenshine, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Slater, and Mr. and Mrs. David Wilson.

The public is invited to attend the Kallah Weekend activities, which will be held on Friday evening, March 20, and Saturday and Sunday mornings, March 21 and 22. Further information may be obtained by calling Temple Reyim at 527-2410.

Auburndale churches to continued shared ministry

After assessing two months experience in holding joint Sunday worship services, the Auburndale Congregational Church and the Centenary United Methodist Church will continue this shared ministry during March and April.

The sole exception to the general plan may be the holding of Easter services in each congregation's building at different hours. Those plans are not yet final. An Easter sunrise service is scheduled at 6 a.m. at the Weston Reservoir.

During March, the 10:30 a.m. services will be held at Centenary, 230 Central St. The Centenary sanctuary is smaller and more easily heated. During April, services will be held at the Congregational Church at Hancock Street and Woodland Road.

As in the first two months, the preaching responsibilities will be shared by Rev. Arthur B. Osgood, pastor of Centenary, and Rev. David B. Kreider, pastor of the Congregational Church.

Each church voted separately on a proposal to worship together in March and April. The Centenary decision was made in a special congregational meeting held last month and the diaconate of the Congregational Church was responsible for its decision.

An advantage of the joint services is the enlargement of the musical program through the combined choirs. The organist-choir directors, Albert Williams of Centenary and Lois Regestein of the Congregational Church, share accompaniment and directing responsibilities.

During the worship period, children of both congregations attend an Enrichment Program conducted by members of the congregations.

Couple establishing award in memory of daughter Wendy

A new award for community service has been established at Hebrew College by Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell Breslau of Newton in memory of their daughter, Wendy.

According to Eli Grad, president of Hebrew College, "the Wendy R. Breslau Citation and Award, will be give annually to one or more students at the college, who by their words and actions during the school year, have exhibited outstanding concern for the welfare and well-being of their fellow human beings and society in general."

Consisting of a certificate and cash grant, the award is funded by a contribution from Mr. and Mrs. Breslau and a matching grant from the Gillette Company, where Breslau serves as associate trademark counsel.

Recipients will be selected by a committee composed of students, faculty and staff at Hebrew College, based on recommendations from the students and faculty. The committee will work closely with the Combined Jewish Philanthropies of Greater Boston in developing the standards of community service which the award will recognize.

In establishing the award, Breslau stated: "I know an award at Hebrew College for social welfare action would be something Wendy would feel to be in keeping with her own philosophy of life."

Miss Breslau was killed in an automobile accident on January 5, 1972, while returning to Vassar College, where she was a sophomore.

Wendy Breslau

Born in Boston to Mr. Breslau and his first wife, the late Estelle Altman Breslau, she was raised in Newton and educated in the Newton school system.

She was graduated from Temple Emanuel Hebrew School and attended its regional high school. She had attended Camp Young Judea and Camp Yavneh, a division of Hebrew College.

She participated in a variety of social welfare activities in Newton, including Newton Hotline, the Beginnings, Freeport Foundation, Newton Youth Center and Project Turnabout.

At Vassar, she was a tutor for children in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where the college is located, served as a freshman advisor, was active in chapel affairs and was a member of the College's Financial Aid Committee.

She also participated in the production of "The Electric Company" children's television show.

Newton fifth graders give money to CARE

A fifth grade class at the Mason Rice Elementary School in Newton Centre has contributed enough money to CARE to give 30,300 hungry children overseas a protein-rich bowl of porridge, or deliver more than one ton of food overseas.

The fifth grade students were able to raise their $101.00 contribution to CARE by setting up a "snack bar" for a week at their school. The food was all made by Miss Corrine Smyth's fifth grade class.

The students sold homemade cookies, cakes, hot chocolate and popcorn. Each person who bought something was given a CARE lapel pin to wear and to show he-she participated.

The faculty members in charge of the project were Miss Smyth, and Miss Martha McDowell, a student teacher from Lesley College. The student leaders were: Laura Pill, president; Kim Johnson, vice president; and Adam Hurwitz. The committee leaders in charge of various aspects of the sale were: Adam Blumenstein who headed the clean-up, Jeffrey Okun, who headed cocoa, and Kim Johnson, who was in charge of food.

Carolyn Lockhart, New England field representative of CARE, praised the efforts and success of the students of the fifth grade and reported that the class had requested that the funds be allocated to CARE's Food Crusade Program in which 26 million people will be fed this year. Of this number 20 million will be fed on a daily basis and 6 million disaster victims will be given food. CARE is currently in 34 countries overseas and what've you got?

A lot of brands are talking about their filters lately.

But how many have something to say about the taste end? The tobacco.

One brand that has plenty to say is Kent.

We insist on lower-leaf tobaccos for our cigarette. (They're a lot milder than the leaves at the top.) And we go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states for the 24 different tobaccos we use in our blend.

In fact, we place as much importance on our tobaccos as we do on our famous Micronite filter.

Because it takes both to give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

Asks sealing of felony records after 10 years

A bill filed by Rep. Paul A. Schneiders (D-Canton) that would "seal" certain criminal records was heard by the Judiciary Committee this week.

The bill provides that after ten years records regarding felonies can be sealed just as misdemeanors can be now. However, judges can see the records if the felon is convicted of a subsequent crime, and certain police officials can see them if the felon applies for employment in any police capacity.

Rep. Schneiders said that a man should be able to seek employment without having to fear that a ten year old record will come back to haunt him. He said the bill has provisions to protect the public's interest while at the same time offering the convict a new start.

Sox Infield

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Red Sox infield candidates went through their first formal defensive workout Monday and third baseman Rico Petrocelli's right elbow passed the preliminary tests.

Neither Petrocelli nor any of the other infielders were permitted by Manager Darrell Johnson to throw hard, but Petrocelli, who underwent surgery in August for removal of calcium deposits, was watched closely.

"He didn't complain at all," Johnson said. "He didn't really throw hard but the throws he made were accurate and he didn't seem to be hodling back at all."

Johnson and Petrocelli have agreed that the veteran infielder will not attempt to make a hard throw for several weeks for fear that muscles still recovering from the incision would be damaged.

Also participating in the drill was 39-year-old shortstop Luis Aparicio, who made his belated appearance after being detained in Venezuela by the illness of his eight-year-old son, Nelson. He checked in at 161 pounds, three less than at this time last year, and said he is going to work harder in spring training because he feels an early season ankle injury was due to his being in relatively poor condition when the 1973 season opened.

Friday night lectures at Museum of Science

From plastics to plants, from nematodes to needles - Friday nights at Boston's Museum of Science during March will introduce visitors to a wide variety of scientific fields.

One-night-only programs on Giant Molecules, Getting Ready for Spring, Parasites and Man, and Acupuncture will be offered at no charge above Museum admission, which, on Friday nights, is reduced to half ($1 adults and 50c children).

March 8 will feature Giant Molecules, an auditorium program designed for laymen on polymers, both natural and manmade. Emphasizing a variety of plastics and their structure, the program will be given at 7 and 8:15 p.m.

The following Friday, March 15, the focus will shift to Parasites and Man, an auditorium program, also geared to the interested layman, that uses a closed circuit tv system and large projection screen to give visitors a closeup look at nematode worms, protozoa, and other parasites common to man. The presentation is scheduled for 7 and 8:15 p.m.

Springtime will come to the Museum on March 22, when the evening will be devoted to demonstrations and tips on preparing for nature's yearly rebirth. Birdwatchers will benefit from an informal discussion of birding and the best ways to go about it this spring. Both experienced and novice gardeners will gain helpful ideas from a movie on composting; demonstrations on the growing and use of herbs, and organic gardening; and question-and-answer sessions with several gardening specialists from Lexington Gardens. All activities are scheduled to continue throughout the evening.

On March 29, visitors will learn about the ancient oriental practice of acupuncture from Dr. James Frederickson of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, and Dr. Han Twu Chiang, Massachusetts General Hospital. The 7:30 p.m. lecture, illustrated with an acupuncture doll, needles, and a chart, will be followed by a question-and-answer period.

Every Friday night, the Museum's Skyline Room is open for dinner from 5 until 8 p.m., and the Friendly Shop serves sandwiches and snacks throughout the evening.

There is ample parking for a nominal fee in the Museum's garage, and the MBTA Green Line stops at Science Park Station, just 200 yards away.

Date is extended for basic education grants

First-time, full-time students who are pursuing their education after high school and are in financial need may still apply for a Basic Educational Opportunity Grant from the Federal Government, HEW Regional Director Robert Fulton announced today.

The deadline for submission of applications has been extended from Feb. 1 to April 1, 1974.

Fulton explained that the deadline was being extended to accommodate those potentially eligible students who may not have been aware of the assistance available under this new program. He emphasized that funds still are available and that each eligible student would be entitled to a basic grant for the full academic year as long as his application is filed by April 1.

Basic grants, the newest Federal financial assistance program for post-secondary students, is in its first year of operation. Because of the small size of the initial appropriation from the Congress, compared with the Administration's requests, grants have been limited to first-time, full-time students at colleges, universities, vocational and technical schools.

The size of the basic grant depends upon the financial need of the student and his family. Individual awards for the 1973-74 school year are averaging $260 with a maximum of $460.

The money can be used to help defray the students' costs for tuition, fees, books, housing, meals, and miscellaneous expenses.

To apply for a basic grant for use during the 1973-74 academic year, an "Application for Determination of Expected Family Contribution" must be obtained, filled out, and mailed to P.O. Box B, Iowa City, Iowa, 52240.

Within a month the student is notified of the amount of his family's expected contribution. He then submits the notification to the school of his choice, which calculates the amount of the Basic Grant to which he is entitled.

Application forms may be obtained from the student financial aid officer at the student's school or from Box 84, Washington, D.C. 20044.

Other forms of Federal student assistance, such as Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants, College Work-Study, National Direct Student and Guaranteed Student Loans, may be available in addition to Basic Grants.

Receipt of a basic grant in no way limits a student's chances to obtain other financial assistance as long as that student needs additional assistance to pursue post-secondary education.

Tigers edged in State Tournament

By JACK GREEN

A final second shot by Steve Glennon gave Dedham High a 61 to 59 victory over Newton North High in Division I South of the state basketball tournament at Scituate last week.

The win advanced Dedham to the semi-final round. Dedham had earlier defeated Newton South.

A press helped Dedham to a 12-4 lead in the first quarter. Newton came back and led 19-18 a the close of the first period.

Dedham's press upset Newton's offense in the second quarter, and the Marauders gained a 41-31 halftime lead. Dedham double and triple teamed Newton center Peter Laskaris.

Newton's Bob Kinsella scored eight points in the third period. Kinsella drove on Dedham big man Jeff Dillon for this baskets. A buzzer shot by Tiger Keith Glasser closed Dedham's lead to four points, 51-47, at the end of the quarter.

Newton North tied the score with 1:55 remaining in the game. Dedham, a very disciplined team, worked for a last shot.

With five seconds left, the ball popped out of a Dedham player's hand and it was picked up by Glennon.

Glennon scored as time ran out.

Historical perspective of South basketball offered

By LEWIS FREEDMAN

Newton South's basketball history does not shine like the glint in Auric Goldfinger's eye, nor has it been as eventful as a single school year's excitement at Catholic Memorial.

The Lions were 11-12 in 1962 and 11-8 in 1972, the first winning record in school history. A superstar, Bruce MacLean played for the first quintet. A slick passing playmaker, Billy Hoban, led the second

Of course, in the old days (four years ago) the Lions competed in the Suburban League, which compared to the Dual County League. Their current home is the Pacific 8.

But all that aside, Newton South was a for real basketball team this winter, and it showed it in the school's first trip to the state tournament, a first-round game with Bay State League champion Dedham, at Waltham High.

Dedham, 16-2, is still carrying on the tradition developed by Jim Calhoun, now coach at Northeastern, before he departed in 1972. That year the Marauders were 20-0 in the regular season.

South was 12-5, but suffered a mini-collapse during the second half of the season after guard Mark Jefferson was ruled ineligible.

Jefferson was running the offensive show so well for new coach Dick Walker's club, that he was named as a second team league all-star anyway.

There were about 400 people in the stands in Waltham, last week, mostly from Dedham, and those from South had come to bury a past lined with heroes like Steve Cooper, Steve Parnell, Cliff Greene, and MacLean, all who labored in vain in the rugged Suburban League.

That was the losing past. This was the winning present, and hopefully, with seven juniors on the squad, the winning future.

The name of the game from the opening flick of the referee's wrist was full-court press. Dedham wasn't going to make anyone forget UCLA with its harrying tactics, but South guards Howie Pinderhughes (in place of Jefferson) and Mark Aronson had more trouble picking out downfield receivers than Tommy Yewcic ever did.

It was 4-2, and 6-4, and 6-6, and then Dedham suddenly realized it had two fellows six-foot-five to one for Newton South and the Marauders started going to the hoop.

By halftime, Lion center Rich Spector, an all-star two years running, was sitting on the bench with three fouls, Pinderhughes was sitting next to him, and Dedham was ahead, 38-24, after a 23-point second quarter.

It was also apparent by that time that South had only two warm bodies in the lineup, Aronson, who was hitting long, soft jumpers with the accuracy of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's sky-hook, and hard-nosed forward Bob Harris, who, while not shooting for a high percentage, was holding his own.

It was not South's day, and it's too bad it wasn't because Dedham could have been had this day. South could actually have won a game in the Division I half of the tournament, where it was placed in the draw, despite playing in a Division II league.

The second half was remarkable because the Lions just wouldn't fold up and go hide in the corner with a 30-point loss. But Dedham wouldn't fold its lead.

South got within 12 points twice. Aronson led the offense with jump shots.

Dedham's mainstays, Jeff Dillon (20 points, 14 rebounds) and Steve Glennon, 17 points, wouldn't let this one get away.

It was finally clear who the winner was with only a few minutes left when Dedham upped its lead to 18 points on the way to the 72-57 finale.

The season's over, but this time when people say "Wait until next year!" the connotations will be positive.

Aldermen may ask for increase in hockey funds

Discussion in the aldermanic Finance Committee last week may bring good news to the 500 participants in the Newton Youth Hockey Association program and to those who would like to participate.

Several members of the committee are considering asking Mayor Mann to restore the amount cut from the Recreation Department budget request.

The total amount requested by the Recreation Department as its contribution to NYHA, which is essentially a private organization with a budget of over $67,500 a year, was $11,400. The amount allowed by the mayor was $6,900.

Finance Committee vice-chairman Ald. Richard Bullwinkle agreed with a suggestion offered by Michael LeConti, an observer at the meeting. That provision should be made for the boys whose parents cannot afford the $75 fee now charged. (The fee is expected to go up next year.)

The proposal was made to earmark most, if not all, the restored money, if granted by the mayor, for scholarships and fee reduction for such boys.

Mayoral assistant James Salter seemingly agreed with the proposal.

It was also pointed out that in many other cities and towns the Recreation Department operates the hockey program.

Golf lessons under the direction of Dan Meany will resume at the Newton Community Service Centers on March 15.

Meany's course consists of seven one-hour lessons which cover stance, the driver, fairway woods, long irons, middle irons, short irons, chipping and putting.

Classes will begin on Friday evening, March 15 and are scheduled for 7, 8 and 9 p.m. Offering assistance for both beginner and advanced golfer, lessons have limited enrollment to insure individual attention.

For additional information or registration, people may contact the Community Center at 969-5906, or visit 429 Cherry St., West Newton during the week between 9 a.m. and noon, or between 1 p.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Girl Scouts to celebrate movement's 62nd year

Girl Scouts in Needham, Dedham and Norwood and throughout the country will be demonstrating the vitality and relevance of the Girl Scout program as they celebrate the 62nd birthday of the movement during Girl Scout Week, March 10-16.

Although Scouting has changed to stay up with or ahead of the times, it's basic elements remain the same, and are as meaningful today as ever, perhaps more so. While we yearn for a society where people are honest, fair, willing to help where they are needed, friendly, considerate, use resources wisely, and protect and improve the world around them, these qualities are all part of the law that Girl Scouts learn and uphold.

This year, Scouts in towns of Needham, Dedham and Norwood will be selling cookies during Girl Scout Week, but they will also have activities on designated days of the week that show the range and variety of Scout program - religious services, homemaking, citizenship, health and safety, international friendship, the arts and the out-of-doors.

Girl Scouting does a lot for our communities and for its youth, and deserves the support and encouragement of all residents. Scouting could not exist without adult volunteers, troop sponsors, cookie buyers, meeting places, financial support, council sustaining members, and interested citizens. All these add up to community support, the best birthday present Needham, Dedham and Norwood can give to the Girl Scouts.

It's a crewel, crewel world

DEDHAM—Have you noticed how the most admired homes you have visited lately are decorated with original works of art?

Does it put your department store reproductions to shame? Well, it is not too late to learn a new craft and improve your home's decor at the same time.

This spring, the Dedham Community House is offering an 8-week course in Creative Crewel on Thursday evening, 7:30-9 p.m. beginning March 14.

By the time you complete this course you will not only be accomplished in crewel, but you will also know how to create a work of art from start to finish - learning how to design a canvas, select the proper colors, the most effective stitches, through to blocking and mounting of the canvas.

You will never need further instruction, unless, like so many others, you just like to be part of a congenial group working together amid the elegant surroundings of the Community House.

Mrs. Donna Gould of Needham is the popular instructor for this course. Mrs. Gould also teaches needlepoint at the Community House on Tuesday mornings, and needlepoint and crewel courses at the Needham YMCA.

Classes are always small at the Community House so that individual instruction can be provided. The Dedham Community House is a non-profit organization, conveniently located on High Street in the center of Dedham. Classes are open to residents of all surrounding communities, as well as Dedham.

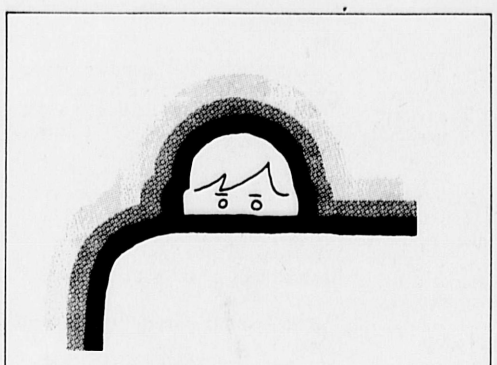
The Workshop at the Dedham Community House is alive with the sound of hammering, sawing and sanding of enthusiastic boys (and girls, too) who are learning all about the wonderful world of wood under the expert supervision of Bruce Leary, a talented instructor who teaches both carpentry and furniture refinishing classes at the Community House.

Carpentry classes for boys and girls, ages 6-12, are held every Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday afternoons, 3:30 and 4:30 p.m.

New classes begin as soon as eight children are enrolled. In order to provide individualized instruction to the young woodworkers, class size is limited, so register now by calling Eileen Ferriter at 329-5740.

In this era of mass produced objects, wouldn't it be exciting for your child to design, build and use his own original lamp, table, desk set or puzzle - to take a piece of wood and transform it into a functional object? Let your child experience the joy of that by enrolling him in a carpentry class at the Dedham Community House.

BENJAMIN G. RAE III of Newton has completed a course in the 1974 Winter Realtors' Institute of Massachusetts. The course covered various aspects of real estate in 30 hours of instruction. Rae is president of Futurity Thread Co.—Real Estate Division.



is God A STRANGER TO YOUR child?

He needn't be. In the Christian Science Sunday School, children learn that God is not a stranger, but a close friend. Through weekly Bible Lessons they learn to turn to His all-embracing love for protection and help. They are prepared to meet each day's problems successfully.

Bring your child to our Sunday School this week. We'd love to welcome him.

Need help on taxes? Visit the library

WESTWOOD—As the income tax filing deadline approaches, a visit to the Westwood Public Library may be in order to consult the various resources and publications available there to help the taxpayer.

J. K. Lasser's "Your Income Tax", 1974 edition, is a very useful tax guide with detailed information on figuring income and all important deducations. The library has two income tax guides published by the Internal Revenue Service "Your Federal Income Tax" for individuals and "Tax guide for small business."

In addition the library subscribes to several very valuable tax services, Prentice-Hall's "Federal Tax Guide and State Tax Guide," "Tax Ideas" and a complete collection of sample Federal tax forms with official instructions. Also available is the "Massachusetts State Tax Reporter" and "Federal Tax Return Manual", both published by Commerce Clearing House.

All of these timely and helpful publications are available in the Business Reference section of the Westwood Public Library. The librarian will be glad to assist anyone in making use of these materials.

In other library news, the circulating art print collection of the Westwood Public Library has been greatly expanded by the addition of 21 mini prints. These are miniature, full color reproductions of works of famous artsist such as Cezanne, Michelangelo, Picasso, Rubens, Toulouse-Lautrec, Van Gogh, Velazquez and Andrew Wyeth. Each print is attractively framed and ready to hang.

These mini-prints may be borrowed in pairs and will circulate for six weeks. An additional selection is now available in the Children's Department and may be borrowed by the children along with books.

The circulation of art prints is fast becoming one of the Westwood Public Library's most popular services. As funds permit, the collection will be expanded to meet the requests.

What to do about silent drive to discredit Calvin Coolidge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Strange things are happening in China again.

In a move somewhat reminiscent of the Cultural Revolution a few years ago, the Peking regime has undertaken a massive campaign to discredit Confucius.

Everywhere the people turn, it is said, they encounter anti-Confucius posters and other critical material.

To understand the impact this has on the Chinese, try to imagine what it would be like if the U.S. government suddenly began an intensive drive to discredit Calvin Coolidge.

Coolidge, of course, has not been dead as long as Confucius, who expired some 2,000 years ago. Therefore, it might even be said the two statesmen-philosophers are separated by a good-sized generation gap.

Nevertheless, the sayings of Coolidge are the closest thing we have in America to the sayings of Confucius with respect to their influence on the nation's political morality.

Quoted below are a few of the sayings of each. See if you can guess which is Confucius and which is Coolidge.

—"The truly virtuous man in desiring success for himself strives to help others succeed."

—Economy is idealism in its most practical form."

—"Virtue is to love men and wisdom is to understand men."

—"The business of America is business."

—"Within the four seas all men are brothers."

—"I do not choose to run for President in 1928."

—"What you do not wish for yourself, do not do to others."

—"When a great many people are unable to find work, unemployment results."

The four generations of Americans who have been steeped in the sayings of Coolidge will have no trouble recognizing that every second utterance above fell from the lips of our 30th President.

How would we feel were we confronted with posters, billboards and bumperstickers reviling Coolidge as an enemy of the people and an all-around nogoodnik?

Bewildered, to say the least.

Implicit in the attack on Confucius is a message to the Chinese people that all of the sage's sayings are now inoperative.

If you can picture the sayings of Coolidge going down the philosophical drain, you can emphathize with the Chinese during the anti-Confucius campaign.

It must be a difficult readjustment, comparable to our being told that unemployment has no connection with being out of work.

Waco attorney succeeds in getting longest murder sentences

By ASHLEY P. CHESHIRE

FTRT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — Ward Casey, former assistant district attorney at Waco, Tex., has taken his preference for tough punishment to a new job and now argues the fate of felons in the fourth largest county in Texas.

In two years at Waco the round-faced young man with the easy smile obtained the longest murder sentences in McLennan County history—5,000 years. He did it three times.

Now he has a small but modern office in the gray stone Tarrant County Criminal Courts Building. It is a long way from teaching grades eight through 12 at Sabine Pass to Criminal District Court No. 1, and Casey knows how he got there.

"We have an adversary system of justice, and if you're going to be a trial lawyer, you try to win and you try to win big," he says. "If you're going to hire somebody, you hire somebody who will win big."

His biggest wins involved Willie Lee Stokes, Eddie Ray Harris and Charles Wayne Anderson. In each case he instructed the jury he would be asking for a sentence roughly 70 times the average lifespan of man.

Stokes killed an 8-year-old girl he picked up at a neighborhood drive-in. Despite his 5,000-year sentence, Casey said, "He is still eligible for parole in 9½ years.

"But the people on parole and pardons boards have to look at this and if they see something unusual, they might think the jury intended for him to stay in jail."

Harris "killed his granddaddy and his great aunt. He hacked them to death with a butcher knife for no apparent motive and then he came up with an insanity plea."

Anderson was separated from his wife. "One night he goes and gets a shotgun and a knife and puts them in this hunting bag—I called it his 'handydandy murder kit'—and he splattered his wife all over the wall with the shotgun and when his little boy took off running across the backyard trying to get away, he shot and wounded him," Casey said.

Anderson also pleaded insanity.

"That psychology is sort of contagious in the jail," Casey said. "If it works for one, they all want to try it, and we kind of wanted to break it up."

Keep those teeth healthy

At the present time, some 25 million adults have lost all their teeth, and another 25 million have lost half of them. Yet dental authorities say that most tooth decay and tooth loss could be prevented.

The kind of toothbrush used and the method of brushing can make the difference. Dental researchers say a hard brush can scratch enamel. They prefer soft bristles, set in a slim, rounded head with makes it easy to reach all tooth surfaces.

You should use the toothbrush gently but for a sufficient length of time to reach not only the outside front, back and top surfaces of the teeth, but in between.

For teeth which are placed close together, dental floss can be used, but your dentist should show you how to use it.

Incidentally, tooth troubles seem to have developed in man after he went off a milk-and-fruit diet onto such goodies as meat and sweets. Toothpicks seem to have been the first cleaners, but the first real cleaner and polisher was a piece of a certain tree root, "siwak." It is still used in parts of Africa and the Mideast. Not until the 19th century was the modern toothbrush invented, considered a great luxury at first, worthy of gold, ivory or silver handles.

The modern brush may be made of boar bristles, but more often of nylon. At first, many people disliked nylon bristles because they were always hard, but now soft nylon bristles have been developed.

Newton girl gymnasts win in U.S. state meet

Three Newton girls, Lee Pistone, 12, Marcie Ravech, 14, and Cindy Arafe, 14, competed in the first annual state U.S.G.F. meet program held over the past two weekends and had some outstanding success. The competition involves both compulsory and optional exercises and culminated on Sunday in Springfield, Mass. It was judged by national level officials and this competition qualifies young gymnasts to proceed down the long, hard road to national and perhaps international tournaments.

Ms. Pistone won the Most Valuable Gymnast Trophy for the best combined All-Around score and two first places for the highest compulsory and optional scores in her division. Marcie Bavech also won the coveted Most Valuable Gymnast Trophy and two first places for the same feat in her division.

Marcie scored a total All-Around score of 70.15 out of a possible 80.00! Her performance included a superb Balance Beam routine which received a score of 9.4—the highest of the entire competition. Cindy Arafe, who was competing in her first major meet took a third place in both the optional and compulsory parts of the meet.

The girls are scheduled to compete in six more U.S.G.F. meets this season. They are trained by Dr. Joe Massimo, Chief Psychologist of the Newton Public Schools and a national level women's coach.

Backman opposes Moscow as site for 1980 Olympic Games

Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline) appeared before the Committee on Federal Financial Assistance in support of a resolution (S.507) to the United States Olympic Committee against holding the 1080 Olympic Games in Moscow.

Sen. Backman stated, "The Olympic Games were instituted as a symbol of respect for the human rights of all people, based on international brotherhood and the mutual goal of peace. The Olympics have traditionally instilled hope into our lives by bringing together athletes from all nations with varying social, economic and political backgrounds to compete against each other in harmony.

"The fundamental principle of the International Olympic Committee states that, 'no discrimination . . . is allowed against any country or person on grounds of race, religion or politics.' Yet at the World Student Games in 1973 in this very same city of Moscow we saw a shameful display of Soviet unsportsmanship when uniformed Soviet soldiers filled arenas where Israeli teams were playing to stop spectators from entering. Throughout the competition, the Israeli teams were harassed by the Soviet hosts.

"Furthermore, the Soviet Union is in continued violation of the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights which stated: 'Everyone has the right to leave any country, including his own, and to return to his country.'

"The Soviet Union has flagrantly disregarded the articles of Human Rights in regard to emigration of Soviet Jews. Even more serious is the fact that Soviet Jews do not receive equal protection of law within the country and are continually harassed, disallowed job opportunities and imprisoned without trial.

"The Jackson-Vanik Amendment, which has passed the United States House and now before the United States Senate, would withhold Most Favored Nation status from the Russians until they permit Soviet Jews to travel freely and restore fundamental human rights to Jews.

"By its studied treatment of Jews, by its actions toward the Israeli team at the World Student Games, the Soviet Union has forbeited its right to hold the Olympic Games in Moscow

"The Olympic Games should be held in a location which embodies the fundamental principles of human decency and international justice. Moscow falls short of this goal."

Anonymous gift to Andover-Newton

Andover Newton President Roy Pearson announced recently that an anonymous $500,000 contribution has been made to the $2,000,000 Andover Newton Reaffirmation Campaign.

Pearson made the announcement at the kickoff luncheon of the Boston-Worcester Area Primary Gifts Division held recently in Boston.

"More than money," said Pearson, "this gift is an inspirational symbol for all of us as we move into the active phases of our campaign."

In making the announcement President Pearson highlighted three objectives of the $2,000,000 effort which are: to provide additional endowment for student aid and faculty support, to enlarge and improve the library facilities, and to enrich and improve upon the general campus complex.

"I believe," said Pearson, "that it is this campaign that will allow Andover Newton to celebrate its 200th year in 2007 as a stronger institution even more capable of meeting the challenges of the ministry in the 21st century."

The school is located in Newton Centre, and has 769 full and part time students enrolled including: 19 Anglican, 117 Baptist, 14 Lutheran, 29 Methodist, 17 Presbyterian, 63 Roman Catholics and 184 Church of Christ students.

Notre Dame's Phelps hoop coach of the year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Richard "Digger" Phelps, an energetic, dapper young man who in only three seasons has raised Notre Dame's basketball program from the doldrums to national prominence, today was named Coach of the Year by United Press International.

The 32-year-old Phelps, who guided the Irish to a 24-2 regular season record, including a stunning 71-70 upset of UCLA that snapped the Bruins' record 88-game winning streak, was an easy winner in a balloting of 241 sports writers and sportscasters across the nation.

Phelps received 107 votes to easily outdistance six-time Coach of the Year John Wooden of UCLA. Wooden, whose club was beaten three times this season after going undefeated the previous two years, polled 43 votes. Buzz Ridl of Pittsburgh was third with 23 votes followed by Roy Skinner of Vanderbilt with 18 and Norm Sloan of top-ranked North Carolina State with 17. 'Sawnp4 ,-t7eiving at least two votes were Lute Olsen of Long Beach State, Eddie Sutton of Creighton, Ted Owens of Kansas, Johnny Orr of Michigan and Bob Boyd of Southern California.

Phelps is the first Notre Dame basketball coach ever to be awarded UPI's Coach of the Year honor, and he achieved it by combining high-powered recruiting with an abundance of court knowledge.

When Phelps arrived at Notre Dame three seasons ago after one outstanding season as the head coach of Fordham, everyone agreed that it would just be a matter of time before he turned the Irish into a national power.

"If anyone can rebuild your basketball program, Digger Phelps can. He is one of the best young coaches in the country," said Marquette Coach Al McGuire at the time Phelps took over.

In Phelps' first year the Irish, young and inexperienced, suffered through a 6-20 campaign, but Phelps' recruiting and patience began to pay off last season as Notre Dame finished with an 18-12 record that included a second place finish in the National Invitation Tournament.

Friars still best in NE

BOSTON (UPI) — Tournament-bound Providence College dominated the final UPI New England coaches basketball poll, taking all 16 first-place ballots cast.

Providence, 26-3, and bound for the NCAA playoffs, completed its season with impressive wins over Canisius and St. John's and led all Division I teams with 80 points.

In all, five of the top six teams chosen by university and college coaches across the region received post-season tournament invitations. Massachusetts, Connecticut, Boston College and Fairfield will appear in the National Ivitational Tournament in New York City.

Massachusetts, 20-4, wound up in second place with a total of 58 points. Connecticut, 18 7, jumped from fourth into third place with 42 points as Boston College, 18-8, dropped to fourth.

Brown, 17-9, nosed out Fairfield for the fifth slot with 16 points. Fairfield, 17-8, picked up 11.

Recreation notes

Numerous youth programs in city

The warm weather has effectively ended the outdoor ice skating and tobogganing season, Recreation Supervisor William J. Barry recently reported.

The youth center programs for young people are going well. A recent Saturday night dance held at the Unitarian Church in West Newton Square was attended by over 200. There has been a change in the format of the centers of late. Friday evenings there is a drop-in center at the Newton Community Center on Cherry Street, and Saturday nights, a gym program at Warren Junior High. These programs for junior high and senior high age youngsters run from 7 to 11 p.m. each evening. A new youth center opened this past Saturday night at the Meadowbrook Junior High.

Nick Siciliano directs a youth center at the Emerson School Saturday nights from 7 to 11 p.m. At the Angier School, Mark Alterior directs a family night, Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. Beverley Kandler and Mark Lennon conduct a teenage program on Thursday nights from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. A youth center gym program is held each Friday and Saturday evening at the McKenzie Center of Sacred Heart Parish in Newton Center.

Floor hockey and basketball are the popular activities for junior and senior high boys who attend the Thursday night programs at the Hamilton School from 7 to 9 p.m. Steve Chapman is in charge. Junior high and senior high girls play both games on Wednesday nights from 7 to 9 p.m., directed by Jean Cole.

Bob Hathaway is the director of the Franklin School program for junior and senior high boys Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9 p.m. A similar program is held for girls on Wednesday nights.

In the city basketball program, the teams representing George's Cafe and the Troubadours are atop "A" Division of the American League with identical 6 - 1 records. Second is the Boys Club 5 - 1. The Stearns Club and the Waban Wonders have 5 - 3 records.

In "B" Division, the Big Blues are in first, 7 - 1; Ziphaels in second, 6 - 1; and Upper Falls is in third place with a 5 - 1 record. The fact that four teams are tied for fourth place indicates a good balance in the League, and poses the possibility of special playoffs.

Despite the fact that there are still five weeks left in the basketball season, Barry reports he is getting calls about the softball program due to start in May. He asks that managers and representatives of last year's teams contact him at 969-3171 to signify their intention of returning to league play this year. The league, for adults, is limited to 24 teams.

A Saint Patrick's party will be held at Jackson Gardens March 18, while Parker House has scheduled its own Saint Patrick's celebration for March 20.

Community schools

Activities at Emerson and Oak Hill

The Emerson School, in its sixth year of having a community school program, is the oldest and one of the most active of the community schools in the city.

From a small committee of interested parents and school personnel in 1968, the community school committee has grown to 32 active members in 1974 led by Mrs. Judith Dean, the community school coordinator.

One of the first problems tackled by the community school committee in 1968 was the lack of a local nursery school in Upper Falls. The parents put their heads together with the minister of the First United Methodist Church and created the Upper Falls Cooperative Nursery School - now in its fifth year of existence. With its first project successful, the community school committee began planning an evening program to coincide with the Recreation Department program which met in the Emerson gym.

Many of the classes in the first few years of the evening program were taught by the day-time Emerson staff: the school secretary taught a typing class; the reading coordinator taught a speed reading class; and the art teacher taught a ceramics class.

Other classes were taught by local residents who worked with the community school committee, offering such programs as an architectural history of Upper Falls and a modern math seminar.

All of the teachers in the evening Program have been volunteers from the community or the school.

By 1972, the community school committee felt the need to respond to the requests of parents of Emerson School youngsters for some after school programming. Classes in puppetry, sewing and guitar were offered for children of various grade levels as a result of these requests.

In recent years, the evening program, in addition to Recreation Department - sponsored programs for teens, pre-teens and adults, has offered classes in upholstery, basic bridge, needlepoint, ceramics, houseplants, breadmaking, guitar and cake decorating. The coordinator is currently working with a group of kindergarten parents trying to establish an after school program for this age group.

The community school committee is composed of parents of Emerson School youngsters, other local residents, and school personnel. It meets monthly to set up programs, suggest new programs, and constructively criticize on-going programs and services. It tries to satisfy the needs of residents of Upper Falls. The evening program is used by Upper Falls residents who do not have children at Emerson. One of the committee's goals was to involve the total community, not just the parents of elementary school children.

The committee is currently working with the Title I Parent Advisory Council to effect a summer program of mini-courses for older elementary school children.

Any questions concerning Community School activities at the Ralph Waldo Emerson School may be directed to Mrs. Judith Dean, coordinator, at 332-4459.

A 10-week spring term will begin at the Oak Hill Community School on March 11.

Workshops for boys and girls in kindergarten through grade six are offered. Topics include sewing, creative stitchery, recreational games, French, cooking, modern dance, color-design, industrial arts, pottery without a wheel, and ballet. Also, multi-media crafts for pre-kindergarten children.

The gym and equipment are available five mornings a week between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m. for adults.

Car operation knowledge pays off

BY AUTOMOTIVE INFORMATION COUNCIL

The automobile is far from a mysterious machine. The basic operating principles of this dependable four-wheeled servant are really simple enough for the non-mechanical motorist to easily grasp.

The average car consists of some 15,000 parts, but if you consider that it is made up of a series of systems, each with its own function, then understanding the total machine becomes much less complicated

Take the conventional braking system for example: when you push down on the brake pedal, you apply pressure to a master cylinder containing fluid. A high pressure is created in fluid lines leading to smaller cylinders at each wheel, and this pressure forces brake shoes against brake drums. Friction between shoes and drums slows or stops the wheels. That wasn't too complicated, was it?

Understanding your car's mechanical operation can help you in identifying problems that may arise, and allow you to make emergency repairs that will get you to a service facility. You also will be better able to communicate with the service technician about the problem so he can repair your car more efficiently.

While cars today generally require less periodic maintenance than those of ten years ago, failure to follow recommended service schedules can result in expensive repair bills. Knowing how your car functions will help you to more readily understand the reasons behind specific service operations–and to be more conscious of their importance than the motorist without this knowledge

Your owner's manual explains many of the more common service operations, and several books are available which include a description of how the various systems operate.

Among the most popular is one published by the Automotive Information Council called "Handbook for Automobile Maintenance" that explains how the operating systems function and includes trouble-shooting guides to help you identify pending problems. Almost three and one-half million of these handbooks have already been distributed to motorists. You can obtain a copy by mailing 25 cents (to cover postage and handling) to: AIC HANDBOOK, P.O. Box 7593, Chicago, Ill. 60677.

World's Greatest Bargain: There are two things left in this world that are still a bargain: your seed catalog and the free windshield wash at your gas station. When you consider the information found in a seed catalog you can't help wondering what a bargain it is. A few pennies or a postal card is the only investment needed for getting some useful information in your seed or nursery catalog.

These catalogs contain much useful information gathered by knowledgeable people. Months of planning go into making the catalog. Most companies will begin planning next year's catalog as soon as the current year's supply is distributed. These catalogs are costly to the seed or nursery firm - running anywhere from $1.00 to $4.00 apiece.

Many catalogs list from 1,000 to 3,000 different items, some rare and some not so rare. It's a good idea for parents to spend some time with their children, studying a seed catalog. Help them make out a seed order and watch your children sprout into worthwhile citizens. We know some good teachers who are teaching kids to read by studying seed catalogs. No reason why you can't teach arithmetic from the seed catalog. For example, suppose seed costs $4.00 an ounce, and you need about 1-32 of an ounce. What would be the cost? To go a step further, there isn't a subject taught in High school which can't be taught, based on nature study.

Starting Peppers From Seed: Some gardeners prefer to start their own peppers from seed, but find getting them to germinate is tough. The No. 1 requirement for good germination is plenty of heat - 72 degs or more, up to 85 degsf. There's one pepper we wish you'd try this year and that is Sweet Banana. It has long pointed yellow fruit, looks like a hot pepper but has sweet flesh. Peppers are about 6 inches long, light yellow and turning to bright red.

Don't get this one mixed up with hot peppers called, Rumanian Wax or Hungarian Wax - they look like Sweet Banana but are very hot. A good sweet pepper is the bell-shaped Vinedale, ideal for people grow "all bush and no fruit". This pepper will bear anywhere, being early. Pennbell is another early producer, fine for short season areas where other peppers won't bear.

Green Thumb Clinic: "We have mealy bugs on our plants. Is there a cure for them? We've sprayed with everything."

Ans: Many gardeners use a systemic bug killer (Ortho granules) for killing mealy bugs. Use small quanitities, such as a half a teaspoonful per pot. Never use it on any crop that is edible. Never use the soil for anything but ornamental plants. This works on all house plants that have mealy bugs, scales, red spider mites and aphids. The Isotex systemic insecticide is generally recommended for outdoor plants such as roses and other ornamentals, but it also works on house plants, if used in small amounts.

Asthma program by Lung Assn.

The establishment of a physical conditioning program for asthmatic children is currently being considered by the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

The Association, which is supported by Christmas Seal contributions, would like to organize a breathing exercise and physical conditioning program for ashmatic children in the Norfolk County-Newton area, as well as an educational program for their parents.

The program would begin next fall, depending on community interest, and would be held in a YMCA facility. Breathing exercises have been demonstrated to be valuable in a child's management of his asthmatic condition. Furthermore, participation in group recreational activities improves the child's attitude toward his asthma and increases his self-confidence.

Similar programs throughout the state have been very successful under the guidance of the family physician, a pediatrician, an allergist, physical therapists and physical educators.

Parents interested in having their children participate in such a program should contact the Lung Association at 745 High Street, Westwood, Massachusetts, 02090, or call 326-4081.

ASTROLOGY

INDEPENDENT AND PROGRESSIVE

Q. Is it possible to tell me anything about my inner self that I am not aware of? I was born on April 7, 1920 at 7:00 a.m. in Nashua, N.H. during a terrific snow storm, if that means anything. M.A.S.

A. The fact that the planet Mars was exactly in Trine aspect to the planet Pluto on that date may have had much to do with the "terrific snow storm" but we cannot hold them accountable for your arrival then. Incidentally Pluto was not discovered by the Astronomers until the year 1930 but it was up there nonetheless.

The horoscope calculated for the data you supplied, indicates one who is quite independent, has high ideals and a fine sense as to what is right and what is wrong.

You are interested in generalities but details irritate you. You are at your best when left to work in your own way especially those things that can be done quickly. Dull routine and those matters that take much time are apt to get on your nerves.

Very early in life you were inclined to be somewhat shy but you soon outgrew this and the same holds true for any functional indisposition you may have had.

You are interested in and can be devoted to promoting the welfare of others but you prefer to do so in your own unique way. Knowing yourself you know how to control and direct efforts.

You are inclined to spend much on your home which you are apt to strive to make attractive if not elegant.

You are an individualist and believe you have a right to live your life in your own way whether others approve or otherwise.

Animal lobby formed

Citizens from cities and towns throughout Massachusetts banded together last week in Newton to create the first "animal lobby" in the state to combat cruelties to domestic and wild animals.

Acting as private citizens, individuals from over 10 different animal welfare groups, agreed to work together to get protective legislation enacted which will stop such abuse and to set up an information exchange system to educate the public on animal welfare issues.

Twenty million dogs and cats are reportedly destroyed every year in our pounds. Another 30 million are stray animals, often in a diseased state, who roam streets causing dangers to children, safety and environments.

Painful methods of slaughter are used on our food animals; exotic and wild animals are sold in our pet stores to people unable to properly care for them; and beaver, muskrat, raccons and other fur bearing animals are caught in steel jawed traps which cause a slow, agonizing death.

Action has already begun on these problem areas and people wishing to make contact with this organization can write to Animal Birth Control Action League, P. O. Box 198, Needham, Mass. 02192. People may contact Mrs. Sandra Schawbel at 965-4291 in Newton

Readying exhibit

WESTWOOD — A Westwood resident is preparing one of the major exhibits for the 103rd New England Spring Garden & Flower Show, to be held March 16-24 at the Commonwealth Armory in Boston.

Stan Romaine of Westwood has created an exhibit entitled "Bringing the Outdoors Inside" for Landscaped Interiors, Inc., of Boston, and this floral festival, sponsored annually by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The exhibit will feature large tropical foliage plants which are so much in demand as accents in interior design in a tropical garden setting suitable for inside or outside the house or office.

Extending over two and one-half acres at the Armory site, the Flower Show will also feature a special Indoor Plant Center with eight educational exhibits displaying many varieties of houseplants and vegetables in all stages of development. Professionals will be on hand to answer any questions and demonstrations will be given throughout the show.

Other displays will include flower arrangements and gardens by amateurs as well as professionals and an entire section devoted to all the supplies needed by the home horticulturist.

The Flower Show, which is the oldest and largest continuing horticultural exposition of its kind in the nation, annually draws over 100,000 New Englanders eager to catch their first glimpse of spring.

KATHY'S CONTRACT

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Kathy Kuykendall, the youngest tennis player ever to turn professional, Wednesday became the fourth player to sign with the Philadelphia Freedoms of World Team Tennis (WTT). The 17-year-old Miss Kuykendall was obtained in a trade with Los Angeles for the rights to Australia's Diane Fromholtz.

Incinerator appropriation may be cut

In accord with a March 1 deadline for notifying the state as to the contractor to be selected for upgrading the incinerator to meet air-quality standards, Mayor Theodore Mann last week informed the state Department of Public Health that no contractor has been selected. The city does not plan to use the incinerator after the end of the year in its present condition.

James Salter, Newton's chief administrative officer, said Monday, "This doesn't mean that in the future the incinerator will not be upgraded."

Two consulting firms, A.D. Little and Camp Dresser McKee, have both recommended against upgrading the incinerator at this time.

Both firms see the long-range solution to the solid-waste problem to be a resource-recovery plant, probably a regional facility built either by a group of communities or by the state.

The reports of both firms suggest the transfer-haul system for an interim solution. In transfer-haul, the city would collect the rubbish and take it to a transfer station. from where it would be picked up by a contractor and taken to either a landfill, incinerator, or resource-recovery plant.

Salter said that upgrading of the incinerator remains as one of the long-range solutions that will be decided on during the next three years.

No decision has been reached on what interim solution will be used after Dec. 31, 1974.

Another short-term method of disposal suggested has been the installation of Consumat units, a system of small, nearly pollution-free incinerators that would be grouped at two sites in the city.

White House gets air screen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Secret Service, alarmed by the possibility of aircraft trying to hit the White House, has bolstered its armament with a shoulder launched antiaircraft missile system, according to the current issue of Aviation Week magazine.

The magazine said the new missile, called the "Redeye," is designed to be fired from the shoulder by foot soldiers.

The missile has a heat seeking guidance system which trails the hot exhaust of an aircraft.

The Secret Service had no comment.

Gas supplies improve

BOSTON (UPI) — According to the American Automobile Association, gasoline supplies have improved and are currently fair in ali six New England states due to the receipt of the first shipment of March allocations.

A special survey conducted Monday by AAA indicated that Lawrence and Worcester, Mass., Bennington and Rutland, Vt., and Portsmouth, N.H., were low in gas supplies.

Stations which are limiting sales, AAA said, generally ask for $3 and upwards.

in the Greater Boston area, many stations contarted said they had extended their hours of business because of the reduction, or in some cases the disappearance, of lines.

Consumer advocate

Editor's Note — The Federal Consumer Advocate is published monthly by the Boston Federal Executive Board. All queries should be directed to the Board at Room 2200, John F. Kennedy Federal Building, Boston, Ma. 02203.

Q. I'll be graduating from high school this June and would like to select a good private vocational school to attend. Do you have any tips?

A. First and foremost, don't be swayed by sophisticated ad copy and undocumented claims. The Federal Trade Commission recommends you contact prospective employers, the people who may be hiring you when you complete your schooling. Tell them the name of the school and the course of training. Then ask them these 4 questions: 1) Would you hire graduates of the school; 2) How many have you actually hired; 3) Were they hired because of the school training; 4) Did the training make any difference in the salary?

Q. Certain days of the week my mailbox is stuffed with junk mail, why can't the mailman save himself the trouble and skip my house as far as delivering junk mail?

A. The Post Office says there is no such thing as junk mail. Mail advertisers spend millions of dollars on postage to send you coupons and tell you about their sales. This money pays a lot of the cost of running the Post Office, it pays part of the cost of the letters and packages you send.

Q. They say 1.8 million people are injured on stairs in the house in an average year while windows and doors cause injury to another 350,000. My wife and I are looking to build or buy a new home. Where can we seek help in eliminating these hazards in our new home?

A. It's spelled out for you in an excellent book produced by the Housing and Urban Development Agency and is available for $1.50 at the Government Book Store, Room G-25, J. F. Kennedy Federal Bldg., Boston, MA 02203.

Q. How can I stop the mailman from delivering pornographic material to my house? It's properly addressed to me all right, but I didn't order it and it's embarrassing.

A. Easy. Fill out a PS Form 2201 at your local post office. Thirty days from the date your name is added to the reference list, any mailer who sends you sexually oriented material subjects himself to legal action by the U.S. Government.

Q. I just bought a boat at the boat show and now am in the market for an engine. What is the maximum horsepower engine I can install on this boat?

A. The Boating Safety Division of the First Coast Guard District suggests you check your capacity plate. Regulations do not limit the size engine you can put on your vessel, however this plate usually found on the transom or near the steering wheel, will indicate the maximum safe horsepower for which the vessel was designed.

Q. A fellow who works with me tells me that aliens can collect the Supplemental Security Income that Social Security is now paying to people on welfare who are disabled, aged or blind.

A. Not so! Aliens who are here illegally or who are legally here as visitors or students are not eligible for SSI. Nationals of the United States who are not technically U.S. Citizens will be treated as citizens for SSI eligibility purposes.

Q. I read somewhere that some 150 to 200 die each year and some 50,000 others are injured seriously in accidents involving infants cribs. When is something going to be done to reduce the hazards of cribs?

A. Something has! U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission has developed a new regulation to insure that in the future cribs will be designed and built more safely. Some of the changes are: crib slats will be placed more closely together to prevent babies from slipping through; a prominent warning will be placed on crib headboards cautioning parents to use only a mattress of the proper size. If you already have a crib, purchase all-around bumper pads to protect the baby from the hazards of widely-spaced slats, install a property-fitted mattress and thoroughly inspect the cribs general stability and condition.

Slow Burns Costly

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most laymen don't understand that it burns more jet aircraft fuel to fly slow than to fly fast.

Commercial jets cruise at around 500 knots. Interviews with senior airline pilots about conserving fuel during the present shortage disclosed a feeling that present speed practices could be changed to help.

The pilots said that in approaching a terminal there is a limit of 250 knots when the plane gets below 10,000 feet. Then they will be reduced to about 160 knots at 2,000 feet.

One of their recommendations is that the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), which has jurisdiction over the air traffic controllers, raise the 10,000-foot speed limit and at the lower altitude let them keep the speed up to 200 or 210 knots and the altitude up to 3,000 feet to conserve fuel and to get the noise a bit farther from people on the ground.

A tremendous amount fuel is burned up, they say, when a plane is held in the air at 160 knots waiting its turn to land in congested traffic.

Asked about the possibility of increasing speed on approach, Daniel Bove, chief controller of the New York area, said however: "Under 10,000 feet in congested areas, we don't want 'em barreling along at 600 miles per hour."

The 70th anniversary of the first powered airplane flights, by the Wright brothers, took place last Dec. 17.

Chamber unveils work program

A major change in organization structure and added participation by Chamber members have been utilized in determing the 1974 program of work of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce which was announced this week.

Chamber President Robert L. Tennant has announced that all Chamber members will, in addition to their general Chamber membership also be a member of one of the Chamber's four membership councils: Economic Development, Employment and Education Planning, Organizational Development and Public Affairs. The councils will convene twice during the year and combine the interest of members whose business needs and community interests are similar.

To guide the councils, Tennant appointed nine-men steering committees for each, led by one of the four vice presidents. Each vice president serves as chairman of one of the councils.

Steering committees have met and established council goals and objectives which were then approved by the Chamber's board of directors. Together these goals comprise the 1974 program, as follows:

The Economic Development Council Steering Committee has determined the following objectives and action program: The Energy Conservation Task Force, established in November, 1973, will continue to work to recommend business response and solve problems relating to the energy crisis, acting as liaison with local and state governments and recommending specific programs for energy conservation.

A task force named Interpreting Business will attempt to achieve greater public understanding of business and its problems and the American economic system.

It proposes to do this by developing understanding and recommendations of the "Powell Memorandum" and by coordinating economic understanding projects with other chamber programs.

A Retail Services Task Force will provide retailers with assistance in promoting trade locally. It expects to conduct a shoplifting prevention program, a merchandising and customer relations improvement program and assist the Business Advisory Committee of the Needham Planning Board in their efforts to upgrade Needham Square.

The Chamber's Transportation Committee will review and recommend policy and action with respect to public transportation, highways, traffic and parking. It will encourage the formation of car pools, promote the use of public transportation, seek additional off-street parking areas adjacent to business districts, support beautification programs for parking lots, work with public transportation agencies to get improved commuter service, review municipal street location and traffic control signs and consider appropriate changes in local traffic regulations.

Economic Development Council Steering Committee members include: John L. Vaccaro, chairman; James M. Colman, David R. Dector, George A. Goodman, Donald J. MacMillen, Dewey Mollomo, Carl Sjoquist, John Stevens, and William A. Woodcock.

The objectives and action programs of the Employment and Education Planning Council, the Organizational Development Council and the Public Affairs Council will announce within a few days.

Carbon monoxide dangerous

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association recognizes that getting fuel is a problem this winter. But so is burning it.

Fuel-burning heating systems should be checked at least once a year and kept in good repair. Flames on most burners using natural gas or liquefied petroleum gas should burn steadily with a clear, blue flame. A wavering, yellow flame on the normal gas burner means it may be giving off excessive amounts of carbon monoxide. With fuel oil-burning equipment, a clear, steadily burning flame - yellow or orange - is a good sign.

Each year, more than 1,500 Americans die from carbon monoxide poisoning about 900 of them in their homes. Normal combustion produces a slight amount this colorless, tasteless, odorless gas. Incomplete combustion of any fuel increases the amount dangerously.

The early symptoms of poisoning are headache, dizziness, and sleepiness. Because these symptoms resemble those of many common diseases people often fail to realize they are being asphyxiated. As more gas is absorbed into the bloodstream, nausea, vomiting, fluttering and throbbing of the heart happen.

Carbon monoxide acts like a bully in line at the bus station. It bumps oxygen molecules out of the red blood cells and takes their place. When this biological bullying takes place, the cells in the body do not get enough oxygen. Depending on the levels of the gas, death can come slowly or almost immediately.

Carbon monoxide is also in car exhaust as well as tobacco smoke. Smoking just a few cigarettes in an enclosed place raises the level of carbon monoxide in the blood of nearby nonsmokers as well as the smokers themselves. Even after leaving the room, the carbon monoxide lingers in the body for hours.

To find out more about threats to your lungs, people may contact the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

ALAN J. SCHLESINGER of Newton has been elected a vice president of New England Communities Inc., a real estate and consulting firm with offices in Newtonville. He is a graduate of Princeton University and is currently attending Boston College Law School where he is a member of the Law Review.

Minutemen begin tryouts Friday

BOSTON—Boston Minutemen Head Coach, Hubert Vogelsinger, announced today that "Invitational Tryouts" will be held on March 8th, 9th, and 10th. "We want to give the local talent and free agents who have contacted us, and the individual players that we have been informed of by team managers, a chance to tryout for the team first," says the Coach.

Starting at 2 p.m. on Friday, March 8th, tryouts for goalkeepers only will be held at Boston College's Alumni Stadium. On Saturday, March 9th, tryouts for fieldmen will begin at 10 a.m. in Alumni Stadium and on Sunday, the 10th, Coach Vogelsinger will be asking back between fifteen and twenty players for the final test matches.

All players are required to bring their own equipment for the tryouts, including a white tee-shirt and shoes appropriate for wear on Astroturf.

Coach Vogelsinger already has his eye on some specific players from the local area that he feels are "MINUTEMEN Quality." Some of the outstanding local talent that will be attending the tryouts include former Harvard All-Americans, Phil Kydes and Felix Adedji.

Coach Vogelsinger also mentioned that he wants to give every local player with an interest in trying out for the pro team a chance to prove himself, therefore the club will be holding Open Tryouts for those not attending the Invitational, at a later date this month.

For further information, contact The BOSTON MINUTEMEN: 227-8520.

Postal rates go up again

In case you weren't aware of it postal rates were increased last Saturday.

The U.S. Postal Service was not too speedy in announcing the change, the news release on the new rates was not received at the Transcript office until Friday, March 1. Maybe it was lost in the mail.

This increase, previously scheduled for Jan. 5, was delayed until March 2 by a directive of the Cost of Living Council.

First-class mail is increased from 8 to 10 cents, airmail from 11 to 13 cents and postal cards from 6 to 8 cents. (Remember the old two-cent stamp and the penny post card, or are you too young).

Rates for other types of mail including second, third and fourth class were also increased.

International mail rates increased an average of 20 percent. The letter-mail rate to Canada and Mexico, however, will be the same as the new 10-cent first-class domestic rate.

The cost of mailing a one-ounce surface letter to countries other than Canada and Mexico went from 15 to 18 cents. Airmail to Western Hemisphere countries increased from 17 to 21 cents and other countries from 21 to 26 cents for each half ounce up to two ounces. Surface and air parcel rates rose about 15 per cent.

The Postal Service's new rates are temporary until it receives a recommended decision on its proposal from the Postal Rate Commission which is currently studying the increases. The Postal Rate Commission is required to make a recommended decision to the Governors of the Postal Service under the 1970 Postal Reorganization Act. That act also gave the service authority to raise temporarily rates while the commission studies its requests. The commission is not expected to act prior to March 2nd.

The Postal Service said, however, that the Cost of Living Council order which delayed the rate increases eight weeks had resulted in further losses in fiscal 1074 of $236 million. Congress has been asked to grant the service this amount in a supplemental appropriation.

Without the new rates the service predicted a fiscal 1974 deficit of $1.3 billion but after the March 2 increases, and if Congress approves the supplemental request, this deficit is expected to be reduced to $385 million.

Projected revenue resulting from the new rates will help offset sharply rising labor costs due to a new wage contract effected on July 21, 1973, which included pay increases due to occur in fiscal 1974 and 1975.

The Postal Service said mailers having envelopes preprinted with the old rates are authroized to use such permit imprints through May 4, 1974. Mailing statements accompanying such permit mail must show, however, that proper postage amounts were paid.

This is the first increase in first class, airmail and postal cards since May 16, 1971, when first class, airmail and postal card rates rose, respectively, to 8 cents, 11 cents, and 6 cents.

Notre Dame has come up with a new iceman and just in time.

Dwight Clay, the man who ended UCLA's 88-game winning streak with a long jump shot, is normally Notre Dame's top clutch shooter but freshman Billy Paterno stole his act Monday night.

Paterno connected on a 19-foot jump shot with just one second left to give the third-ranked Fighting Irish a 91-89 victory over Michigan State. The Irish blew a nine-point lead and Michigan State went ahead with 6:12 left on Terry Furlow's basket. Paterno's shot put Notre Dame ahead for the first time after Furlow's basket.

John Shumate scored 27 points to lead Notre Dame, now 16-1, and Gary Brokaw added 21. Mike Robinson had 31 points for Michigan State, now 11-7.

In other action, secondranked North Carolina State beat Duke, 92-78, No. 6. Vanderbilt edged eighth-rated Alabama, 67-65, South Carolina crushed Canisius, 76-58, and Kansas ripped Colorado, 81-66.

David Thompson had 23 points and Tom Burleson hit 19 as North Carolina State bounced back from a sluggish start to beat Duke and Terry Compton hit eight straight foul shots in the last six minutes, the last two with 3t seconds left, as Vanderbilt won its Southeastern Conference showdown with Alabama.

Alex English scored 27 points and Mark Greiner held Larry Fogle, the nation's leading scorer, to his lowest output of the season as South Carolina clobbered Canisius. Fogle, averaging 34.5 points a game, managed only 18.

Rick Suttle came off the bench to score 3 points and grab 10 rebounds as Kansas routed Colorado while elsewhere, Dennis Stiefer's 22 points carried Minnesota to a 56-51 victory over Ohio State and Larry Williams and Lon Kruger scored 12 points each as Kansas State downed Oklahoma State 65-48.

Elsewhere, Detroit downed St. Peter's, 95-2, Tennessee stopped Auburn, 88-80, William & Mary topped The Citadel, 64-57, Eastern Kentucky beat Marshall, 83-77, Kentucky edged Louisiana State, 73-70, Western Kentucky defeated Dayton, 87-83, Florida nipped Mississippi State, 78-75, Mississippi downed Georgia, 59-55, Austin Peay beat Murray State, 87-80, and Denver outlasted Southern Mississippi, 112-93.

Boston to host 275 conventions

Boston will host over 275 conventions in 1974, whose 236,000 visitors will spend an estimated $38 million in the area. These figures were made public this week by the Convention and Visitors Bureau of the Greater Boston Chamber of Commerce, which has just released the 1974 edition of its "Conventions in the Many Worlds of Boston."

This unique publication, provided annually by the Chamber as a service to its membership, lists scheduled conclaves not only for 1974, but for future years, as well. According to Convention Bureau Manager Paul Lanigan, some 560 conventions are already contracted, as far in advance as 1982. They will attract an estimated 880,000 persons, whose spending will infuse the local economy with $141 million "new dollars."

The Bureau's 1974 convention figures reflect a 79 percent increase in the number of conventions as compared to 1964. Attendance at conventions has more than doubled in that same ten-year period, while the dollar- amount spent by conventioneers in the Boston area has tripled. (See attached ten-year comparison.)

Chamber President C. Vincent Vappi noted in his introduction to the convention booklet, "It is important to bear in mind that conventions don't visit Boston on their own initiative. Bringing this about requires the skillful efforts of both the Chamber staff . . . and you, our members. By joining together in this effort, we are better able to compete with some 100 other U.S. cities, all with excellent convention facilities of their own."

Postal exam for truck operators

Applications are now being accepted and examinations will be given to establish a new register of eligibles from which future vacancies for motor vehicle operators and garagemen in the United States Postal Service, Boston, will be filled.

All interested persons 18 years of age or older who meet the requirements are urged to apply. All applicants will be required to take a written examination. Applicants must be physically able to perform the duties required and be citizens of or owe allegiance to the United States of America.

Applicants for garagemen must have the ability to service trucks and have a safe driving record. Starting salary is $8,802.00 yearly.

Applicants for motor vehicle operator must demonstrate the ability to drive trucks safely and pass a road test. Starting salary is $4.65 per hour.

Consideration to fill these positions will be made of the highest eligibles on the register who are available.

Application Form 2479-AB is available at all post offices in the Boston Postal District. Send applications to the Employment Examiner, Postmaster, Boston, MA 02109.

Applications must be submitted before Saturday, March 9, 1974. Applicants will be notified of date, time and place of examination and will be sent sample questions.

A total of 150 Meadowbrook Junior High School students, including actors, singers, dancers, orchestra, and stage crew are in the final stages of rehearsal for "Guys and Dolls".

Leading parts in the show are played by Lori Furman as Adelaide; Susan Seletz and Susan Zeiger alternating as Sarah; David Frim as Sky Masterson; and Larry Sloan as Nathan Detroit. Susan Israel is student director and Betsy Young is student director.

Green Line upgrading begins again

According to Don Levitan, Newton's director of intergovernmental relations who is mainly responsible for the Newton MBTA liaison, March 1 to 15 will see Phase 1 of the improvement of the Green line completed.

Phase 1 was the reconstruction of the roadbed between Newton Highlands and Riverside. All that remains to do is realignment of the tracks to take care of frost heaves and wear and tear on the new tracks since completion of the major work late last fall.

During this periodtherewill be one-track service during non-peak hours, Levitan said.

From May to December, Levitan said, Phase 2 will take over. There will non-peak-hour disruption of service between Newton Highlands and Reservoir stations, with one-track operation during those hours. No buses will be used.

Phase 3 will begin June 1, between Reservoir and Fenway stations. Green Line cars will be shunted down Beacon Street from Reservoir, and there will be an additional trip time of about 15 minutes — to Boston, Levitan said.

Count Basie

Count Basie performance this evening

The world-famous Count Basie will appear Thursday night at Newton North High School in Newtonville.

This concert by Basie and his orchestra is for the benefit of the Newton North High Music Department, and is part of their "Jazz Greats" concert series. Concert time is 8 p.m. March 7.

Basie's widely imitated piano style has thrilled millions of jazz fans throughout the world over the past for decades. The band, a consistent winner of many of the country's jazz polls. boasts many of the top jazz musicians in the world, led by Sonny Payne, Basie's drummer for the past 20 years.

The musical arrangements are a well-mixed combination of wide-open, straight ahead jazz, and the quiet, undulating melodies and rhythms for perhaps which the Count is best known.

The Jazz Greats Series was inaugurated this year by the school's new director of instrumental music, Gary Good. Conceived for the dual purpose of providing the Newton students with an education in modern American music, and bringing the best in live jazz to the greater Boston area, the concerts this year have marked the first East coast appearance of Super Sax, as well as concerts by Woody Herman and Maynard Ferguson. The Basie concert, fourth in the series, will be followed by a one night appearance of the famous Thad Jones-Mel Lewis band on April 10.

Tickets for the Basie concert are available by calling the Music Department at 969-9810, ext. 348. Ticket price is $5 in advance, and $6 at the door if any tickets are available.

MBTA says it clearly

The first of the new MBTA bus stop signs were unveiled last week at Washington and Walnut streets.

Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority (MBTA) Board Chairman John T. Doolittle Jr. and Commissioner of the Massachusetts Department of Public Works Bruce Campbell together with Newton Theodore T. Mann today joined in the dedication ceremony in Newton.

The new bus stop sign combines high-visibility lettering with route information and easily identifiable graphics.

"This new signing approach reflects a dual effort on the part of the MBTA," Doolittle said. "It represents our continuing cooperation with the Department of Public Works and local communities to improve the movement of people throughout the MBTA district and it also gives graphic evidence of our attempts to make using the MBTA and public transportation in general easier for our passengers."

Campbell said, "This pilot program will be watched carefully with a view to extending this basic graphic approach to bus stop signs throughout the Commonwealth. It would be an important part of the DPW's attempt to develop a state-wide system of uniform information signs."

"Newton is proud to have been selected as the site of this important prototype signing program," Mann said. "The new signs will not only make it simpler for Newtonites to use public transportation in this energy crisis, the very visibility of the signs will make it easier for our police and traffic forces to enforce the proper and legal no parking restrictions at bus stops thus improving the general traffic flow in the city."

The new signs were designed by the MBTA in consultation with the DPW. The basic sign is 18" wide by 36" tall, contains the MBTA's circle T logo, route number and name, the admonition - "Bus Stop No Parking" - and an easily recognized graphic silhouette of a bus. For use where the basic sign would be too large, there is a smaller 18" by 18" version. The signs are made of heavy gauge aluminum and have been designed to be adaptable to a variety of installation techniques. They replace bus stop signs whose design has not been altered since the old Boston Elevated Street Railway days.

Twenty signs have been erected to date.

Budget time The city budget demands time and effort from Newton's aldermen, nnd intent on the facts and figures Saturday were the members of the aldermanic Finance Committee. Here, the Street Department budget is under scrutiny and (from left) Street Commissioner Edmund Bolduc, his chief assistant Nunzio Piselli, and Finance Committee members Aldermen Thomas Concannon and Wendell Bauckman discuss the budget. (Lupo photo).

Funds for teachers will run out in June

The Newton School Department needs $648,000 to pay tacher's salaries in June and does not, at this point, know where the money is going to come from.

Mayor Theodore D. Mann called a meeting of his Conference Committee Monday in an "attempt to get legal advice" on the embarassing financial situation now confronting the city.

Although the mayor and City Solicitor Howard Levine refused Monday to disclose the reason for Monday's meeting in the mayor's office, it was learned Tuesday that the deficit of almost $650,000 existed.

Attempts by the press to attend Monday's meeting were met first with refusal to allow entry, and then by permission to enter the mayors' office. The mayor indicated, however, that the meeting would be canceled if the press attended and no business was conducted while reporters were in the room.

Levine indicated that the meeting, which was attended by the highest level members of city and school administrators, would involve a "possible lawsuit" against the city, and therefore could be ceased under the open-meeting law.

The Mayor's Conference Committee is comprised of the mayor, School Committee Chairman Eleanor Rosenblum, School Committee Vice-Chairman Dorothy Reichard, former School Committee chairman Manuel Beckwith, Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink, president of the Board of Aldermen Eliot Cohen, Board Vice-President Richard Bullwinkle, Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Small, Education Committee Chairman Louis Egelson, and Public Buildings Committee Chairman Edward Richmond.

In addition to the Conference Committee members, School Department Budget Director Harry Vienneau and the city's Director of Finance Arthur Marr, and Levine were present.

Last year at the time the tax rate was set, Marr, who also serves as comptroller, warned the School Committee that it would needmore money than requested in its budget in order to pay teachers' salaries through the fiscal year 1973-74, but the School Committee did not want to reveal what it expected to pay in collective - bargaining increases to teachers by asking for a supplemental appropriation.

Marr said Tuesday that he had reminded the School Department since that time that money was running out, and was answered that money due the city from state reimbursement would take care of the problem.

According to Marr, some $900,000 due in January from the School Building Assistance Bureau and money for reimbursement of transportation costs have not been paid by the state, and there has been no indication as to when Newton will receive it.

If the money is not received by the first of April, Marr said, the School Department may have to curtail school athletics and take other measures to free the $648,000 from the school budget

Marr said that all the money receivable cannot be used toward the $648,000 deficit, since some has already been committed.

Levine confirmed that not all the expected funds can be put into the city's surplus account.

Marr pointed out that there is presently only about $240,000 in the city's surplus funds. When the Board of Aldermen voted to apply $1.6 million from surplus last year toward reducing the tax rate, several aldermen expressed concern that the School Department would need more money, but were reassured that it would not.

There are some funds in departmental budgets, Marr said, that can be transferred into surplus and then to the School

Budget paring goes on

More than $650,000 has been recommended to be cut from the Street Department budget of $8.6 million by a vote of the aldermanic Finance Committee.

The votes of the Finance Committee have been held in "executive session," which is closed to the public, on the grounds that the reputations of persons or the financial security of the city might be jeopardized by open discussion.

All recommendations of the Finance Committee about the budget will go to the full Board for a vote. Reviews of Finance Committee recommendations and votes by the Board will probably begin March 30 and conclude April 6, with long sessions expected on both Saturdays.

In other actions on the budget, the Finance Committee last week heard representatives of Project Turnabout, a drug-counseling agency, plead their case for reinstatement of funds. Turnabout's city funding of $32,000 per year was deleted from the 1974-75 budget.

The deletion was made on the basis of an evaluation of Turnabout by the Mayor's Health Advisory Committee and agreed to by Health Commissioner John Athans, M.D.

John Lynch, director of Newton Turnabout, refuted several points in a letter from Alan Sostek, health advisory committee chairman, to Athans, including the number of clients.

Lynch said that Turnabout serves about 40 clients per week, not the 40 total per year implied in Sostek's letter, for a total of 200 different people every year.

One of Sostek's arguments aginst further funding was that the state is required to provide a service to Newton, because of state funding of Turnabout to the amount of $141,000. Therefore, according to Sostek, all Turnabout facilities are available to Newton without city funding.

Lynch explained that all the $32,000 given by Newton is spent on Newton youth.

Duplication of effort between Turnabout and the Newton - Wellesley - Weston Multi-Service Center were mentioned by Sostek, to which Turnabout staff member Abraham Sussman replied that Turnabout has clients of a different age range, and that Turnabout's "style" is different

Sussman also referred to the fact that Turnabout works closely with the School Department, both in referrals and in drug-abuse prevention programs for students and teachers.

Boston College will absorb Newton College

Boston College and Newton College are going to merge.

In a press conference this week, representatives announced that the Jesuit school in Chestnut Hill will absorb the Newton campus in June, 1975.

Boston College, with a student body that stands at 7,600 now, will get the 40 acre Newton College campus, a $5 million debt, and about 800 coeds in the deal.

Newton College will continue to function under its board of trustees through the academic year of 1974-75.

On June 30, 1975, the Newton board will be dissolved and the college will cease to exist, except for the purpose of conferring degrees to students that are enrolled there now.

With the 1976 commencement, degrees from Newton College will cease to exist too.

The school, on Centre Street in Newton, will adopt the Boston College academic calendar this fall.

Tuition will increase in September, 1974, by $200 from $2,650.

Administrative reaction to the merger, as evidenced at the press conference Monday was favorable.

"I am pleased to announce this merger," James Whalen, president of Newton College said Monday. "We see this merger as an opportunity to continue our committment to higher education."

Rev. J. Donald Monan, BC president, said the merger would "enhance the capabilities of Boston College."

"In orde4 to preserve the continued vitality of Catholic educationnin New England, consolidation is the only avenue to providing continuty," Monan said.

Whalen admitted that the $5 million debt Newton College has due to its expansionnof facilities was a significant factor in the merger.

He said that the school did not have the resources to pay off the debt without raising tuition another $1,000.

Whalen also touched on the peril of parochial and "single sex" education today.

"If people want it, they have to pay for it," he said.

Monan was vague on what would happen to the Newton College faculty after the merger takes place.

Newton College faculty is supposed to have "terminal contracts" for 1974-75 issued by Newton College.

Boston College has agreed to "establish channels to insure that recommended Newton College faculty get full consideration where faculty employment opportunities and mutual interest exist."

Monan, at the press conference, also estimated an enrollment of "8,100" almost the same as adding the current Boston College and Newton College enrollments together.

Members of the classes of 1974 and 1975 will receive Newton College degrees. Sophomores, or members of the Class of 1976, will have an option on degrees from either of the schools.

Freshmen, those in the Class of 1977, will get their degrees from Boston College.

Thomas Whalen and J. Donald Monan

Interviewed on the campus Monday, students seemed generally resigned to the merger.

One senior asked what she thought of the merger, said: "It's better than closing the school."

Newton College students had just returned from vacation Monday when they were informed a convocation was to be held at noon that day and they were told of the consolidation of the two schools.

Emphasis placed on writing in report to School Committee

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

English Coordinator Robert Zeeb presented tenative guidelines for the teaching of language arts to the Newton School Committee this week.

"The guidelines place a priority on learning how to write," Zeeb said. He noted that "writing is a sophisticated and difficult process which deserves more taching time."

Zeeb commented that language art skills can be stressed in science and social studies classes as well as in language art classes. It was noted that it is important for different teachers to have the same expectations of students.

"We should encorage children to talk and write freely in a great variety of modes (poetry, fable, myth, riddle, legend, interview, telegram, etc.)," Zeeb's report said.

"Because learning to write is an extremely difficult and complex task, instruction in writing should take approximately 20 per cent of the time devoted to language arts in grades 2 and 3 and no less than 30 per cent of the time devoted to language arts in grades 4 through 6, he continued.

Zeeb's report was limited to guidelines for language arts in elementary schools. The guidelines were called "tenative" because they are still subject to review.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell asked Zeeb if he had any "data about weaknesses and strengths."

"This is an area we need to work on a great deal," Zeeb responded.

Mandell noted that he had previously brought out data showing that reading and math performances decline from sixth to ninth grade.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink challenged Mandell's claim, asking that it be discussed when the figures were in front of the committee. Zeeb said that he is encouraging the process of keeping folders on children's writing and passing them on from year to year. This could be a tool for evaluating change.

"Kids do writing during social studies and science periods as well as during language art periods," Zeeb commented. "Language arts is really a total experience.

"The guidelines read beautifully," Mandell said. "But gidelines never seem

Six lots in Lower Falls checked for development

Black Citizens of Newton (BCON) is exploring the possibility of acquiring six lots in Newton Lower Falls for development.

The lots, presently owned by the Newton Redevelopment Authority (NRA), are on the eastern side of Moulton Street. They would be developed into housing.

Eugene Hampton, president of BCON, reported this week that his group has not yet formed a corporation for acquiring the lots.

"We wanted to check details first," Hampton said. He added that BCON wants to look into the requirements of any loan agencies it might have to deal with.

BCON might be able to get aid from the Small Business Administration (SBA). "We're counting on the fact that there is SBA support for minority business development," Hampton said.

Hampton commented that if the housing was built, the BCON would be "open to supplying anyone in need." He added that minority groups may be the most in need.

NRA Executive Director Gerald Earley said this week that he has had no formal communication from BCON.

Lead screening tests at Claflin

Lead screening for Newton school children will take place March 19 at Calflin School, 465 Lowell Avenue. Blood-testing is conducted by a medical team from Newton-Wellesley Hospital working in conjunction with senior volunteers in Newton Community Service Center's R.S.V.P. program.

Over 1,300 Newton children between the ages of 1-6 have been tested since last September. The goal of the program is to determine whether or not children have abnormal high lead levels in their blood.

Directing medical aspects of the screening program are Newton-Wellesley chief of pediatrics Dr. John M. Cohen and pediatric nurse practitioner Mrs. Irene Lamb, R.N.

"Junior Night" on March 21

On Thursday, March 21 from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. at Newton North High School, the counseling department will present the annual "Junior Night" program.

This will be an opportunity for parents and juniors to explore alternatives available to high school graduates upon completion of their senior year.

This year the "Junior Night" format will differ from past programs in that there will be individual presentations, housed in separate areas, to provide information on each of the following topics: occupational planning; financial planning; college entrance (including College Boards); some post high school options: apprenticeship on the job training programs, project SEAL, a year off, travel, etc.

Also armed services opportunities; post graduate programs in the technical vocational department; cooperative education programs; counseling services at Newton North High School; careers for women in engineering.

Night nurse

Mrs. Richard Brownof West Newton is a night nurse at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. The hospital is currently offering a bonus award to permanent 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. nursing personnel after six months service.

Hospital offers incentives for night nursing program

Newton — Wellesley Hospital announced this week that it is currently offering a new special incentive for nursing personnel onthe 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift.

The incentive program, primarily designed to immediately attract new nursing personnel, will award government savings bonds to all nursing service employees who work six months or more on permanent night assignment.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital, like most hospitals in the Greater Boston area, needs more permanent part-time and full-time people to stablize staffing pattersns over the necessary 24-hour hospital coverage.

A significant number of local residents currently are working at Newton-Wellesley Hospital. Many are permanent night shift workers or cover night shift on rotation.

Newton-Wellesley is a teaching hospital affiliated with Tufts University and located in Newton Lower Falls. It has a 350-bed capacity and employs 1,260 persons, 600 of whom are nursing personnel.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital director of nursing Thomas Callahan and his R.N. wife Patricia demonstrate the usefulness of night shift work in a period of inflationary pressures. The Callahan have eight children. He works days at Newton-Wellesley. Mrs. Callahan does evening shift coverage at Boston State Hospital. One parent alwasy covers the home front.

In addition to flexibilith and economic incentives, night nursing offers other advantages. Regular night workers at Newton-Wellesley state that they prefer night work. They refer to themselves as "night people," which in rough translation means people who are livelier at night thatn they are during the day.

"I wouldn't work any other shift," sated veteran night nurse Mrs. Virginia Stanton. She is the mother of five children and growing financial responsibilities indicated that she work. Night shift enables her to sleep in the day, while the children are at school, and enjoy a family supper and evening together before she comes to work at Nawton-Wellesley.

Scillas and crocuses reward for cleanup

The Conservation Commission will conduct a clean-up at the Houghton Garden section of the Webster Conservation Area Saturday, March 16, at 9:30 a.m., meeting at the end of Suffolk Road.

Aim of the day is to gather the prunings recently cut and stack them beside the Suffolk Road entrance to the Garden where they will be loaded next week by Street Department personnel and trucked away.

Rewards: exercise and a look at early crocuses naturalized in the Garden on the north side of Hammond Brook. If the crocuses have gone by, the scillas may be coming out by Saturday.

In case of rain, the alternate date and time will be Sunday, March 17, 2:00 p.m. For information call Helen Heyn at 527-9121.

The Conservation Commission's regular meeting will be on Wednesday, March 20, at 8 p.m., Room 220, City Hall.

Contrary to a previous announcement, there will be no presentation by William Giezentanner at the March 20 meeting of the mapping for the Charles River frontage plan.

Giezentanner's briefing of the Conservation Commission is now scheduled for Wednesday, May 22, and he is to do a similar report for the aldermanic City Planning Committee

Lincoln-Eliot bids expire on April 15

Bids to the city for making additions and alterations to the Lincoln-Eliot School will expire on April 15.

Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson said this week that there is no chance that contracts can be signed before that deadline. This will necessitate that bids be taken again.

The project, if approved by the Board of Aldermen, would now require a bond issue of $1,225,000. This is $75,000 more than the estimate Larson explained to the Finance Committee two weeks ago.

Three bidders are attempting to withdraw their bids. Their action is being reviewed by the city Law Department.

The aldermanic Public Buildings Committee is scheduled to discuss Lincoln-Eliot on March 21. Aldermen will tour Lincoln-Eliot March 19.

A group of citizens concerned about Lincoln-Eliot traveled to Newton South High School for a Public Buildings Committee meeting last week.

The committee was scheduled to discuss a proposed automotive center for Newton South.

The Lincoln-Eliot people apparently discovered that they could not get the committee to discuss their school, and they left prior to the hearing on the automotive center.

The Lincoln-Eliot people left on a city bus acquired through the assistance of Recreation Commissioner John Penney.

Ralph enters another race

The man who now occupies the positions of mayor of Somerville and member of the Middlesex County Commissioners is going to run for attorney general, it was announced Thursday.

S. Lester Ralph

S. Lester Ralph, who first ran for public office in 1969 when he campaigned for mayor of Somerville, said today that he was announcing his candidacy for the statewide post.

"During the past five years," Ralph said, "I have challenged two levels of government where in my judgment public officials had lost interest in their responsibilities and concerns for the people they were elected to serve.

"In each situation I was goaded into personal involvement by the philospherr Edmund Burke's observation: "all that is necessary for the forces of evil to prevail is for good men to remain silent."

Ralph said that as attorney general, he would push for involvement of this office in the following areas:

—establishment of a Community Services Division to "aid overburdened taxpayers."

—a stronger role for the attorney general in combating "waste and inefficiency in government."

Chairman thinks architect will be hired for automotive center

By TOM GRAVES
Of the Graphic Staff

Alderman Edward L. Richmond said last week that he thinks the aldermanic Public Buildings Committee will approve a request for $7,300 to hire an architect for a proposed automotive center at Newton South High School.

The Public Buildings Committee drafted a resolution on Saturday which would give approval to hiring an architect for a 2,160 net square feet facility.

The committee's resolution stated that construction costs should not be approved unless 65 per cent of the costs would be reimbursable from the Massachusetts School Buildings Assistance Bureau (SBAB). It also asked for a metal building subject to review by the Planning Department and the Urban Beautification Commission.

Richmond, chairman of the Public Buildings Committee, spoke at a hearing last week on the School Department's budget for 1974-75. He noted that his committee is divided, and that he thinks a resolution proposing restrictions will accompany the committee's report.

The Public Buildings Committee held a hearing at Newton South last week to discuss the proposed automotive center.

School Committeeman Gerard Byrne said that the School Committee had unanimously reaffirmed the need for an automotive center.

"We feel students should have exposure to the automotive experience if they so desire," Byrne commented.

He added that the center could instigate a career interest and that it could teach skills useful for the work-study program at Newton South.

Byrne discussed alternatives to building an automotive center. He said that a shuttle bus to take South students to Newton North for automotive classes would cost $15,120 a year.

Automotive classes at Newton North are reportedly already near full enrollment. Byrne added that busing would upset the continuity of the school day.

Another proposal has been that of a service station be rented for use by South students. Byrne said that this would cost $9,000 a year plus the cost of busing.

"We're asking for a building of 2,160 square feet, net," Byrne said. He added that a 65 per cent reimbursement from the SBAB would not be possible if the building was to be less than 2,160 square feet.

Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson said that the proposed building would be "in the neighborhood of 2,500 square feet, gross."

Director of Support Services John Gilleland said that it was originally hoped that part of the existing industrial arts shop could be converted into an automotive center.

Dan Melia, co-ordinator of technical–vocational education, said that fire regulations made this plan unfeasible.

Superintendent of Schools Aaron Fink explained that the proposed center would be used to teach preliminary courses. "If students desire a more intensive program, they would transfer to Newton North," Fink said.

"We've always maintained that we would like the minimum facility which would meet the needs of the program and the SBAB," Fink added.

Fink said that the attitude of the SBAB will not be known until an architect is hired and plans are presented.

Larson said that a 2,500 gross square feet masonry facility would cost $140,000 to $150,000.

Larson noted that he has been told by the SBAB that a metal building would be considered as well as a masonry building.

"A metal building should be about $50,000 cheaper," Larson said.

Newton South presently has 136 students enrolled in utomotive courses. Equipment is stored in a small room next to a large industrial arts room.

Students work on cars in a parking lot outside.

"We can't do what the kids want us to do," said Joseph Connolly, the automotive instructor at Newton South. "We have to turn kids away."

"We want a building where we can give kids what they want and keep them interested in school," Connolly added.

Newton South principal Ernest V. Seasholes presented a partition to Richmond signed by 835 students, parents and members of the faculty and staff. The petition requested aldermanic support for the plan for an automotive shop.

Both faculty and students spoke in favor of building an automotive center.

Housemaster Robert Wicks said that "I think we should be concerned about it primarily because we need to say to a bunch of kids that we care about them."

A student suggested that the automotive center could be used in conjunction with the driver education program.

A man in the audience said that "if we were on the north side we wouldn't have this discussion here tonight."

School Committee members Alvin Mandell and Byrne asked the Public Buildings Committee to vote on the architect's fee immediately. Their request was not granted.

Youth Commission reorganized

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

At this week's meeting, "reorganization" hit the Youth Commission.

The "new" Youth Commission will be organized into three groups, each dealing with a specific aspect of youth services, which will review all requests for finding from city and outside agencies.

Heretofore requests for city money from such agencies as the Newton--Wellesley-Weston Multi-Service Center, the Newton Community Service Centers, and other such agencies dealing with youth have applied to various city agencies for funding, principally the Health Department.

From now on all these agencies will send a copy of future funding requests related to youth service and program to the chairman of the Youth Commission.

The requests will be reviewed by the appropriate committee of the Youth Commission—clinical servi es, group services, and community organizations—and a recommendation will be made to the mayor within 30 days.

The Youth Commission has been charged also with an on-going evaluation of the various agencies throughout the year to provide a basis for the mayor's and the Board of Aldermen's weighing of program funding requests.

Youth Commission Chairman Rev. Charles Coyle called the new plan "the most significant thing that has happened in the history of the Youth Commission."

Coyle explained that the youth-serving agencies used to "shop for places with money."

In its new role, the Youth Commission, Coyle said, "will have less of an operating role but a more decisive one."

Commission member John McGrath outlined the new tasks of the entire commission as the identification of existing programs, the development of the evaluation format, locating unmet needs, advising on funding requests, and meeting special needs.

Coyle said he hoped that the new organization of the Youth Commissionnwould prevent the rush of agencies appearing at Finance Committee meetings at budget time only, with nothing being heard from them the rest of the year.

Mayoral aide Charles F. Miller, who helped draw up the Youth Commission reorganization, commented that the formalizing of the Youth Commission's role in the budget and evaluation process will apply not only to the funding of city agencies but also to state agencies.

Several state agencies, such as the Newton-Wellesley-Weston Mental Health and Mental Retardation Area Board, also expect some city funding of facilities.

The Youth Commission members will be divided into three groups of two commission members with several advisory–board members assisting,ieach concerned withhan area of service. Membership will be determined insofar as possible by individual interest, to be determined by writtennstatements from members by the next meeting.

In other business the commission heard a brief discussion of two proposals for a streetworker program, one of which would be run during the summer only at a xost of $5,000, and the other a $30,000 program using possible funds from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Act. The latter would require $3,000 in city funds.

Drinan unveils 'privacy' program

Congressman Robert F. Drinan (D-Newton announced this week a five-point program to insure the right of privacy to each citizen.

Speaking at the Community Church of Boston, the congressman described his plans to press for the enactment of major legislation this year to secure the privacy rights of Americans.

The recent indictments by the Watergate grand jury should remind each of us that our liberties are indeed very fragile, and that governmental excesses may easily intrude into our private lives." Congressman Drinan observed. "To protect against those intrusions, we must redouble our efforts to persuade the Congress to pass strong measures to deal with these problems," he continued.

The first point in the plan is to provide access by individuals to files maintained by the government, and to restrict the dissemination of those records.

"Just a few days ago," the Congressman noted, "I sent a letter to the chairman of the subcommittee considering this legislation urging passage of the bill. At the same time, I made a number of suggestions to strengthen the proposal," he added.

"a second area of major concern must be to regulate the collection of information about the beliefs, activities, and associations of Americans who have done nothing more than disagree with the policies of the government or its leaders," Drinan contented. "Since the beginning of my term in Congress four years ago, I have steadfastly tried to restrict the authority of the House Internal Security Committee to keep such files," Congressman stated.

Drinan advocated strict control over the surveillance activities by military and civilian officers of the lives of citizens.

The third plank in the Drinan program is aimed at limiting dissemination of information gathered by criminal justice systems.

"The FBI and other law enforcement agencies collect a great deal of information about us, not all of which is related to alleged violations of the criminal law," he said. "The FBI alone maintains fingerprints on almost 160 million Americans."

"The circulation of arrest records is a matter of great concern, particularly when the recipient is a prospective employer, a licensing agency, a credit bureau, or a bank. If we are to prevent abuses of this data, we must promulgate stringent rules to control its distribution," the congressman said.

"'The indiscriminate release of certain information about our lives, by banks, credit bureaus, loan companies, and retail stores is a fourth matter for congressional action," he siad. "When we apply for credit or a loan, we fully expect the company which requests personal information to keep it confidential. That expectation is frequently ill-founded and we soon learn that such data has been passed along to myriad agencies, both public and private."

The fifth point of Drinan's program calls for the passage of legislation which would prohibit all electronic surveillance of American citizens.

"There is no effective way to monitor the tapping of private telephones, the bugging of private residences, and the eavesdropping on private conversations," the Congressman stated.

"If we are to maintain the 'sacred precincts of private and domestic life,'" he continued, "then drastic steps must be taken to secure the sanctity of our activities.

"It may be that public and private institutions which have collected, stored, and disseminated information about us in the past will have to make major adjustments in the way they have carried on their activities. It may be that they will have to curtail practices previously thought to be unassailable. But that is the cost of securing every right we cherish. I for one am prepared to pay that price. After all, 1984 is only 10 years away," Drinan observed.

Development voted down

The proposal to build 14 units of housing on Florence Street near the Sidney Hill Country Club got a quick "no" from the aldermanic Land Use Committee this week.

The committee voted to recommend denial of the plan to the Board of Aldermen shortly after a public hearing on the site plan.

Other hearings before the Land Use Committee Monday drew little attention from the public.

Letters were transmitted to the Land Use Committee, pro and con, on this proposal. One contained the signatures of five residents in favor of the plan and the other contained 50 signatures opposed to it.

The committee vote against the plan was 5-0.

Land Use also heard proposals for a home for six "exceptional" children at 459 Auburn St., Auburndale; the expansion of a nursing home from seven to nine beds at 175 Woodward St.; and the matter of signs for two businesses, both of which were held by the committee.

The committee also decided to transmit an ultimatum to gas station owner Joseph McMullin, stating that the has until April 8 to deliver plans for cleaning up his Newton Highlands station.

Since a public hearing in January, the Land Use Committee has been waiting for plans from the Newton businessman and has threatened several committee meetings to times issue a "cease and desist" order and make him stop all activities except pumping gas and servicing vehicles.

Mayors support two-city refuse disposal district

At a closed-door meeting last week the mayors of Newton and Waltham said they supported the formation of a Newton-Waltham regional refuse disposal district.

After a report is submitted by the district's consultant, Camp Dresser McKee, next week, the district will advertise for bids on either or both of two alternatives to incineration.

The Newton incinerator will not be used after Dec. 31, 1974, unless there is an unavoidable delay is setting up a new method for handling the city's solid waste.

Waltham has already been forced to stop using its incinerator and is currently having its rubbish hauled out of the city.

N-W District Director Philip Pattison said the bids will be invited in three phases. Phase 1 will obtain bids for refuse disposal for Newton alone, Phase 2 for Waltham alone, and Phase 3 will seek bids for the two cities together.

Camp Dresser McKee will write the bid specifications.

In contradiction to Newton Public Works Director Richard Dudman's prediction that the incinerator will have to be used beyond the Dec. 31 deadline for compliance with federal and state air-quality standards,, Pattison said a transfer station could be operating by Dec. 31 if contracts are awarded by June 15.

The meeting last week, which was opened to the press after about an hour and a half, was reportedly held to discuss eight potential sites in Newton and Waltham that could be used for either a transfer station, from which trash would be hauled away to landfills or incinerators, or a new type of small pollution-free incinerators.

The meeting was called an "informal meeting" between the Newton-Waltham district committee and the two mayors by District Director Pattison, who felt that it was probably held in executive (closed) session during some of the discussion.

Pattison said he expects that the two cities will join together in disposal of solid waste. Both cities must approve or disapprove the agreement to form an operating district by Aug. 31.

Even though the district may agree to joint disposal, possibly with one transfer station serving both communities, the formation of a formal district may prove to be unnecessary.

Each town may simply pay its share of the costs of a joint operation.

The Camp Dresser McKee recommendation on which method of disposal to pursue, the small-incinerator approach or transfer-haul, is expected to be outlined in its report, which will be discussed at a March 20 meeting.

Helping hand for elderly

Uncle Sam, whose hand is in every taxpayer's pocket, is now giving something away.

For weeks the public has been hearing about SSI, but the initials haven't yet really started to sink in. It is hoped that within the next few weeks they'll be as familiar to everyone as WPA was in the days of the Works Progress Administration.

SSI stands for Supplemental Security Income, which has been designed to make life a little more bearable for those 65 years and over, as well as the blind and the disabled.

Those who qualify for SSI receive an income check the first of each month. The new and historic program went into effect on January 1st of this year when all those people on old age assistance, disability assistance and aid to the blind under the state welfare system were converted to the Social Security rolls.

There are probably a number of people in the area with low incomes who have been reluctant to apply for aid under the welfare setup who would now come forward under SSI. And there are undoubtedly many more who simply aren't aware that this type of assistance is available.

It is estimated that there might be as many as 50,000 eligible elderly, blind and disabled persons living in the Greater Boston area who are not currently receiving benefits under this federal program. Determining who these persons are and where they are located is the massive task undertaken by a host of volunteers in the local area whose activities are being coordinated by the Red Cross. This extensive "outreach" program has been tabbed "SSI-Alert" and is now underway in all our area towns.

Volunteers are seeking to identify and locate the elderly (65 or over) and the blind or disabled including the mentally retarded (any age), and having found them, determine their possible eligibility for enrollment in the Supplemental Security Income program. Information as to possible eligibles is then forwarded to the Norwood Social Security District Office on Cottage St. for further action after they have been interviewed by the volunteers.

People who have little or no regular cash income and do not have much money in the bank or other property that can be readily turned into cash, such as stocks, bonds, jewelry or other valuables, may get supplemental security income. Assets are limited to $1500 for a single person and $2250 for a couple. A home with a market value of $25,000 or less doesn't count. The cash value of an individual's insurance policy shouldn't exceed $1500.

People who now receive Social Security checks can receive SSI payments too if they are found to be eligible.

Cheating will not be easy. Bank accounts will be carefully checked.

Area residents who have relatives or know of anyone who might qualify for SSI payments are urged to make sure they apply. With so many retirees on fixed income, it can mean added comfort in their remaining years.

The lights stay on and other tales...

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Last Thursday, we got a call from a reader living near North High School who was concerned about the fact there appear to be lights on in the school 24 hours a day.

She pointed out there is (or was, depending on your political leanings) and "energy crisis," so why are we wasting all of this electricity?

According to School Department officials, lights are left on in North High, South High and two junior high schools on a 24-hour basis because these schools are used until late evening and the cleaning crews arrive to tidy up the buildings after activities end.

The four schools, including North High, according to John Gilleland, director of business services, need the lights for these crews.

Safety and vandalism are the other criteria used when deciding on lighting, the School Department says. Lights are not left on in elementary schools inside at night, but schools are lit outside for the above reasons.

Speaking of schools, a commercial pilot is teaching a flying course at North High School, it is reported in the February issue of the School Department's "Inside View."

"A mini course on flying and private pilot requirements is being offered at Newton North High every Tuesday afternoon this semester," Inside View reports.

"This course, taught by Bill Becker, is part of the Open Campus program which offers a variety of courses to students in the 'X' bloc. Becker is assisted by a commercial pilot, father of one of the students. Average attendance is 40 students a week, many of them girls."

Completely Black

Now, here is a subject that definitely lends itself to a "flight of fancy."

Can't you see it now. . . there are the members of the School Committee saying to the Board of Aldermen "but we must have an airport. . ."

"Look, we've got a bid of $25 million and if you don't build the Newton North Airport this month, it will go up to $30 million. . ."

God bless PR (public relations) men; what would this business be without them?

It is wonderful to sit here and watch all of the PR men, cognizant of the "energy crisis," breaking their necks to try and tie the "crisis" in to news releases and make their stories "relevant."

They, unfortunately, sometimes run into the same problem everyone else is plagued with - trying to stretch things too far.

I received a press release which can only be considered a classic in the field, and Chet Mosher was the victim.

Mr. Mosher had apparently attended a convention for retail clothiers in Texas and this particular "PR" man did his best to tie the "crisis" into the story.

What he, whoever he was, wound up saying was that due to the shortage of gasoline, and the lack of "wheels," men were going to transfer their "energy" to suit!

Men, in other words, were going to take their pent up emotions, normally supposedly expended on the great, chrome symbol, and transfer them to their attire!

Speaking of flights of fancy! Think about men with chrome-edged lapels or taillights.!

And poor Mr. Mosher. I talked to him. I read the story to him, and said, "what can I do with this?" The moral of this particular "story" was that it never appeared in the paper. There was nothing to be done with it. After all, the "energy crisis" (which is no longer a crisis depending on your persuasion) actually does not lend itself of every little topic.

St. Patrick's Day greetings to all of you.

You know, coming from an area of German and middle European people, I never really had an opportunity before to know any Irish people.

A friend of mine here took me to the Harp and Bard in Norwood and I became a great fan of the people and the music.

Saturday night, when I attended a benefit concert staged by the Clancy Brothers and Louis Killen in Brockton, I was reminded that this is our edition before St. Patrick's Day and greetings are in order.

Incidentally, the concert was great, even if I did spend most of my time watching Killen play the banjo.

Political Highlights

By JAMES G. COLBERT

Sarge, Quinn, Dukakis in St. Pat's big show

Governor Francis W. Sargent, Attorney General Robert Quinn and former State Representative Michael Dukakis will be the principal figures in a St. Patrick's Day Spectacular in Everett on Sunday night.

For the first and possibly the only time in the 1974 gubernatorial campaign Sargent, Quinn and Dukakis will be together on the same platform at the 23rd annual dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Everett.

It will be the biggest political event of the St. Patrick's Day Weekend, surpassing even the parade of the pols in South Boston in honor of Ireland's patron saint.

An unusual aspect to the affair is that Dukakis is the only announced candidate of the three.

Sargent and Quinn both are running but are doing it unofficially. It isn't that either is bashful or has any doubt about his political plans. They just aren't ready yet to make a formal announcement.

Sarge is virtually certain of renomination as the Re lican candidate for Governor. His defeat in the September primary would be the most stunning upset in the history of Massachusetts politics.

Quinn and Dukakis are battling for the right to carry the Democratic banner against Governor Sargent in the November election. But their statements sound as if they already were running against Sarge.

Their blasts and broadsides are aimed at Mr. Sargent, not each other. Both Quinn and Dukakis are trying to open as few wounds and leave as few scars as possible in the Democratic party during their primary fight.

So it is expected that Democrats Quinn and Dukakis will draw a bead and let fire at Republican Governor Sargent on Sunday night. But Everett newspaper publisher Joseph A. Curnane, chairman of the dinner, declares that each of the three can speak for 10 minutes about anything he wishes.

Curnane stresses that this is not a debate. It is a forum at which the three top contenders for the Governorship can talk about any subject of their choosing. They can make a pitch for votes, attack each other, submit their records, discuss the gasoline shortage, the energy crisis or good old St. Patrick. It promises to be a lively night.

John F. Kennedy was the speaker at the first dinner held by the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick in Everett. That, of course, was before he became President. Congressional Majority Leader Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neil of Cambridge was the speaker last year.

Between JFK and "Tip" O'Neill there were such speakers as former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, the late Senator Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, former Senators Eugene McCarthy and George Murphy, and Senators Edward M. Kennedy, Edmund Muskie, Abraham Ribicoff, John Pastore and John Tunney.

Members of the late President Kennedy's so-called "Irish Mafia" staff appeared in a group at one of the salutes to the memory of St. Pat.

Sunday night's dinner will be held in the auditorium of the Parlin Junior High School in Everett. The dinner will start at 7:30 p.m., the speaking program about 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $7.50 apiece but have been pretty well bought up.

However, anyone who wishes to hear Governor Sargent, Attorney General Quinn and Dukakis will be admitted free to a small balcony in the junior high auditorium which accommodates about 100 persons.

It will be interesting to hear the speeches by Sargent and Quinn in view of the fact that they have maintained their non-candidate status even though both are campaigning actively. Dukakis will not be under any such wraps or restrictions.

Respectable citizens want to own handguns

Most political pundits on Beacon Hill are completely puzzled as to why it is so difficult to enact an effective gun-control law in Massachusetts.

Murders, kidnappings, terrorism, crimes of violence are at an all-time high. You would think the average law-abiding citizen would want an outright ban on the sale of handguns.

That does not appear to be the case. He would favor a law which would prevent the other guy from buying a handgun. But he would like to reserve for himself the right to purchase a Saturday Night Special and have it hidden away in the house just in case he needs it.

A tendency exists on the part of television and newspaper commentators to attribute the opposition to enacting new laws controlling the sale of handguns to hunters and members of rifle clubs.

It doesn't seem that simple to this bystander.

Why did the members of rifle clubs booh Governor Francis W. Sargent when he appeared at a State House hearing to testify in support of his own bill which was designed to prohibit the sale of revolvers with barrels of less than five inches?

Sarge's measure would not have affected rifles or interfered with hunters or sportsmen. It obviously was aimed at the so-called Saturday Night Specials.

Yet, the Governor of the Commonwealth was boohed when he arose to speak in support of a bill which appeared to be reasonable and desirable.

The explanation seems to be that thousands upon thousands of law-abiding citizens want the right to possess handguns with which they can shoot someone else and even kill them if they consider it necessary for their own protection and well-being.

We're not talking about hoodlums or holdup men or trigger men employed by organized crime.

We're referring to the respected pillars of society in Roslindale, West Roxbury, Dedham, Needham, Norwood, Westwood, Dover, Newton and such communities who feel a need to provide some measure of protection for themselves in an emergency.

That is why there are so many dogs—many of them large dogs— in those sections. They're not just pets. Most of them also are guardians of the premises.

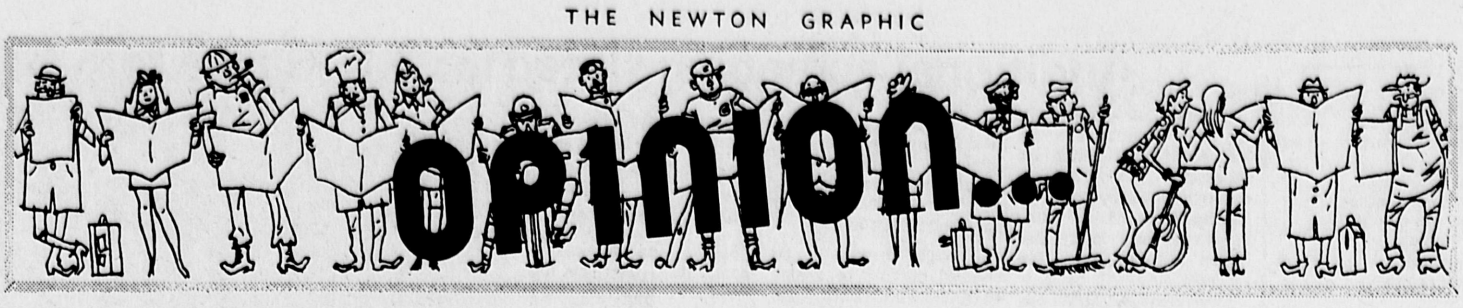
The key to this was the testimony of a woman and housewife who pleaded with a legislative committee not to recommend the adoption of a stiff handgun law.

She pointed out that when three intruders invaded her home and attempted to beat her and her husband, she got a revolver she had handy in the house and killed one of the three men. The other two fled.

The woman was cheered loudly and lustily. She was the heroine of the hearing, and in some respects she deserved to be.

But for every housewife or householder who shoots or frightens off a burglar or bandit, there will be 100 others who either will miss the bandit and be shot herself, shoot someone by mistake or generally botch up the situation.

The housewife who killed a bandit in her home not only was cool in an emergency but apparently knew how to handle a revolver with some skill.



Open letter to Lincoln-Eliot parents

To The Editor:

Would you kindly publish the following letter addressed to the Lincoln-Eliot School community.

So many of you have written to me to urge my support for the $1.2 million appropriation for the proposed Lincoln-Eliot School addition that it has been difficult for me to respond to each letter. I want to personally thank each of you for expressing your concerns about the proposed addition. I particularly appreciate the 50 or more letters from children at the school, and have answered each child's letter individually. It is a pleasure for me to see children involve themselves in the political process.

Some of the letters have contained helpful information about space problems and program needs at the school. Some talk about a past "commitment" by the Board of Aldermen to build the Lincoln-Eliot addition.

Speaking only as one individual alderman, I personally feel no "commitment" to vote for or against any appropriation item, unless and until I have thoroughly satisfied myself as to its merits. In the case of the proposed Lincoln-Eliot addition, I was not even a member of the Board of Aldermen when the initial request arrived from the School Committee on January 27, 1971.

I would remind the Lincoln-Eliot community that there are today eight aldermen who were not Board members in 1971, so that for one-third of the Board this is an entirely new matter which has not been on the aldermanic docket for three years.

From my one visit to the Lincoln-Eliot School I have formed the opinion that certain renovations or additions are both necessary and desirable. Now that the Public Buildings Committee has the appropriation item before it, the committee's task will be to examine the plans which have been prepared and to determine wheether these plans satisfy current needs.

It is my intention to explore such needs and to seek information from parents, teachers, School Department staff and other specialists, which will assist me in determining whether this design is worthy of adoption.

I am aware of the argument that even if this design is somewhat excessive, it may be more costly to cut back and redesign at this late date. That may ultimately be the conclusion that the committee reaches, but it will need assistance and understanding from all of you in order to reach the point of decision.

Finally, speaking for the Public Buildings Committee, you may be assured that we are addressing ourselves to this matter, we are very much aware of your concerns and your desires, and we need your assistance and input.

We will visit the school for the second time on March 19 at 8:45 a.m., and will take this item up at our next committee meeting on March 21 at 8 p.m.

You must understnad, however, that we do not wish to act in haste on an appropriation of this magnitude, and that we will move as quickly as we can on this important mtter.

Aldermanic Public Building Committee

Furor over Turnabout budget cuts

Dear Editor:

I have heard that the city of Newton may discontinue its funding of Project Turnabout. As a participant in the community seminars which have been part of this project I have come to realize that Turnabout has provided moral support and concrete help to many Newton residents who have found Turnabout's methods approachable and acceptable. Since many Turnabout clients are engaged in an ongoing program and have established rapport with Turnabout staff members, it would be disruptive to them to have their source of counsel terminated.

Faced with budget decisions, city officials must consider the most effective means of using available tax money to support social programs and it may well be an advantage to combine and consolidate some existing groups and facilities. However, the failure n our society of many children and adolescents to adjust and develop within the educational system makes it imperative that as many communication avenues as possible be open for young people to explore, in and out of school.

There are several human relation groups in Newton, all doing constructive work in assisting youngsters to understand and modify their behaviour and in giving help in emergency situations. Among them, I believe that Turnabout's Program is unique in its concern with bringing emotional awareness to young people in order to prevent serous problems. It is to be hoped that a way may be found to keep this channel of communication open.

Dr. Finn Brudevold
Waban

Dear Editor

It has come to my attention that "Project Turnabout" is in danger of having its funds cut off here in Newton. I wish to offer my unqualified support for "Project Turnabout's" activity in our community and request that you make every possible effort to continue their funding at this time.

Since September, I have been working closely with Abraham Sussman, Murad Brudevold, and Mark Hinderlie of the "Turnabout" staff, and I am extremely impressed with their professional expertise and the nature of the work they are doing for the young of our city.

At this moment in Newton we have many kinds of activities in and out of the high schools that address themselves to the emotional needs of our students: "Hotline," "Human Relations Groups," "Peer Counseling Groups," "Turnabout Hotline," "Drug Counseling," etc.

As a teacher involved in these areas, I am familiar with the difficulty of staffing them with concerned and competent adults.

By their availability and involvement, Ms. Brudevold, Mr. Sussman, and Mr. Hinderlie have signficantly alleviated this staffing difficulty, providing youngsters with the irreplaceable adult leadership they so desperately need as they try to make sense out of their emotional world. These youngsters will be the losers for "Turnabout's" closing.

Michael A. Morris

Dear Editor:

It has been brought to may attention that Project Turnabout in Neton is being cut from the city budget as of July 1, 1974.

I feel this will be a terrible mistake. My whole family has received help and suport above the call of duty on numerous occasions. Although my family is no longer in a crisis situation, we meet regularly with Turnabout staff for continued insight and support concerning our lives. Please-let's keep Turnabout in Newton.

Defaced

To the Editor:

This is an open letter to the person or persons who carved swastikas and an anti-semetic obscenity on the plastic glass of the MBTA Turnpike Bus stand in front of Newton Corner Library.

You have not only broken the law by defacing private property but also exemplofy symptons of low mentality or mental illness by this cowardly act. You are a discredit to your religion 'if you have one' and to your nationality.

Whoever you are, you are in need of help or you face a very tense and unrelaxed future in a world that could have reason to regret your presence.

Reply to Muther

To the Editor:

I wish to thank Mr. Muther for his reply to my previous letter to you. His response shows his concern and for this we are grateful.

However, rather than continue this dialogue through the "Graphic" to determine the valid statistics of Education in Newton, I would like to extend a genuine invitation to Mr. Muther to visit South High with me and see for himself the evidences of facts mentioned in my letter.

Oh, deer!

To the Editor:

have just completed reading a recent article in the editorial section of the Newton Graphic, dated March 7, 1974, entitled "How Much for Paper Clips?"

It is my belief that your research on this article was quite limited.

One statement in particular personally disturbed me; "The deer in the Webster Conservation Area eat pretty well, too, for $2,500."

The deer eat very well, but not for $2,500. This sum includes the services of transporting deer feed from the grain store in Waltham, and trucking 100 lb. bags of feed to Chestnut Hill, where they are then unloaded and emptied into storage bins. The deer must be fed every day during the year. This alone requires a man, his time and labor, to execute this job (365 days a year!).

May I also point out that we have had several snow storms this winter, and with wind and snow come falling branches and trees, which have done damage to portions of fences in the deer park, thus necessitating the removal of trees and limbs from breaks in the fences surrounding the deer park, and chasing deer that have strayed from the park (not to mention vandalism by people trying to gain entrance to the area). Children and dogs have been chased out of the deer park, not only for the protection of the deer, but for the safety of the children as well.

During the winter months, snowplowing is necessary in order to gain access to the entrance of the deer feeding area.

It is extremely reqarding, when we are being surrounded by cement buildings everywhere we look, to see that a small part of nature in the city of Newton is still being preserved.

One last point, but not least of all, is that the price of grain in the past year has jumped from $5.50 per 100-lb. bag, to $9.45 per 100 lbs.

Additional screening slated for Tay-Sachs prevention

The immediate success of the Tay-Sachs Prevention Program launched only five months ago represents a landmark in community public health affecting thousands of oung Jewish couples in greater Boston and throughout New England.

The Prevention Program idea was first developed by the Tay-Sachs Foundation of New England, a non-profit organization founded by Jewish coupled who themselves had experienced the tragedy of having a Tay-Sachs afflicted child. Backing from the Beth Israel Hospital resulted in a $30,000 advance from the Combined Jewish Philanthropies which enabled the program to begin a series of mass testings last fall.

Tay-Sachs disease is an inherited disorder of infants which causes destruction of the nervous system.

About one in 30 Jewish persons of Ashkenazi origin (of central and eastern European ancestry) is a carrier of the Tay-Sachs trait. Thus, one out of 900 Jewish couples is a risk of having affected children, with a one-in-four chance with each pregnancy that it will result in a child with Tay-Sachs disease.

The program aims to test all Jewish couples of child-bearing age for the Tay-Sachs trait, to counsel those individuals who are found to be carriers and to provide carrier-carrier couples with the opportunity to ensure that their children are born free of the Tay-Sachs abnormality.

In a recent summary setailing the activities of the Prevention Program, co-director Dr. Edwin H. Kolodny of Newton was able to report encouraging progress. The equipment required for automation of the tests used to determine Tay-Sachs carrier status is now in use, he said.

The new equipment permits results to be mailed out to couples in a week or two.

Kolodny also reviewed the mass testings that have been conducted to date; the first in November, 1973, at the Brookline-Brighton-Newton Jewish Community Center was attended by 880 young people.

In late December, 1973, a center was opened at Beth Israel Hospital for handling special situations - the husbands of women pregnant less than four months and others who must be tested prior to the next community mass screening.

Through January, 83 persons have been tested at Beth Israel, including 12 whose previous test results were inconclusive. The center is also serving as a back-up facility for testing the relatives of carriers identified in the mass screenings.

Screenings have been scheduled March 24 for Natick-Framingham at Temple Israel, Natick; April 21 in Brockton at Temple Beth Emunah; and May 5 in Newton at Temple Emanuel, all from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Tay-Sachs

Ronald Silver of Worcester has his blood drawn for the test to dteermine whether or not he is a carrier of the Tay-Sachs trait as Nancy Schwartz of Newton, Tay-Sachs program coordinator, looks on.

SSI Alert Week declared

Mayor Theodore Mann issued proclaimation declaring the week of March 17 as SSI Alert Week in Newton.

Project SSI Alert in Newton is part of a nationwide effort to reach elderly, blind, and disabled people who may be eligible for Supplemental Security Income benefits paid throug the social security administration.

Mann urged Newton citizens to join in this outreach program to find financially needy persons who may be eligible for this monthly income.

It has been estimated that 50,000 persons in Massachusetts who are eligible for the new supplemental security income have not been located and many may not even know of this possible source of added income.

Eelven Newton organizations have formed a consortium and have planned an outreach program to make sure that every eleigible person in Newton learns about Supplemental Security Income and has a chance to aplly.

In the first few days of the SSI Alert drive the Newton Community Service Center staff reported eight potential eligibles for SSI benefits were found.

The Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. has been designated by the Social Security Administration as the lead agency for the Newton to organize the SSI Alert Drive.

The following organizations have joined with the Nwton Community Centers, Inc. to form the SSI Consortium: Newton City Hall, Family Counseling West, Newton Red Cross, Newton Visiting Nurse Association, Garden City Activity Center, Carroll Rehabilitation Center, Myrtle Baptis Church, Eliot Church, Nwton Police Department, and Vista.

Potential eligibles who are unable to visit these agencies may request a trainec SSI Alert volunteer to make a home call. No home visits will be made, however, unless requested.

All of the information that is given to the SSI Alert volunteers will be held confidential and will only be used in connection wit the Social Security Administration program.

On Sunday, March 17, Project SSI Alert has requested that every church and temple distribute copies of the Nwton SSI Alert leaflet which details eligibility requirements and locatoiins where forms can be filled out. SSI Alert leaflets are available in quantity at the Newton Community Service Centers, 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

Another special event for SSI Alert week will be a community meeting to discuss the progress of the SSI Alert Program. The meeting will be held March 22 from 10 a.m. to noon at the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. Jay Hayes of the Social Security Administration will be the speaker.

Program for women at Andover Newton next fall

A program to train women for the ministry will be launched at Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, next fall by the task force on women in church and society of the United Church of Christ.

The year-long program will allow 15 women, selected from the Andover Newton student body, to design their own ministries and then work in those jobs during an intensive training period. A team of three women ministers will be chosen to direct the program.

The task force on women will receive a grant of $19,000 from the deonomination's committee on theological education for the project, it was announced recently by the Rev. Frederick R. Trost, Chicago, chairman of the Committee.

According to Valerie Russell, executive for the task force, Andover Newton was selected because it has had a more dramatic increase in enrollment of women than any other United Church seminary. This year forty percent of first year students are women.

A nine-member steering committee will select the teaching team and evaluate the program. The committee includes: Rev. Barbara Gerlach, a member of the task force and direector of the women's theological coalition of the Boston Theological Institute; Rev. David Foy Crabtree, a member of the United Church task force on women; Rev. Walter Telfer, chairman of Andover Newton's department of church and ministry; Rev. Emily Hewitt, a professor in the department of church and ministry; Dr. Phyllis Trible, a professor in the Old Testament department; Rev. Dr. Oliver Powell, minister of the Metropolitan Boston Association of the United Church of Christ, Rev. Phyllis Ingram, Ms.Marjorie Coons and Ms. Johannah Fine, all students at Andover Newton.

Ms. Russell pointed out that while only 242 of the denomination's 9,000 ministers are women, "more and more women are attending seminary." She pointed out that in common with men, women ministers face a declining demand for pastrs, especially in the Northeast.

"For women, the problems of the tight job market will, for the forseeable future, be compounded by job discrimination. The seminary has a responsibility to prepare women to overcome the obstacles to their ministries," she said.

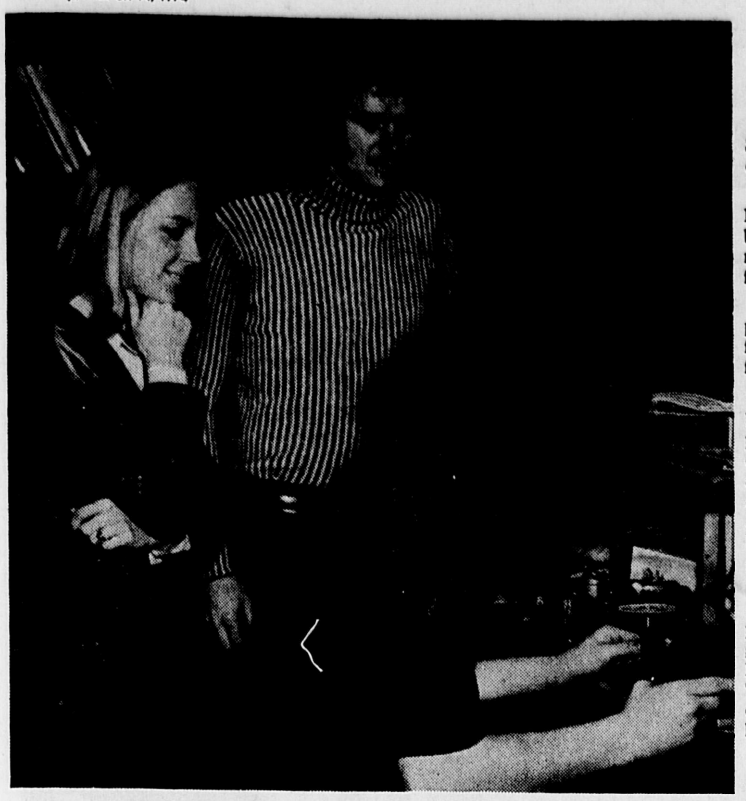
Programs for wide range of ages



Nancy Macmillan and Phil Churchill review work site

The Mason Rice Community School is now in its second year of operalion.

With cooperation from the Recreation Department, it has been able to hold a family recreation night every Tuesday from 7-9 p.m.

The community school program sponsors an additional family night every Thursday from 7-9 p.m.

Volleyball, gymnastics, basketball and newcomb are played by parents and their children. Gymnastics has been a highly popular activity amongst school age children, and there are three classes for kindergarten through fourth grade children on Friday afternoons.

Guitar classes have been provided for youngsters in grades four, five and six on Monday afternoons. On Tuesday evenings there are classes for junior high students, high school students and adults.

Creative dramatics, in its second year, meets on Thursday afternoons.

Photography workshops are being organized for Tuesday and Thursday evenings and are open to members of the community 10 years of age and older.

The school is planning outdoor activities such as bicycle repair workshops and tennis.

The Mason Rice Community School welcomes queries and suggestions concerning programming.

For further information aabout activities, people may contact Rita Richmond, coordinator, at 527-7432, or Julie Gorn at 965-0510.

The Lower Falls Community School was established in the fall of 1973 by a small group of people who were interested in bringing to Lower Falls a aveiety of short courses that were low in cost and easily assessible to the neighborhood.

All course last six weeks with registration preference to the Lower Falls community, but they are available to the surrounding communities as well.

Among the classes offered are creative painting, arts and crafts, knitting knobby, ceramics and sculpture, woodworking, needlework, macrame and recreation gym. These classes are available for children from age four through adults.

The Lower Falls Community School is well attended and enjoyed by a large segment of the community. It has provided many hours of enjoyment to many who might not have been able to take these classes, haddit not been available in their local community.

The school hopes to offer several more courses in the fall in addition to the ones already listed. People may obtain information by calling the Hamilton School in Newton Lower Falls.

Youth Corps serves 182

The Newton AMPB Neighborhood Youth Corps Program is now serving over 182 different boys and girls ages 14 - 21 from Newton and the surrounding communities, according to Anthony J. Bibbo, ACSW executive director of this agency.

Headed by Alfred DiBenedetti, project director the program includes 16 communities. Assisting DiBenedetti, are three coordinators with responsibility for a number of communities. David Andrews is coordinating the towns of Millis, Medfield, Walpole, Norfolk, Sharon, Wrentham and Plainville; Nancy Macmillan supervises Weston, Newton, Wellesley and Dover; and Randy Sloane works with the towns of Needham, Dedham, Westwood, Norwood and Canton.

The In-School Program which is funded through the Department of Labor for this school year is designed to provide work experience and supportive services to low income youngsters currently in school. The program serves as a stimulus to insure that low income youths are provided an opportunity to continue and-or resume their education.

Generally, the program id designed to raise the educational attainment of youth and improve their employability through paid work experience. It functions to provide additional income for youth from low income families with the added objective of ascertaining improved academic achievement,

This is part of the Manpower Plan for the Newton Ancillary Manpower Planning Board (AMPB) to be incorporated in to the comprehensive manpower plan for the state.

Initially, upon accepting the position as the grantee agency, contract was made with each of the school department through the superintendents' office included in the area plan by the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. and members of the initial ad hoc AMPB NYC Advisory Committee.

Each school department either through the superintendent or his designate was provided applications, given guidelines as set forth by the Department of Labor, and asked to submit names and recommendations for potential enrollees.

In many communities the school department included social agencies and town departments in the enrollee application and funding process. In addition, town departments and non-profit social agencies were asked to provide worksites for the NYC enrollees.

In addition to the staff, an advisory committee consisting of Newton Community Service Centers board members, AMPB representatives and consumers (NYC enrollees) serve to provide an ongoing evaluation of the program. As the program moves into its sixth month of operation, the Newton Community Service Centers, Inc. is soliciting evaluation on the NCY to date from participants either at worksites, consumers or referral agencies. The process of an ongoing evaluation will serve to enhance the program.

For additional information contact the main office at 527-4884 or visit 429 Cherry St., West Newton.

Cookie drive launched

Senior and cadette scouts in Newton who are part of Bay Path Colonial Girl Scout Council will launch a drive on March 14, 15 and 16 to sell a record number of cookies.

Cookie sale stations will be set up at: Riverside MBTA Station March 14, 4-6 p.m., March 15, 4-6 p.m.; First National Store, Washington St., Newtonville Thursday, March 14, Friday, March 15 4-8 p.m., Saturday, March 16, 10 a.m.-5 p.m.; King's Department Store, Watertown Street, March 14, March 15, 3-10 p.m.; Saturday; Big Buy Market, Watertown Street, March 14, March 15, 3-10 p.m., March 16, 10a.m. - 5 p.m.

This is an effort to reach people who missed the chance to give advance orders at their homes. The price is $1.00 for the family-size box. Five varieties will be available: cookie mint, assorted sandwich, peanut butter, chocolate chip'n nut, butter shorties.

Cadette and senior troops will earn $.20 on every box. This profit is in addition to the $.38 per box profit which goes towards the Council budget. The troop money will help girls expand their troop activities such as ecology projects, service to the elderly and studies of local historical spots for girl scouting's part in bicentennial celebrations.

Cookie funds enable the Council to provide training and program help for volunteer leaders, to offer wider program opportunities for girls and to support year-round and summer camping.

Pet Care Corner

GUIDE TO GOOD HEALTH HABITS
By RICHARD W. BRYANT, Director of Education Animal Rescue League of Boston

While children should certainly be taught to love animals, for health and safety's sake teach them to demonstrate affection in the correct way.

Most dogs and cats appreciate a kind word or a gentle pat, but never allow children to kiss a household pet or any other animal. Children, and adults too, should observe a few common sense health rules in dealing with household pets.

Always wash hands with soap and hot water after handling food dishes or cages. This is particularly important before eating. Unless it is absolutely necessary, do not handle turtles at all. To transfer them from one container to another, use a small fish net.

Keep small children away from a pet's feeding area at mealtime. Their presence makes an animal nervous, and often with just cause. Children will sometimes try to drink from the pet's water dish and even help themselves to his food — practices which obviously are to be discouraged.

After dinner, wash pet dishes and containers separately from your own, and always rinse them, and the sink area, with boiling water. When you are changing the water in a turtle tank, fish bowl or small aquarium, flush the old water down the toilet, then rinse the bowl with disinfectant or boiling water. Used cat litter can be disposed of in the same way, or else securely wrapped up and disposed of in the garbage. Never dump used litter outdoors where anyone might touch it.

By observing these safeguards, you can help ensure better health for both the people and the pets in your home.

Q. F. S. of Newton asks: Why do people let their cats and dogs breed litter after litter when there are serious problems in animal overpopulation now? Don't you think people project their own feelings about reproduction on to their animals so that you hear people say, "Oh, I couldn't spay (or neuter) my dog. Think how she would feel!" Can you explain to people that animals don't have the problems we humans have with anxieties? When they do not have young, they do not worry about not having them. I'm sure readers are not aware of how many unwanted animals are destroyed yearly in the U. S.

A. Allowing animals to breed indiscriminately is cruelty in the guise of kindness. Thank you, F. S., for calling our readers' attention to this tragic problem, and for answering your own question so perceptively. We plan to devote a full column to this topic in the near future.

Virginia Tashjian speaks to Pen Women

What books are obscene, what books are not obscene, which to purchase, which not to purchase are questions challenging librarians today, Mrs. Virginia Tashjian, director of the Newton Free Library and author of several children's books, told fellow members and guests of the Wellesley Branch, National League of American Pen Women.

She mentioned other problems–copyright turmoil raised by the copying machine, limited federal and state funding, and impoundment of funds.

"There are many mediocre books," she said, "but don't believe those who tell you there isn't good literature today." She reviewed briefly some 20 recently published volumes.

Today's bride more prepared

A modern bride finds the planning and decision-making for her wedding day to be practical experience she can draw on later in her married life.

Today's bride-to-be, perhaps involved more than ever in almost every phase of the wedding plans from the engagement announcement to the honeymoon arrangements, recognizes the valuable lessons to be learned during this period through budgeting thoughtful planning and scheduling, and working with others, particularly her future husband.

Some experts on marriage and family life concur that this new generation of young brides, facing as yet unknown financial woes and domestic trials, is approaching matrimony with greater forethought and understanding than previous generations.

Despite the explosion of new lifestyles, the women's liberation movement, and swiftly shifting social values, past pre-wedding sales and ceremonial popularity indicate the bride in 1974 will still seek the traditional wedding and reception, and will utilize the occasion to prepare herself for the life-long partnership she will vow to uphold.

Romantically, she embraces throughts of beautiful wedding day rites, the wedding ring, her lovely gown and veil, but realistically, the mature and serious bride reminds herself that events leading to her marriage are a prelude to future challenges she must share with her spouse.

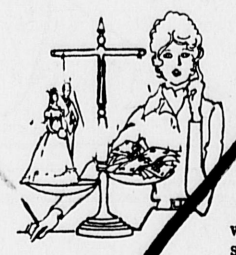
Together, the wedding couple makes wedding day and honeymoon plans, settles invitation disagreements and other matters, and prepares a future home, whether it be a house or apartment. Naturally, they will cherish their wedding gifts, but they will also need many items for their home — furniture, decorations, appliances, china, silverware, cookware — a great deal of which they may have to purchase themselves. They must assemble the basics for beginning a new life together.

Economically, the impact of newlyweds is formidable. As they start life with one another, nearly 40 percent will have a yearly household income of over $10,000, while in the months before and after their marriage, they will account for at least $5 billion in retail sales. Concerned with the cost of living and employment factors, they will, no doubt, watch their dollars carefully and seek out values.

Employment considerations will present additional challenges and periods of adjustment for the newlyweds of 1974, especially if the bride has decided to continue at a regular job or pursue a career, as her groom assumedly will do. Almost half the brides will have attended a two-year or four-year college, and over three-fourths may continue to work during the first years of marriage

Yet, in other ways, brides have not changed. In terms of median age, the average new bride remains younger than the groom, by approximately two and one-half years, according to government surveys.

And marriage as an institution is not declining in popularity. It is estimated that there will be almost 2.5 million marriages in 1974, a statistic, including those other than first marriages, which rises every year.



Avoid time and money woes

A reasonably organized bride-to-be who designs and adheres to some sort of schedule can manage her wedding plans easily and avoid a time squeeze.

Anywhere from twelve to four months before the wedding, decisions must be made on the wedding budget, ceremony and reception. Once a date is set, appropriate arrangements can be made.

Wedding gowns, practically custom made, should be ordered early. At the same time, the bride should choose bridesmaids' dresses, taking into consideration her bridesmaids' figures as well as their pocketbooks, since they must pay for their dresses. Meanwhile, the bride and groom can begin planning their home or apartment and buying the furnishings too.

Once the guest list is finalized, preferably within three months of the wedding, invitations and announcements should be ordered. With family help, hand-addressed envelopes can be finished two months or so before the wedding. Invitations mailed three weeks before the wedding followed by announcements completes the task.

The couple can then seek their marriage license and visit their doctors for medical examinations. The bride and groom can also use the opportunity to remind one another about gifts for the best man, ushers and attendants

As the wedding draws closer, within a month perhaps, arrangements should be finalized for the following: flowers, music, wedding party transportation, accomodations, wedding portrait, wedding cake, photographer's instructions, wedding announcement in newspapers, and final gown fittings for the bride and bridesmaids.

Brides can keep calm by pacing themselves and regularly checking the various services essential to the wedding. Within the two-week period prior to the wedding, she can recheck services, make special arrangements, give the bridesmaids' luncheon, arrange seating, go over her trousseau, see her beautician and hold the rehearsal.

Soon after the engagement, the bride-to-be should discuss with her parents possible wedding costs, at the same time deciding the type of wedding, formal or informal, and the reception, a catered dinner or a small buffet.

Once the family has decided upon a budget, the bride should be free to exercise her own judgment about the way it will be spent. But, as with all budgets, it cannot be inflexible. As long as she stays within the budget, the bride may go overboard on one expense and cut back on another — the choice is hers.

Included in the bride's budget will be her wedding attire, invitations and announcements, church fees, flowers, music, photography, transportation bridesmaids' gifts, the bride's gift to the groom, and the single biggest expense, the reception. The luncheon for the brides' attendants and the rehearsal dinner are optional.

When the bride first talks to the people whose services she will need, it is best to tell them exactly what she plans to spend and ask what she can expect for that amount of money. It is pointless to be vague about this.

An open discussion will speed arrangements.

Once the ceiling is known, the caterer may suggest an afternoon reception instead of the breakfast or dinner contemplated by the bride; the florist may offer more simple bouquets and floral arrangements; or the photographer may make a mental note to shoot only the most important moments of the wedding and reception.

With a budget, everyone knows exactly what can be provided for a specific amount of money.

Rather than ruin an engagement, a budget frees the bride. Once she begins to think and plan realistically, everything falls into place. If costs present an insurmountable hurdle, she can cut corners without it showing., A simple, quiet wedding, keeping within a family's means, can be as impressive as a lavish display.

Plan early for best photos

The more snapshots taken at your wedding, the more fun your wedding album is going to be. Your professional photographer will get lots of wonderful, formal wedding pictures, but he can't be everywhere at once.

How would he know, for instance, that Great-Aunt Martha, who sits on the sidelines, would be crushed if someone didn't take a picture of her? And there are unexpected happenings that can be funny or touching — the flower girl blowing bubble-gum bubbles, Dad and Mom dewy-eyed as they watch the cake cutting, the family dog eating a piece of wedding cake.

You can solve two problems by giving members of the wedding party easy-to-use Kodak pocket Instamatic cameras. Pocket cameras are great gifts for ushers and ring bearers, and the people who receive them can take lots of candid pictures at the reception. The ring bearer will probably keep out from underfoot and he may take some great snapshots if you give him a hip pocket camera, the newest, smallest member of the Kodak pocket Instamatic camera family.

For ushers, there's a choice of six pocket camera models, ranging from the low-priced Kodak pocket Instamatic 10 camera (the hip pocket) to the pocket Instamatic 60, which has a coupled rangefinder and a fast f-2.7 Ektar lens. They all take color slides or big 3½ x 4½-inch color snapshots, and they're slim enough to slip into a pocket without spoiling the just-so look of wedding finery.

A few tips for taking wedding snapshots can make your album more of a joy. Let the camera-carriers know which guests you especially want snapped. Each snapshot should be limited to no more than three people. The best shots will be taken with the camera as close to the subject as the instruction booklet says is permissible. And be sure to have plenty of cartridges of color film and magicubes on hand.

Don't forget to slip a pocket camera into your going-away purse or pocket. You'll want to snap pictures of each other, and waiters and other honeymooning couples will be glad to snap pictures of the two of you together at dinner, on the beach, pedaling a tandem bicycle.

Once you're settled into your new home, give a picture party. Ask everyone to bring the snapshots taken at your wedding to show along with the honeymoon shots. If you don't have a Kodak pocket Carousel projector, get adapters for pocket slides from a photo dealer so you can view them with a standard projector.

For your album, you can have prints made from the best of the slides, and five by seven-inch enlargements can be made from your color negatives.

The bride entertains

LENOX'S BLUE TREE CHINA adds the color with a palette of palest blue, lemon, pink and ivory. Hand-blown Laurent crystal, also from Lenox, adds the sparkle. A green table cloth rickracked with pink, blue and lemon complete the romantic ambience

Create elegant dining

The choices of today's bride are many. From wedding rings to pots and pans, bridal fashions to bed linens, the name of the game is deciding and selecting, all intended to create an environment that reflects your new lifestyle.

In all of these choices, don't overlook tableware, says Charles Solt, a design director for the Lenox China Company, because china, crystal and silver are the means of creating a pleasing, happy dining environment.

"There's a specal kind of elegance that abounds when a table is set with fine china, gleaming crystal and silver," said Mr.Solt. "An aura of romanticism is created that is hard to duplicate. Yet, fine china and crystal are so versatile they fit in with all your entertaining needs."

Today's bride is lucky because the variety selection of china, silver and crystal makes it possible to set a table according to her own individual taste.

This great variety, however, may be confusing to new brides,added Mr. Solt, an excellent reason to get the advice of a Wedding Gift Registry Consultant at your favorite store.

Wedding Gift Registries have one or more consultants who are there specifically to help you determine your tableware needs.

The consultant can give you top-notch advice on selecting fine china and informal dinnerware as well as coordinating crystal and flatware.

Often, just having an experienced consultant suggest china and crystal patterns you never thought would go together opens up a whole new way of thinking. She can also help you select a color scheme for your table, tell you what is new, and fill you in on the latest trends.

The Wedding Gift Registry is a free service offered by most department and jewelry stores. Once a girl registers her gift preferences with a particular store, the Registry keeps an up-to-date record of what gifts have been purchased, avoiding duplication.

Not only do bridal registries offer you, the bride-to-be, invaluable assistance, they are an enormous help to your family and friends.

People want to give you what you want and registering your gift preferences—appliances, housewares and decorative accessories as well as tableware and linens—is a convenient way for people to find out what you need.

The bridal consultant will be able to tell you the qualities to look for when choosing fine china and crystal. It is a smart idea, though, to have a few facts in mind about what to look for before starting to shop. Here are some shopping tips:

+Be aware of the many fine china and crystal patterns available and select those that reflect you and your fiance's individuality. For example, Lennox, the china that is registered for by the largest number of brides, offers a very wide variety of designs, from simple bands to rich cobalt patterns to bright florals. Their crystal collection includes the classically simple with delicately-etched designs, heavy cut, and colored stemware patterns. Many are coordinated with Lenox China.

+Know that fine china is translucent when held up to the light and crystal has a clear, bell-like ring when tapped.

+Buy place settings of china and crystal. Fine china is available in three-piece Buffet-Place Setting which includes dinner plate, cup and saucer and five-piece Complete Place Setting which has a salad-dessert plate and a butter plate. A three-piece crystal place setting consists of a water goblet, a dessert-champagne glass and wine glass.

+Buy open stock fine china and crystal so you can add or replace pieces as needed.

Sterling gifts become heirlooms

The fervor with which Americans are seeking out treasures from this country's past testifies to a new appreciation for the unique, the beautiful, and the handcrafted.

There's a sense of history in much of the tableware made long ago. A decades-old cut glass candy dish, a glowing, hand-painted pitcher, a piece of old silver are the result of loving attention and skilled craftsmanship. Such items as these — touched by the hand of man — take on increasing value with the passing years.

When today's bride-to-be selects tableware for her new home, her choice inevitably becomes one not only for the present, but for the future as well.

The lovely things she'll place on her table with such pride when she gives her first dinner party will become the heirlooms she'll eventually hand down to her children and grandchildren.

"Choosing for the future" is a wise approach, not only for the bride who selects her tableware, but for the gift-giver who helps add to her store of treasures. For both, there couldn't be a better choice than sterling silver.

Sterling promises to grow both more valuable, and more beautiful, with time. Its luminous beauty, as shining and flawless as it is when it's acquired, is destined to take on the soft, lustrous patina that comes only with use — the look prized by so many collectors of antique silver.

There are so many reasons for selecting sterling that have to do with present enjoyment, too. Solid silver lends a very special personality to the house where it makes its home.

The beauty of the metal and the perfection of its craftsmanship speak volumes for its owners' good taste and love of fine things.

For even though the new bride will probably want a set of everyday flatware for use with everyday meals, she'll count on sterling to add the touch of elegance she wants for all the special-occasion meals ahead.

The parents, friends and relatives of the bride who give her solid silver are starting her off with an heirloom of the future, destined to be counted among her "favorite things."

The bride's parents may want to follow tradition, and present her with a basic set, consisting of a number of place settings and perhaps serving pieces. Other relatives and friends might add to her place settings (which can number from three to six pieces). Or they might choose one or two of the handsome serving pieces, such as the flat server, pie or cake serving knife, lemon fork, or pierced tablespoon.

A "COUPE DE MARRIAGE," such as the diminutive "Tete a Tete" marriage cup by Reed and Barton is traditional in many marriage ceremonies. The cup is especially used for the bride and groom to exchange devotion.

Additional teaspoons or dessert forks are always welcome gifts, too, for they're especially handy when there are more guests than usual to be served, say, at a buffet party.

It's a good thing to check with the bridal gift registry at the store where the bride-to-be has registered her sterling pattern, in order to find out which pieces she needs.

EVEN WHITE wall to wall carpeting in a sooty, city apartment is a cinch for the bride with today's modern rug cleaners.

You can even clean white rugs

Even a novice homemaker knows that a rug is the easiest of floor coverings to care for — a vital requirement for the bride who holds down a job and must conserve time and energy.

The only "but" in the rug picture has always been the color. To insure that much-loved practicality, as well as beauty that lasts, homemakers often have sacrificed the lighter, brighter colors, and that ultimate symbol of luxury — the white rug — in favor of more practical shades that "won't show the dirt."

No more. Now all colors, even pure white, are as practical and easy to care for as dirt-hiding shades, because of a revolutionary new product that makes rug cleaning almost as easy as vacuuming.

Spray 'n Vac, from Glamorene, sprays on in just minutes, dries in about one hour, ready for vacuuming. There is no bending, scrubbing, sponging or rinsing.

The cleaning solvents in the foam do the work, removing the dulling film of greasy dirt — and leave the rug clean, fresh and bright.

Rug cleaning is so easy now you don't have to put it off, or leave it to expensive professional care. Even a white rug in a high smog or soot area is no longer an impossible dream, because, while such conditions may dictate more frequent cleaning, the cleaning itself is simple, quick and foolproof.

A white rug, incidentally, is a wise investment for any first apartment because it serves as the perfect neutral background for other colors. White also is a good choice because it can move so easily later on to other rooms, a larger apartment or a house.

So with rug cleaning no longer drudgery but only a "spraylude" to regular vacuuming, today's bride can enjoy the kind of luxurious rug homemakers in the past wouldn't have dared to own.

Homecare simplified for newlyweds

"Easy care" lifestyle offsets routine

YOUNG MARRIEDS AND ENTERTAINING go hand in hand, and a gift that makes party-giving easier is bound to please today's bride.

In 1974, more brides will go from altar to office than ever before in the history of woman.

What's the one strong link between contemporary Ms. and her home-bound predecessors?

HOUSEWORK.

Maintaining clean and comfortable living quarters is still a strong female instinct despite the fact that today's bride might spend more time outside her home than in it. And the password to that outside world is easy care, a new way of living geared to simplify day-to-day chores.

Since most new brides—78 percent says a recent Bride's Magazine survey—intend to work full-time as well as keep house during their first year of marriage, easy materials will probably fill a large portion of the new home.

Considering all the sophisticated appliances now available, coupled with easy-to-care-for furniture and fabrics, housekeeping has been relegated to parttime work and that's apparently the way modern woman wants it.

Furniture manufacturers have designed functional pieces which afford a maximum of aesthetics with a minimum of care. Among the modern materials are vinyls, plastics, simulated furs and suedes, steel, glass and chrome.

Natural fibers like canvas, hemp, wicker and rush are popular textures for furniture and accessories—a cinch to take care of, too.

Having a dependable vacuum cleaner will make for easier care and extend the wear of her rugs or carpets and other new furnishings.

To maintain her floor coverings, regular vacuuming is a must. A rug can hold practically its own weight in dirt, and still look clean on the surface.

In fact, the entire home cleaning process will be simplified if the new bride opts for a good vacuum cleaner to do much of her work. Some of the current models have been designed to replace sundry other tools in the house.

For instance, the Eureka Power Team is a totally new concept in vacuum cleaners for it combines the versatility of a canister with the deep-cleaning ability of an upright.

Its Roto-Matic Carpet tool adjusts automatically to clean everything from low nap patio carpets to high shags. What's more, a deluxe control panel allows selection of air speeds so that one can make a clean sweep of curtains, chairs, large-leafed plants, radiators, refrigerators, rugs . . . or just about anything else in the house that offers dust a resting place.

A wealth of easy-care homemaking ideas—including tips on how to select the right vacuum and how to plan a cleaning center—are included in a helpful new booklet from the Eureka Home Care Institute. Called "Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Your Home," it's available by sending 10 cents in stamps or coins to: The Eureka Company, Dept. M, Bloomington, Ill. 61701.

NO LAUNDRY TRIPS for this bride. Her Lady Kenmore compact laundry fits right into her kitchen. Both the washer and dryer have cycles to care for all types of fabrics — just like big machines.

BALANCING THE BUDGET can be easier when you have a home food freezer you can dip into to help make ends meet.

Decorate with candles

Many brides prefer having their reception at home because of the special pleasure derived from gathering family and friends in intimate and familiar surroundings.

Every bride, of course, envisions the reception table properly and handsomely decorated. And candles invariably play an important part in the decor scheme.

Decorations for afternoon and evening weddings should be centered on white flowers, including smilax or other greens. The tablecloth should be white; except that if it is a second wedding the cloth can be in the bride's favorite color.

"Candles in silver or crystal candlesticks should be used extravagantly both as decoration and to light the table," says Donald Mowry, candle expert at Hallmark Cards. "Well polished brass holders also serve to reflect the gleam of crystal and silver flatware and create an elegant effect."

Hallmark tapers especially designed for weddings come in a variety of shapes and sizes—tall, short, fat, thin. Among them is the Mantilla, a candle with a lacy effect in silver-and-white, gold-and-white or, white-on-white. Another comes in a wedding bell design; all are in pure white tones.

A charming decorative touch can be achieved, says Mowry, by placing the bride's bouquet in the center of the table and surrounding it by candlesticks holding lighted candles. Or, a centerpiece arrangement might be a bowl of white flowers with candles on either side. Small prettily packaged gifts for members of the wedding party can be added to the table setting.

Another arrangement might be a rectangular mirror at the table's center. In one corner, arrange three small candle holders.

Remember music

No matter what type of reception the bride is planning, music can play an important part in adding to the atmosphere of the happy occasion. An accordionist, guitarist or pianist is perfect for a small reception, while a trio can supply dance music for a larger gathering. Elaborate receptions call for an orchestra.

A band leader, if he specializes in weddings, can manage a reception from the receiving line to the last dance. Many groups specialize in wedding music.

While discussing the type of dance music to be played at her reception, the bride might consider the various ages of the guests who will attend. There can be "rock" and "pop," but intersperse it with slower music plus various ethnic and nostalgic tunes which are popular.

Good musicians can bridge the generation gap beautifully, and everyone from grandparents to friends will have a wonderful time dancing and listening at the reception.

Naturally you want the Men in your wedding to look outstanding. At Geishecker's we take pride in making sure that no detail is overlooked. Whether its a basic Single Breasted or the Newest Price Edward you can depend on

Waban Women's Club honors 2 businesses

Sal Rizzo, owner of Sal Rizzo, Inc. of Waban, will be presented a First Place Certificate in the Beauty for Business Program of the Waban Woman's Club at the March 18 meeting of the club.

The program is part of a national effort sponsoredby the General Federation of Women's Clubs and Cities Service Oil Co. through the Cities Service Foundation. The primary purpose of the program is to convince businessmen that simple landscaping and renovation can do much to give theif irm a new look and improve the community environment.

At his own expense, and withthe expenditure of considerable effort, Rizzo has developed and maintained a garden complete with waterfall between his beauty shop and the MBTA Riverside line which runs along beside it. The Waban club believes that the appearance of Waban Square has been greatly improved through Rizzo's voluntary efforts to make his establishment more attractive and are pleased to recongnize his significant contribution to the overall community environment with this award.

Receiving a Certificate of Commendation in the program for extensive building renovation and modernization of its Woodward Street branch will be the Newton-Waltham Bank and Trust Co. Accepting for the bank wil be Trumbull C. Curtiss, vice-president for marketing.

'Battle of the bottles' led by Pines and Harrington

Newton Representatives Lois G. Pines and Peter F. Harrington testified this week before the Joint Committee on Natural Resources in behalf of their comprehensive "Bottle Bill" (House 4122).

The legislation, which they spent a year researching and drafting, would require: A 6 cent deposit on beer and soft-drink containers holding less than a quart and a 10 cent deposit on larger containers, starting next January.

The bill would also establish a standard-container incentive by requiring only half the deposit on bottles that are reusable by all bottlers and on a uni-metal can and would ban flip-tops beginning Jan7. 1, 1967.

Appearing in support of their bill was Oregon Gov. Tom McCall, who testified that "the continued use of the nonreturnable bottle is destroying our environment and using up our energy. According to national statistics the trend in the industry is toward plant consolidation, which will result in the loss of thousands of jobs."

Also appearing in support of House 4122 were Vermont Attorney General Kimberly Cheney, and Eileen Claussen of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

In support of the legislation, Rep. Harrington said, "Prior to the end of World War II all soda and beer sold for home consumption was packaged and sold in refillable bottles. Each bottle made about 25 trips to the consumer before it was lost to the industry. It was to exploit this market that the "Convenience" one-way container was born."

Concerning the economic impact of H. 4122, Rep. Pines added, "A recent survey taken in Newton supports the contention that a return to refillable bottles will result in a substantial savings to the supermarket consumer. Soft drinks sold in returnables are consistently less expensive than those sold in throw-away containers. The same consumer savings holds true in a survey of beer prices 1-1 by purchasing returnables one can save 60 cents to $1 per case."

In another area of interest, Rep. Pines said, "Clearly, the refillable bottle is the most efficient package energywise. It has been calculated that, because of the overwhelming shift to returnables in Oregon, 1,320 billion BTU's were saved during the first year of its operation.

"Assuming that it requires 120 BTU's a year to heat an average home in the area," Pines continued, "by switching to returnables saved enough energy to heat all the homes in a city with a population of 46,000. Extrapolating from these findigs and assuming a similar increase in the percentage of returnables sold, we may anticipate the saving of enough energy to heat all the homes in a city the size of Newton for one full year."

Harrington added, "It is time we recognized that we have reached the point at which we no longer direct our national destiny. We have lost this birthright to a mammoth industrial complex whose only interest is profit. In that endeavor industry has defiled our natural resources and distorted our natural sense of priorities. With bright and flashy advertising it seduced us into the age of the throw-away."

In support of their legislation Pines and Harrington offered the following arguments:

1. It will effect a substantial reduction in the depletion rate of our natural resources.
2. It will diminish our energy requirements.
3. It will provide a safer container and thereby lower the number of accidental injuries.
4. It will release millions of dollars for the supermarket consumer (the cost of beverage in throw-away containers is 15 percent more than when returnable containers are used).
5. It will alleviate a present problem in the Commonwealth, that is, our inability to cope with our solid waste disposal needs.
6. It will be a major contributing factor in returning our picnic areas, our beaches, and our roadsides to their unlittered state of natural beauty.

Hotline needs workers

In 1969 the Newton Hotline was founded by a group of concerned volunteers who saw the need for a telephone counseling service in Newton.

In the last five years the Hotline staff has aided hundreds of people with a variety of difficulties. The goal of the program has been to be a sympathetic and understanding ear for those who have utilized the service. Many of those who call seek information on problems common to contemporary youth. For those who seek professional help, the Hotline maintains an extensive referral list. The Hotline is open Monday through Friday 8 - 11 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday evenings 8 p.m. to 12 midnight.

The Hotline is beginning its spring recrutiment. The Hotline and those who use the service need people who are willing to donate a few hours a week to help. People who are interested in working on the Hotline may call 969-5906 evenings and arrange for an interview.

to be implemented in a fashion where we see improvement."

Fink said that in previous years criticism of the language arts program came from within the School Department.

"In the late 60's doing your own thing came to mean whatever anyone wanted to submit," Fink commented.

"The guidelines are the result of a good deal of effort," Fink added. "The guidelines provide a basis for the development of materials and workshops."

Mrs. Barbara Goinvert, a mother of two children at Meadowbrook Junior High School, was critical of the Meadowbrook language art program.

"There is very little emphasis on skills," Mrs. Boiinvert said. "Children who matriculate to Newton South are ill-prepared. Students can get through Meadowbrook without taking any hefty grammar."

Henry Atkins, assistant superintendent for program, said that the program at Meadowbrook is based on the relationships between students and house advisors. He added that language arts courses do exist at the school.

Mandell said that in past years there have been many complaints from parents about students being unable to get into a grammar course.

"The charges that have been made are such that warrant more than a fast answer at this time," commented Mayor Theodore D. Mann. He asked for an investigation of the charges.

District Progam Coordinator J. Geoffrey Pierson said that he was "not aware of any systematic or repeated deficiency that Meadowbrook st.udents exhibit in language arts."

John Webber expressed concern about a "horror curriculum" used in the junior high schools. Webber was worried that students may spend too much time on this curriculum. He was also concerned about the lack of options available to students.

In other action, the School Committee voted to adopt changes in cafeteria prices recommended by the division of support services. The price of homogenized milk will be raised from five cents to seven cents, while chocolate and coffee milk will cost seven cents instead of 12 cents. The prices of eight other items were increased.

Fink asked for guidance from the School Committee about supplying text books to private school students.

There is a state law which says that "the committee, at the individual request of a pupil in a private school which has been approved under section one of chapter 76, shall lend free of charge to him text books which shall be the same as those purchased by the committee for use in the public schools."

Mandell noted that this law may be in conflict with an amendment to the state constitution. School Committee Chairman Emeritus Manuel Beckwith advised that the School Committee get a ruling on the law from the city solicitor.

The School Committee voted to table any action and to get a legal opinion.

Fink said that he has requests to transport students to private schools. He added that he has been informed by City Solicitor Howard Levine and an attorney from the state Department of Education that the city is not mandated by the Department of Ed.ucation to transport private school students.

Mandell asked for more details about the financial impact of transporting private school students.

The School Committee voted unanimously to seek more information.

Fink said that a study will be conducted to find the impact of busing Newton students to Newton private schools.

Budget paring goes on

One woman, asked why she had chosen Newton College said: "a woman is an individual here, that's why I chose this school."

All students interviewed said that they had heard nothing in advance of the merger. Rumors, they said, had only started circulating on the campus Monday morning.

The two schools are also slated to engage in "cooperative efforts" during the current year.

Among these ventures will be:

—increased transportation between the two campuses.

—housing of Boston College students on the Newton campus in 300 residential units.

—availability of Boston College courses to NewtonnCollege students with permission of the dean.

—use of the Newton College library by Boston College students.

—equalization of status of students at both campuses.

When consolidatiok is completed next year, two members of the Newton College board will join the Boston College board of trustees. They are T. Vincent Learson, member and retired chairman of the board of directors IBM; and Sister Jean Ford, provincial of the Washington Province of the Society of the Sacred Heart.

Funds for teachers

Department. One example is the bubble top for the Gath Pool, currently being carried in the Public Buildings Department budget at about $100,000.

Board of Aldermen President Eliot Cohen commented Tuesday that the $3 million bond issue that was approved by the Finance Committee last week may not be enough to pay July and August teachers' salaries because of the cost-of-living escalation since last summer when the bonding was authorized.

The state legislature passed enabling legislation allowing cities and towns to bond the two months' salaries to avoid hardship during the transitional 18-month fiscal year ending this June.

It is not clear whether the $648,000 could be added to the $3 million bonding authorization, which has not been passed by the full Board.

School Superintendent Aaron Fink Tuesday seemed to feel that the amount of money coming into the city would more than offset the deficit, and that the problem would be solved shortly.

The Conference Committee was set up by the mayor early this year to gather together members of the Board and the School Committee to iron out problems between the two groups before they reach the floor of the Board.

The meetings are not announced nor are they open to the public and the press.

Monday the mayor said the meeting was not a meeting of the Conference Committee.

With the addition of the two financial finance officials, the City Solicitor, and the mayor's assistant James Salter, those attending the meeting were all members of the Conference Committee.

Levine has ruled that meetings of the numerous "mayor's advisory committees" should be open, but said Monday that the Conference Committee is not an advisory committee but on this occasion was "a group of people called in."

Board President Eliot Cohen declined to offer any comment on whether or not in his opinion the Conference Committee is in fact an advisory committee, but said, "I believe that meetings of the Conference Committee should fall under the open-meeting law. I feel the public should know."

Merger

Lynch said he thinks that more than ever Newton residents need the services of Turnabout, since neither the School Department nor Multi-Service Center is capable of the kind of counseling offered by Turnabout.

Several aldermen seemed convinced that Turnabout fills a need not met by other agencies in the city and were favorably disposed toward extending its funding.

In Public Works matters, the Public Works Committee voted to recommend that $180,000 be put in budget reserve for repairs and maintenance to the incinerator, which will be kept in operation through 1974 and possibly a short while in 1975.

Public Works Director Richard Dudman suggested that Waltham's trash may be added to the incinerator load after June, with a resulting income of $360,000. If this happens, he said, the incinerator must be kept in good repair.

A report on future solid waste costs writtne by Dudman and issued 10 days ago claims that by mothballing the incinerator, as recommended by two consulting firms, instead of upgrading it, the city might save between $2.4 and $6.8 million dollars over a 20-year period, under the least favorable conditions.

James Salter, chief administrative officer, has disputed Dudman's calculations.

Somewhere between the two opinions lies the fact that the mayor is expected to ask for a supplementary budget to cover increased costs of solid waste disposal after the incinerator is out of operation.

Cooking

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the aroma of baking bread could be bottled, it would probably outsell anything perfume makers can produce.

But flavor, texture, good nutrition and economy are more tangible benefits of homebaked loaves.

Economy is a big factor in the present boom in home baking, says Virginia Schroeder, director of consumer services for Standard Brands, Inc. Its Fleischmann's division sells about 75 per cent of the baking yeast used in the United States.

"If the economy goes down, yeast sales go up," she said in an interview.

Miss Schroder said that sales have been increasing each year for the past six years. They were up 11 per cent in the last quarter of 1973 over the same period in 1972.

"Baking has become more of a creative thing," Miss Schroder said. "It's being taught more frequently in grade school, and even in kindergarten.

"People put everything known to man in bread. Wheat germ, raisins, nuts. Sometimes they write in to say the yeast doesn't work.

"They don't seem to realize that bread baking is based on something besides yeast."

Miss Schroeder said people who try to make bread without white flour don't realize it's needed for its gluten content—a protein substance that helps dough rise.

"There's no gluten in rice or corn or potato flour and the proportion of gluten is low in whole wheat flour," she said.

"Soy flour is popular, but it inhibits the yeast if it's used in too great quantity. A little soy flour increases nutrition (by increasing protein content)."

Miss Schroeder had a reminder for people who've been baking for years:

Don't worry if the addition of water doesn't make yeast foam up. A new process used in making active dry yeast permits foaming only when sugar and flour are mixed with yeast and liquid.

She said most bread failures occur because the water used is either too hot or too cool, or because dough is left in a draft or in too warm a spot for raising. It's also important to have all ingredients at room temperature or slightly higher.

The energy crisis should pose no problems for bakers, she said. Either make several loaves at a time, and freeze the extras, or bake bread with other foods that require the same temperature—usually 375 to 400-degrees for white bread.

And don't worry about steam from the other foods—it's steam, in fact, that gives French bread its crisp, delicious crust.

Book of Breads

"The Complete Book of Breads" by Bernard Clayton, Jr. (Simon and Schuster) is the most recent in a rapidly growing list of cookbooks on the subject. Minutely detailed directions make it especially good for beginners. Clayton's cheese casserole bread is also easy, because it needs no kneading.

In a large bowl, combine 2 cups of bread or all-purpose flour, 3 tablespoons of sugar, 1 tablespoon of salt and 2 packages of dry yeast. In a saucepan, combine 2 cups of hot tap water—120-130 degrees, 1-3 cup non-fat dry milk and 2 tablespoons of shortening at room temperature. Gradually add liquids to dry ingredients and beat 150 strokes with a wooden spoon or 2 minutes at medium speed with electric mixer. Scrape bowl occasionally. Add 1½ cups grated cheddar cheese, and 1 beaten egg, both at room temperature and about ½ cup of flour to make a thick batter but not so thick it stops the mixer. Beat at high speed 2 minutes or 150 strokes with the spoon.

With a spoon, stir in about 2 more cups of flour, or enough to make a stiff but manageable batter. Cover bowl with plastic wrap and put in a warm place (80-85 degrees) until batter has doubled in volume—about 40 minutes. Stir down, beat vigorously about 30 seconds, and turn into greased casseroles of 1 quart or less capacity, filling them half full. Bake 45 minutes, or until a toothpick inserted in the center emerges clean, in a preheated 375-degree oven for metal pans or 350-degrees for glass or ceramic. Turn onto racks and cool. Makes enough batter for two (1-pound) pans or casseroles.

INTELLECTUAL BRILLIANCE

Q. I would like a brief analysis of myself. I was born on November 5th, 1905 in Pawtucket, Rhode Island, at 2:30 p.m. on a Sunday afternoon. I will watch the column. E. G.

A. You have unusual intellectual possibilities. Your mind is sharp, penetrating, quick and able to grasp and size up people and situations instantly. You are interested in scientific facts which you are able to understand and your broad perspective enables you to comprehend the whole picture and to consider total results.

In addition to your mental capabilities you have a form of extra-sensory perception, a sixth sense which could be developed to a high degree. It may manifest itself at various times as strong feelings or hunches about conditions but care is needed to differentiate between those that are true and those that are false and purely a figment of your imagination.

You do have a fantastic imagination which at times may get out of bounds but if controlled and directed into creative channels could lead to artistic or literary accomplishments.

Music, the kind you like, may penetrate to the very depth of your soul and help you to relax. You have had a need to learn how to take it easy since your natural tendency has been to be too tense.

You should benefit by occasionally seeking some solitude even if only for a short period of time by getting away by yourself, alone in a room where it is quiet, except for the music previously mentioned, and where the light is dim.

Your chart shows there is some question as to your keeping strict sleeping hours. Failure to do so may result in depressed feelings and moodiness.

For questions to be answered through this column, mail the year, month, day of the month, city of birth, time of day if known and question to Ask Oscar, Box 114, Canton, Mass. 02021. Please sign your name which will not be published. Selected questions can only be answered through this column.

DiCara candidate for Secretary of State

Lawrence S. DiCara has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the office of Secretary of the Commonwealth.

Twenty-four-year-old DiCara, recently reelected to the Boston City Council, and the youngest person ever to serve at that post, cited citizen participation in, and access to, state government as the key problems facing the Secretary's office.

DiCarla stated, "A representative government works only when the people participate in policy formulation. A responsive government works only when the people have equal and ready access to government services. The Secretary of State, exerting aggressive leadership, can respond to the problems of participation and access."

DiCarla thinks that present structures for citizen participation must be re-examined. "Policy formulation without popular participation is a subtle form of tyranny, less oppressive, perhaps, than other forms, but no less a deprivation of self-government." DiCara went on to say that "Structures for participation must be designed to conform to the needs of the people and not vice versa. For too long, structures have been justified by saying that's the way it's always been. People today expect and deserve more than that from their government."

Noting that the number of state agencies has tripled in the past 60 years, DiCara said that "as State government grows increasingly complex, people find it increasingly difficult to gain access to its services." DiCara claimed that the Secretary of State must help guide the people through the maze of State bureaucracy and stated that "government can be truly for the people ... less equal and ready ... ss to government servi... can be made a reality ... unraveling, publicizing a... supervising the myriad ... inistrative agencies a... rocedures."

...Cara was graduated from ...ston Latin School in 1967 and from Harvard College in 1971. Active in numerous civic and community groups, DiCara is also a member of the Democratic State Committee, has served on the Governor's Commission on Citizen Participation, is a Semi... Taxpayers ask IRS

Editor's Note — The following questions and answers on the federal income tax are prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

Q. I forgot to include some of my interest on my federal income tax return which I filed last month. What should I do?

A. If you are due a refund on that tax return, wait until you receive the refund, and then file a Form 1040X to correct the original 1040. If you owed the government money when you filed, you should file a 1040X now to correct the original return.

Q. My wife will be out of the country on a trip until June. How can I get permission to wait until she returns to file our joint return?

A. As long as she is a U. S. citizen, an automatic extension until June 17, 1974, will be granted. To use the extension, attach a statement to your return when you file it indicating that she was out of the country on April 16.

Q. Some of my records won't be accessible until May 5. What can I do about filing my tax return?

A. By filling out Form 4868 you may receive an automatic two-month extension. It must be filed by April 16 and with it you must make full payment of any tax due with the return.

Q. I would like to use the Income Averaging Method of tax computation, but don't have copies of my old returns for the last four years. Can I get them from IRS?

A. Yes, you should write a letter to the Internal Revenue Service Center, 310 Lowell St., Andover, MA 01812, to request whatever return copies you need. You will be billed one dollar per page.

Q. My wife died in 1971. May I file as a widower for 1973?

A. If you have dependent children you are entitled to use the tax rates for widows and widowers with dependent children for both 1972 and 1973 (you could file a joint return in 1971). From tax year after 1973 you will have to file either as single, a individual or as an Unmarried Head of Household if you furnish over half the cost of maintaining a home for your children for the full year.

Q. My last year's return was filed as married filing separately. Now we realize we should have filed jointly. Can we still change this?

A. Yes, you may change from separate to joint retur... anytime within three ... rs from the due date for ... t tax year.

Stevens Door are pioneer operators

Stevens Door Sales Corporation of New England, 15 Kearney road, Needham Heights, specializes in sales, installation and service of wood, fiberglass, aluminum and steel overhead garage doors, and electronic garage door operators. There is also a large parts department. Stevens Door Sales was originally incorporated on February 7, 1941, as the Crawford Door Sales Corporation under the same ownership and management as at the present time.

Actually Stevens Door Sales was in business before 1941, and pioneered the early sales of door operators which were made piece by piece in the garage of the inventor, Edward T. Edwards.

During World War II, when material was not available for either doors or operators and several of our employees were in the service, the corporation, then located in Newton Upper Falls, turned its efforts to the manufacture of shell crates and other ammunition containers.

Question: I was recently given some frozen shrimp and would like to make a Remoulade to serve as an appetizer. Can you help me?

Mrs. D. McD., Roslindale

Answer: With just the right amount of spice, here is your:

SHRIMP REMOULADE

2 cups mayonnaise
½ cup Dijon mustard
¼ cup catchup
4 teaspoons prepared horseradish
2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
3 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
¾ cup chopped parsley
½ cup chopped scallions
1 cup minced celery
¼ cup drained capers
2 pounds cooked cleaned shrimp

Combine all ingredients except shrimp in bowl and chill for several hours. Serve with shrimp. Yield: 3¾ cups sauce; 12 to 16 appetizer servings.

Do you recall an out-of-this world Whipped Cream Strawberry Pie of a while back? Well, the creator of that masterpiece has just given us a few more of her unusual recipes. Here are two of them, from the kitchen of Mrs. Gertrude Molliver, Norwood:

APPLE SQUARES

Pastry:
2½ cups flour
½ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup Spry shortening
1 egg
One-third cup cold water

Sift into bowl: flour, sugar, salt, baking powder; add shortening and rub shortening into flour mixture with fingers (similar to a pie dough method). Into 1 corner, add 1 whole egg and mix thoroughly; add cold water gradually and squeeze dough to form a bowl. Cut in half and roll one-half dough out on lightly floured board. Spread onto a greased 9x12-inch pan (with sides).

Apple mixture:
8 apples, peeled and sliced
1 cup sugar mixed with
1 teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ tsp. nutmeg
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Butter or margarine

Combine sliced apples, sugar mixture and pile on pie crust. Sprinkle with lemon juice and dot with butter or margarine. Roll out remaining half of dough and spread over apples; sprinkle top with cinnamon and sugar; seal at edges of pan. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven for 15 minutes; lower heat to 350 degrees and bake for 20 minutes until top is golden brown. Cut into squares when cool. Serve as is or with ice cream. Keeps well under refrigeration, also freezes nicely.

LEMON MERINGUE PIE

1 10-inch pie crust, baked, cooled
4½ tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs, separated
1½ oranges, pulp and juice
1½ lemons, juice and grated peel
3 tablespoons spry shortening
2¼ cups tap water

Combine cornstarch, salt and sugar and set aside. Separate eggs. Put yolks in saucepan and beat lightly with a fork; add cornstarch mixture and mix well. Add water, orange and lemon juices and rind, and spry and cook on medium heat stirring constantly until thickened like a custard. Cool.

Use 2 tablespoons sugar for each egg white (for a higher meringue, when egg prices go down, add an additional egg white for higher meringue); whip egg whites with a pinch of cream of tartar and beat until almost stiff; gradually add sugar and whip until egg whites keep their shape and sugar is completely dissolved. Pile meringue in center of pie and shape pyramid fashion sloping down to seal at edges of pie. Make in 325 degree oven for 20 minutes, until meringue is golden.

Question: Do you have a nice recipe for an old fashioned Irish Freckle Bread? I've just begun baking with yeast and would like to try my hand at this recipe to surprise my inlaws. Thank you very much.

—Mrs. A. O'D., Roslindale

Answer: What a delightful thought! This is an easy recipe you're sure to enjoy:

IRISH FRECKLE BREAD

4¾ cups unsifted flour
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 pkgs. Active dry yeast
1 cup potato water (or water)
½ cup (⅛ stick) margarine
2 eggs, at room temperature
¼ cup mashed potatoes (at room temp
1 cup seedless raisins

In large bowl thoroughly mix 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved active dry yeast. Combine potato water (or plain water) and margarine in saucepan. Heat over low heat until liquid is warm (margarine does not need to melt.) Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add eggs, potatoes and ½ cup flour, or enough flour to make a thick batter. Beat at high speed for 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in raisins and enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8-10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover; let rise in warm place free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour and 15 minutes. Punch dough down; turn out onto lightly floured board. Divide dough into 4 equal pieces; shape each piece into a slender loaf, about 8½ inches long. Put 2 loaves, side by side, in each of 2 greased 8½x4½ loaf pans. Cover; let rise in warm place 1 hour. Bake in 350 degree oven about 35 minutes, or until done. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Note: If plain water is used, rising time will be about 1 hour and 45 minutes.

Our thanks to Mrs. D. S., Walpole for her special recipe for:

MEAT BALLS PIQUANT

¼ cup minced onion
2 tablespoons shortening
¾ pound ground beef
¼ pound ground pork
½ cup soft bread crumbs
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 egg
One-third cup milk
2 tablespoons pickle juice
4 sweet pickles, cut into lengthwise strips
½ cup currant jelly

Cook onion in shortening until tender; remove from pan; combine meats, bread crumbs, seasonings, egg, milk and onions; mix well. Form into small balls and brown slowly in remaining shortening, turning often. Remove meat balls to serving platter. Add pickle juice and pickles to pan. Break up jelly and add to pickle juice. Bring to boiling. Pour over meat balls. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Across the Kitchen Counter

And it's a Happy St. Patrick's Day we'll be wishing you come Sunday. And what a wonderful excuse for a party with lots of green decorations to brighten up what seems to be a long winter.

Oh no, you don't have to be Irish to enjoy the fun, sense of humor and wholesome food credited to the Land of Shamrock. St. Patrick is the patron saint of this colorful country even though he was not born in Ireland. Some say he was born in Scotland, England or Wales, while others name France as his place of birth.

Why the shamrock? It is believed that St. Patrick used the shamrock to explain the mystery of the Trinity of Three Gods in One to his converts. Supposedly this is how the use of the shamrock which is customarily worn on St. Patrick's Day originated.

Ever since the 17th Century when potatoes were brought to Ireland from the New World, these hearty vegetables have been a mainstay of the Irish diet. As for the popular corned beef and cabbage, we've found conflicting reports about it being of Irish origin, but no disagreement about it being a hearty, downright delicious main dish.

For dessert, Sunday, you might want to plan for an Emerald Isle Treat — easily prepared by drizzling green creme de menthe over scoops of vanilla ice cream.

IRISH STEW

2 pounds lamb shoulder meat cut in 1-inch cubes
½ pound sliced bacon cut in 1-inch pieces
6 large potatoes, cubed
8 small onions, sliced
6 carrots, thinly sliced
2 teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon thyme
¼ teaspoon rosemary
1 cup cold water

Combine all ingedients in a large heavy pot or casserole. Cover tightly and simmer over low heat 1½ hours, or until meat is tender and potatoes and carrots are soft. Serves 6.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE

3 to 4 pounds corned beef
Cold water
1 bay leaf
2 cloves garlic
6 potatoes, pared and cut
6 carrots, pared and cut
1 turnip, pared and cut
1 two pound cabbage cut in eighths

Wash corned beef and place in large kettle. Cover meat with cold water, bring to a boil and remove scum. Throw off water and cover meat again with cold water; bring to a boil and lower heat to simmer. Simmer for 3 hours or until tender. 45 minutes before completion of cooking, skim off fat and add cut up potatoes, carrots and turnip. Cover and cook 20 minutes. Top with cut sections of cabbage, cover and continue cooking 25 minutes. Serves 6.

CORNED BEEF ROAST WITH BAKED APPLES

3-4 pound corned beef for oven roasting
1 can (13½ oz.) crushed pineapple, drained
½ cup honey
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
6 apples
Lemon juice
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
Brown sugar
¼ cup water

Place corned beef roast, fat side up, on a rack in a shallow open pan. Do not cover or add water. Roast in a 325 degree oven for 3 hours or until fork tender. Combine crushed pineapple, honey and 1 tbs. lemon juice in a small bowl. Reserve for glaze and apple filling. Core apples. Pare each apple one-third the way down.

Dip in lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Place apples in shallow baking dish. Spoon 1 tablespoon of pineapple-honey mixture into center of each apple. Dot each with butter and sprinkle with brown sugar. Add water to bottom of dish. Bake apples during the last hour of roasting time. Add remaining pineapple-honey mixture to top of corned beef roast the last 20 minutes of roasting time.

EMERALD ISLE SALAD

1 pkg. (3 oz.) lemon flavored gelatin
1 cup boiling water
1 avocado (med.) (¾ to 1 cup mashed)
½ cup sour cream
¼ cup mayonnaise
1 can (8½ oz.) small peas, drained
½ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped stuffed olives
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
3 drops hot pepper sauce
½ teaspoon salt

Dissolve gelatin in boiling water; chill until partially congealed. Combine avocado, lemon juice, sour cream and mayonnaise until blended. Lightly stir in peas, celery, olives, onion, pimiento, pepper sauce and salt. Combine with chilled gelatin and pour into lightly oiled 4 or 5 cup ring mold. Chill. Serves 8.

IRISH LAMB PATTIES

2 tablespoons chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped pepper
4 tablespoons oil
2 cups diced cooked lamb
2 cups mashed potatoes
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
Flour

In small skillet saute onion and green pepper in 1 tbs. oil until tender. With slotted spoon, remove to large mixing bowl. Add lamb, potatoes, pimiento, salt and pepper. Mix well. Shape into 8 patties. Lightly coat with flour. Let stand for 20 minutes. Fry patties over medium high heat in remaining 3 tablespoons oil 4-5 minutes on each side, or until golden brown. Serves 4.

IRISH BREAD

4 cups all purpose flour
2 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup corn oil
1 cup seedless raisins
1 tablespoon caraway seed
1 cup buttermilk
1 egg
Corn oil for top of dough

Grease an 8x1½ inch layer cake pan or cookie sheet. Sift together in a large bowl, flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and baking soda. Add corn oil and mix with fork or pastry blender until fine crumbs form. Stir in raisins and caraway seed. Mix buttermilk and egg together. Gradually add to flour mixture, stirring until soft dough forms.

Turn onto floured board; knead lightly about 10 times or until smooth. Shape into ball. Place in prepared pan. Flatten slightly and cut a cross on top of loaf. Brush with corn oil. Bake in 350 degree oven about 50 minutes or until brown. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Makes one 7½ inch loaf.

Soft Spring Fashions

Sum up Spring fashions as "soft. . . free. . . and easy". Free in the sense only that the newest silhouettes are very feminine and figure revealing.

The name Halston is synonymous with haute couture and elegance. In discussing his Spring collection, he said, "I like the look of a sleeveless wrapped dress in a superlative fabric. I am more turned on by skirts in this collection though I still love pants, but the dress looks newer. Women will want to wear them, they are a cool and easy change."

It seems as though there will be great emphasis on the dress and the skirt which will go to all lengths from the knee to mid calf and ankle (the latter seen most often after five). There is no hoopla - no shouts of, "down with the midi!" It's a simple fact. . . the hemline choice is here for everyone.

Young girls with trim ankles have adopted the swirl skirt as the most important item in her spring-summer wardrobe. This means a hemline that ends just a fraction above the ankle bone, and if you're thinking of shortening a floor length skirt, be sure the style is one of leanness at the hips with a gentle flaring at the ankle.

Regarding the hemline, Oscar de la Renta feels that when a woman buys a new dress she doesn't buy just the hemline, but rather: "I think," he said, "that it's time to stop all that sort of nit-picking and think of the whole picture.

"My collection reflects my feeling of the way a woman will want to look this Spring. . . healthy, wealthy and a bit unwise, especially in the evening. Soft fluid lines, every effect to subtly elongate the figure, all make the body very noticeable, and clearly the dictator of the silhouette. Many of the clothes wrap to the side with an open neckline, but it isn't a clutch effect; the side wrap is anchored, usually with sash."

Handsome, suave, Oscar doesn't hesitate to express his annoyance with ostentation or gimmicks - his interest lies in fashions that are the best of its kind, the most unusual and interesting.

"There are no so-called "Spring" coats in my collection," he emphasized. "I think fashion today reflects the winter-to-summer life people like best. The day dress plays a very important part for Spring, with and without a jacket. I like them in natural colors. The dresses have great fluidity, many being cut on the bias."

The designer's favorite evening look is the ankle-length dress with full swirling skirts and soft-draped tops - also the loose ethereal dress in satin-faced crepe de chine or layers of chiffon.

"To me," he said, this type of dress if far more seductive than a ball gown. Young and flirty, his soft peach chiffon print gown edged in a deep flounce of ruffles.

For both day and evening his colors are strong, clear and clean. Not too many prints are seen in his collection - a few soft printed chiffons with small motifs and small flower prints on crepe. Whatever patterns appear for daytime are underneath, as shirts.

When pressed for an answer as to the length of his daytime dress, Oscar managed to say that all of his skirts are below the knee - that variation from just below to longer depends entirely on the shape. "Clothes," he said, "that are meant to float, can't be short."

American designers have agreed that this Spring will be the most romantic in years and though skirts were represented in just about every collection, the lengths generally hovered around the knee.

The youthful customer will not be dictated to. She is not interested in following the dictates of mother or the latest fashion poll - she seems to know what to wear for comfort during the day (and this usually means jeans of one sort or another). She also wears the longer look with an air of quiet assurance.

The blazer jacket has been supplanted with those big, bulky cardigans or long, low, skinny "fanny" sweaters - definitely not for those with outsize "fannies" that would stretch the silhouette.

Designer Calvin Klein is a realist. He feels that when winter begins to break, women will want to get out of their tailored wools and into light-weight, loose-fitting, softly textured fabrics. His new collection combines the tailored classicism for which he is so well known, with this new feeling.

"Spring is no longer a season, but rather a time to renew oneself," said designer Ilie Wacs at his Spring showing of new, fresh, wearable fashions.

"White is a year-round color, so are pastels, so is black." His collection is made up of double-faced wool and unlined cashmere coats in white or pale colors wrapped with gently dropped shoulders. There is hardly a woman who would not cherish just one such coat in her wardrobe!

Central Little League to have registration

Newton Central Little League (N.C.C.L.) recently announced that registration night for the coming season will be held on Thursday, March 14, at 7:30 p.m.

Each boy, on registration night, must present a birth certificate (or photocopy) to be kept on file by the League. Boys who registered last year and have already submitted a birth certificate need not present one at this time.

A contribution of $15.00 per child and $25.00 maximum per family is required. This donation is tax deductible for federal income tax purposes.

Each boy must be accompanied by a parent. Registration blanks have been distributed to elementary and junior high schools within the N.C.L.L. area.

This year the Newton Central Little League will include all boys in the Underwood School area. Any boy who played in the Newton North League area may remain there. Any others who have not played previously in the North League must register at Newton Central.

Any boy who will attain the age of nine years before August 1 and who will not attain the age of 13 years before August 1 will be eigible to try out.

This year the schedule has been changed. All boys 10, 11 and 12 who wish to try out for the Majors will try out on the following dates: March 23, 12 year olds; March 24, 11 year olds; March 30, 10 year olds. Any boy who does not wish to play in the Majors and all nine year olds will try out on March 31 for the minor and rookie leagues.

All boys who wish to play this spring, including boys who are already team members, must register.

Mertens racing leader

Ronald B. Mertens, 25, of Valentine street in West Newton is a leader in the race to qualify for skiing's Schlitz-NASTAR Finals, according to World Wide Ski Corp., which manages the NAtional STAndard Race series for "SKI Magazine."

NASTAR is sponxsored by Schlitz, Pepsi-Cola and Bonne Bell Cosmetics and is a season long competitive program for recreational skiers. The program is currently held at 84 ski areas around the country.

All NASTAR entrants, 19 years of age and older, are grouped by sex, age and in which part of the country they participate, Northeast, Middle Atlantic and Southeast, Midwest, Rocky Mountains or Pacific. Divided by age and region, finalists numbering 30 men and 30 women will be selected from over 70,000 participants. The NASTAR skiers with the lowest handicap scores in each category are selected for the Schlitz event. Final selection will be made on March 18.

A preliminary tabulation shows that Mertens, racing at Wildcat Mt., Jackson, N.H., is leading the mens 19-29 age group in the Northeast region with a handicap score of 13. If he maintains his lead, Ronald will be one of the finalists to be hosted by Schlitz at Sun Valley on March 29-30.

Girl gymnasts vie for state honors

Although Margie Magraw was unsuccessful in her attempt to retain her state all-around gymnastics title, Newton North's girl gymnasts fared will at the state individual championship held last Saturday at Brulington High School.

Four girls, Margie Magraw, Julie Myers, Gail Blauer, and Kathy Magraw, competed in 14 events for Newton. Margie, last year's winner, was the top Newton finisher, taking third place in the all-around. She took first in the floor exercises with an 8.7, and on the uneven parellel bars with an 8.0 She was ninth in valuting with a 7.9. On the balance beam she fell several times and managed only a 6.0.

Margie's overall score of 30.65 placed her a point behind Michelle Lemieux who took first by a margin of .05 over Cheryl Morrier of Hampshire Regional. Braintree's Joan Sullivan finished fourth and Monica Hanson placed fifth.

Julie Myers took first on the balance beam with a score of 8.3 and Kathy Magraw took fourth in the same event with a 7.7 Kathy also was ninth in the floor exercises.

For the second year in a row, the Massachusetts Girls Gymnastics Team Championship turned into a two-team meet between Newton North and Braintree.

This year Braintree avenged last year's defeat by edging the Tigers and six other squads at Greenfield High on March 2, thus ending Newton's two year hold on the state crown.

Braintree had no individual first but received second and thirds in registering a team score of 92.35. Newton North got three firsts from Margie Magraw on the balance team, the uneven parallel bars, and in the floor exercises. North had 89.40 points.

In the four events, Braintree had the highest team total in two vaulting and the uneven parallel bars, and was second in the other two behind the Tigers. The difference between the teams was in the uneven parallel bars where standout Joan Sullivan led Braintree to 22.15 points while Newton managed only 16.70.

The Tigers were pleased with their performance which showed almost a 14 point improvement over the previous years, but could do nothing about Braintree who's score jumped more than 17 points.

Lincoln-Sudbury finished in third place, a point ahead of Hampshire Regional. They were followed by Framingham North, Minnechaug Regional, Wakefield, and Weymouth North.

The meet was the final team competition for several of Newton's outstanding performers. Margie Magraw, Jenny Barber, Gail Whoriskey, Ann Hurwitz, and Judy Robertson are all graduating this year.

Julie Myers, Gail Blauer, Amy Semmel, and Kathy Magraw will be back next year on what promises to be another strong squad.

Cultural programs

Gail Forman of the Newton Recreation Department staff reported recently that there has been enthusiastic response to a series of cultural progams planned for the next couple of months, but that some openings still exist.

The quilting class is already over-subscribed, but Newton residents interested in quilting may call the Material Fabric Store in Newton Centre to sign up for subsequent classes to be scheduled at a later time.

A similar situation is reported in the drama class to be held at the Auburndale Branch Library. Ms. Forman says that she will take the names of interested people and put them on a waiting list for the next class.

Sepcial drama programs will be part of the regular summer playground season, and classes will be renewed next fall.

Three other classes have also been well accepted, but there are still some openings. These include the drawing and design class to be held at the Memorial School on Tuesday mornings from 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. beginning March 20th. Also, the modern dance class for teen-agers at the Hyde School on Wednesday evenings, 7:30 - 9 p.m. and the discoteque classes for adults at the Day Junior High School Tuesday evenings from 7:30 - 9 p.m. People may call Recreation Department at 969-3171 for further information about registration for these classes.

LONE REPEATER

D E N V E R (UPI) — Sophomore Coniel Norman, who is in the process of rewriting the scoring records at the University of Arizona, was the lone repeater on the all-Western Athletic Conference basketball team announced by the league office Tuesday.

Norman, who led the league in scoring for the second year with a 23.8 average, and fellow forward Bernard Hardin, the lone senior from New Mexico, were the only unanimous choices. Also named were Utah's sophomore duo, guard Luther Burden, the second leading scorer at 22.8, and center Mike Sojourner, the top rebounder in the WAC for the second year at 12.6, and Arizona State junior guard Lionel Hollins.

Bell to be 100 years old

The calendar on Saturday, March 23, will tell Edward L. Bell of Newton, a resident of the Baptist Home of Massachusetts for 26 years, that he is experiencing his one hundredth birthday.

But Bell won't believe it. "I do not feel the years," he says. He is active, alert, up and around every day working at his lifetime hobby of stamp collecting.

There will be a celebration at the Baptist Home, located at 66 Commonwealth avenue, including a few relatives, and all the members of the family of the Home.

Bell was a long-time member of the First Baptist Church of Cambridge. Born in 1874, he lived in Chelsea until 1911, in Malden from 1911 to 1919, and Newton Highlands from 1919 to 1930.

He was baptized in the Horace Memorial Baptist Church in achelsea in 1890 when he was 16 ye

Bell was an architect and draftsman and his chief hobby was his stamp projects. He has developed collections of stamps relating to geography, history, economics and art and published several editions of a special World Stamp Chart.

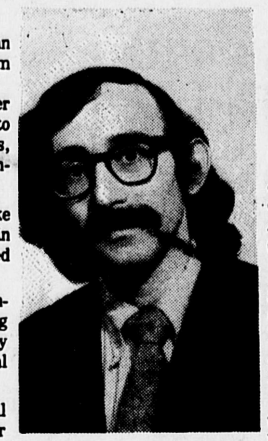
The first chart was published in 1932 and listed some 450 unfamiliar words appearing on different stamps difficult to identify so that a puzzled philatalist with stamps from an unknown land can identify them with an alphabetical list.

He has also developed other collections of stamps relating to birds, railroad locomotives, ships, airplanes and anthropology.

Bell has used stamps to make designs, such as a "Pheasant in Flight," all done with colored pastage stamps.

Bell has always been interested in giving help to young stamp enthusiasts who enjoy doing something of an original nature.

In his earlier years, Bell traveled widely as an exhibitor and lecturer.



GERALD S. BERNSTEIN, associate professor of fine arts at Brandeis University, will be the guest speaker at Sabbath services Friday, March 29, at 8:15 p.m. at Temple Shalom in West Newton. He will discuss "The American Synagogue: An Architectural Portrait." The community is invited to attend.

Meeting set on 'Mr. Fit'

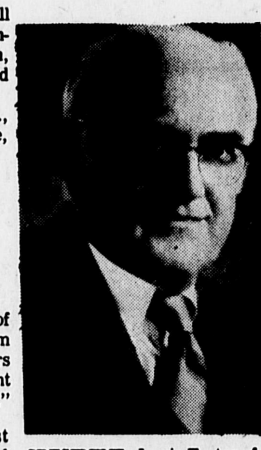
Men between the ages of 35 and 57 will have the chance to learn more about a national heart attack prevention program called "Mr. Fit" (Multiple Risk Factor Intervention Trial) March 20.

Mr. Fit is sponsored in the greater Boston area by Harvard School of Public Health and Greater Boston Chapter, Mass. Heart Association and is funded by the U.S. Public Health Service.

Dr. James Dalen will lecture on the educational aspects of the risk factors involved in heart attacks. Dr. Dalen is director of the Harvard "Mr. Fit Center." He is assistant professor of medicine at Harvard Medical School.

Dr. Stephen L. White will lecture on Specific Ionic Interactions with Hemoglobin, Dr. White is also with Harvard University.

The meeting will be at 8 p.m., 112 Cypress st. Heart Office, Brookline.



PRESIDENT—Lewis Foster of Newton Highlands, president of the Massachusetts Bible Society, will preside at the semi-annual dinner program of the board of trustees, Monday, April 1, at 12:30 p.m., iat society headquarters, Bromfield St., Boston.

David Kaplan back from Iran

David J. Kaplan, a resident of Newton, recently returned from Iran where he taught seminars in "Comparative Management and Organizational Behavior."

Kaplan, an anthropologist and consultant in international management for government and private industries, is vice president of Stedfast Rubber Co., Inc., and Stedfast Rubber Ltd.

He is a lectureer at Boston College Graduate School of Management, and consults for the Arthur D. Little Co., in the United States, Europe and the Middle East.

Jonathan S. Schindler, Auburndale, will be honored for scholastic excellence April 17 at the traditional Founder's Day program on the Bloomington campus of Indiana University.

The extras are on the houses.
Emil Hanslin, internationally renowned planner, is the founder and pacesetter of Hanslin Builders. And right now, Hanslin has six select houses available for purchase. In Marstons Mills, a sprawling 3-bedroom contemporary. In Bright Coves, New Seabury, a 3-bedroom, 2-deck contemporary. In Cotuit, one spacious 4-bedroom Cape, one quaint 3-bedroom saltbox, and just started is a 2-bedroom traditional overlooking the pond. In Sippewissett, a 3-bedroom light-filled contemporary, set off by itself overlooking the greenbelt. The extras: they were each built from the ground up by a skilled construction crew that works exclusively for Hanslin Builders. They each have a very comprehensive warranty. And they are each as highly individualistic as Emil Hanslin himself. A rare opportunity to appreciate the fine work of a master planner.

NOW...Something better than the old-fashioned check...and it's free.
That's right! Checking accounts are old-fashioned. Why? Because they don't pay interest. The NOW savings account does—a maximum 5% annual interest compounded daily and continuously and credited to your account monthly. It's just like a regular savings account, but with one big difference... you can get your money anytime, anywhere by just writing a NOW (Negotiable Order of Withdrawal) that looks and works just like a check.
Come in and see us about a NOW account today. It's a lot more interesting than free checking.

Taxpayers ask IRS

Q. Although we're still legally married, my spouse and I haven't lived together in seven years. I'm supporting our two children, both of whom live with me. Must I still file as a married person filing separately?

A. No, you have two options in this case. If you want to you may file a joint return with your spouse. Otherwise, since you live apart all year and you provided the home for at least one dependent child who lived with you, you may file using tax rates for Unmarried Heads of Household.

Q. I've just realized the legal implications of signing a joint return and would like to change my part of last year's joint return to a separate one. What can I do?

A. Nothing. After the due date for a tax return you may not choose to change from joint to separate returns.

Q. Who can use the tax rates for Unmarried Heads of Household?

A. Besides those married persons living apart mentioned earlier, people who meet the following requirement may use these special rates:

1) you must be unmarried on the last day of the tax year;

2) you must contribute over half the cost of maintaining a household; and

3; your household must be the principal residence for at least one dependent maintaining a home for your dependent parent for the year.

Q. What items are considered in figuring the cost of maintaining a household?

A. You should include rents, mortgage, interest, taxes, insurance on the dwelling and premises, repairs and maintenance, utilities, food and domestic help.

Q. Respiratory complications caused our baby's death within an hour after she was born. Is it all right to claim an exemption for her?

A. Yes, as long as she was born live you are entitled to claim her. No exemption is allowed for stillborn children.

Q. My husband would have turned 65 in May but died in February. I'm 67. How many exemptions am I entitled to claim on this last joint return?

A. You may claim two exemptions for yourself and only one for your deceased husband since he was not yet 65 when he died.

Q. My aunt depended on me for years. I know I could claim her exemption because I was audited about it six years ago and, if anything, my part of her support has increased. My question is this, since she died on January 14, it doesn't seem right for me to get a whole $750 exemption for her. Is this really the right thing to do?

A. Yes, as long as the dependency tests were met for the part of the year a dependent lived, you may claim the full $750 exemption.

Q. My husband, age 71, lives in Milan. He has no U. S. income and lives off his family's Italian fortune. May I claim an exemption for him?

A. You are entitled to claim two exemptions for him, one regular and one for being 65 or over.

Q. How does one decide which of two divorced parents gets to claim their children's exemption?

A. Normally the presumption is that the parent having custody should claim them. However, if the non-custodial parent provides $1,200 or more for the child or children's support then the presumption shifts in his favor unless the custodial parent can prove he provides more than half of each child's total support for the year. If the non-custodial parent contributes at least $600 and a decree or separate maintenance agreement states that he may claim the child or children the above presumption shift also applies.

Q. I know I'll have to pay tax on my pension from now on. How can I avoid having to make a large payment either periodically or at the end of the year?

A. As long as you wish to have at least $5 per month withheld, you may request the payer of the pension to withold taxes just as if you were a salaried employee. You could otherwise decide to file a 1040ES and make quarterly estimated tax payments.

Tarkanian likes UCLA all the way for title

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jerry Tarkanian says it will be no different this season in the race for the NCAA basketball title.

"I like UCLA and Bill Walton all the way," the highly successful Nevada-Las Vegas coach forecast.

"You'd have to think North Carolina State has a chance but I have to go along with the redhead (Walton). They were absolutely awesome last weekend. It was unreal."

Tarkanian, who nearly beat John Wooden in the finals of the Western Regionals three years ago, was an interested observer at the Sports Arena Saturday night and watched the Bruins slaughter Southern California 82-52 for the Pacific-8 championship.

UCLA will face Dayton in the first round of the regionals at Tucson, Ariz., Thursday night.

"Even after UCLA lost those two games in Oregon this year," Tarkanian said, "I continued to vote them No. 1 in the UPI coaches' ratings.

"Maybe some teams will have more confidence against them because they have lost three games this season but I don't see how anyone can be confident against them after they destroyed USC.

"There's no way anyone can handle Walton the way he played Saturday night. He silenced a lot of people in that game."

In his first season at Las Vegas after guiding Long Beach State to four straight Pacific Coast Athletic Association championships, Tarkanian guided the Rebels to a 20-6 record.

But they were only third in the West Coast Athletic Association, won by the University of San Francisco for the third straight year.

"It's a different feeling sitting home this year," he admitted. "It's the first time in 12 years, counting junior college ball, that I haven't won a championship.

"But we won 20 games and I'm happy with that even though it's the lowest amount I've won since being a college coach.

"We started four freshmen in some games this season so we gained a lot of valuable experience and we should be a better team next year."

Next year?

"It'll be a brand new ball game with Walton gone," said Tarkanian. "There's nobody like him."

Child development discussed at school

By BARBARA RUBIN

What is "normal" behavior in the developmental patterns of children in kindergarten through 3rd grade and children in 4th through 6th grade was recently discussed with parents of the Underwood School at their request through their principal, Mrs. Carmela Nado, to the Newton Guidance Clinic.

Following through with reorganization policy of being more responsive to the needs of the community, Dr. Elizabeth Herman, acting director of the Newton Guidance Clinic, and Mrs. Miriam Hurwitz, staff social worker, spoke with parents of children in the younger group, while Dr. Ellen Wilson, psychologist, and Mrs. Phyllis Dana, staff social worker spoke with parents of children in the older group.

At the outset, Dr. Herman explained that no child grows up without experiencing some kind of emotional difficulty along with the normal physical development, even under optimum conditions. Children, like adults, have their "ups and downs."

Difficulties very often arise when a child enters kindergarten since this is his first experience of separation from the protective environment of the home and is entering into new and larger relationships with his peers and teacher.

Often parents have difficulty accepting the fact that someone else is in charge for a large part of their child's time and their relationship with their child changes as he now has the physical, intellectual and emotional capacity to become more involved in social interaction outside the home.

For the first time a child compares what he is doing with his peers and seeks to find a place for himself in this new setting. It is normal for him to feel frustration in not being able to accomplish easily, however, the level of frustration decreases as the child grows older. It is not uncommon for a child to carry his favorite toy or a blanet during this transitional period of entering school, it has meaning to him and is a pleasurable experience, but will give it up when something else comes along that gives him equal pleasure.

Some parents were concerned about the degree of responsibility to the family a child of 5½ yrs. can assume and the proper role of discipline. Both Dr. Herman and Mrs. Hurwitz explained that limit-setting is extremely important and is a way of showing that you care.

Children at this age have tremendous energy and parents can help direct and utilize this enrgy in many ways - in work as well as play, and sharing chores with parents can make them most enjoyable. It was emphasized that the primary group in a child's life is the family, and parents are the tole models after whom they pattern themselves and learn a large part of their attitudes and behavior.

Separation problems were also discussed in this group by this time leaving elementary school and entering Junior High School.

The conflict of wanting to grow up, and move out, yet scared to leave the security of a familiar environment, engenders anxiety as it does in every stage of development.

An example of this was given by one of the 6th grade teachers in the obvious "acting out" behavior of students particularly as time of separation grew closer. In addition, it is difficult to go from the top of the ladder in the 6th grade to the bottom rung at Jr. High School.

It was suggested that a future discussion group be organized only on "How To Say Good-Bye."

Brines marks 20 years of service with hospital

William S. Brines, administrative vice president of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, marked 20 years' service with the west suburban hospital recently.

William S. Brines

Brines, recently named chairman-elect of the American College of Hospital Administrators, has been an outspoken critic of proliferating federal regulations governing hospital administration. He recently stated that he favored the limited national health insurance plan advanced by the Nixon administration, but warned that the individual hospital's capcaity to determine optimum health-care delivery plans for its constituency will be further restricted by new and as yet unknown federal regulations.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital is a teaching hospital in association with Tufts University School of Medicine. The hospital also conducts its own school of nursing, and schools of medical technology and radiologic technology. It has a 350-bed capacity, 235 physicians on its active medical staff, and employs 1,260 persons, 600 of whom are nursing personnel.

The hospital's emphasis has been on its role as a full-complement community hospital. Physical facilities and staff talent have been directed toward increased and improved services for residents of Newton, Wellesley and Weston. The hospital has also been a prime mover in formation of the new West Suburban Hospital Association which encourages regional planning and joint enterprise for cost-effective use of medical facilities and services among 13 member hospitals.

Major fund drives in the past decade have resulted in expanded facilities in major medical areas at Newton-Wellesley. Recent completion of a new 21-bed psychiatric unit and a new 17-bed intensive and coronary care unit sophisticates the hospital's capabilities in these two areas. A new wing opened in 1971 provides space for outpatient services including a dental clinic, psychiatric clinic, veneral disease control clinic, and pediatric services.

Community health education has also been emphasized during recent years. A lead screening program conducted among school children, cooperation with MR FIT, the national heart study, and childbirth education courses for expectant parents are three examples of hospital community-oriented work.

Brines, a veteran of over 35 years administration experience, was previously associated with Malden Hospital. During Wrold War II, he was chief of the hospital section of the War Production Board and a hospital consultant to W.P.B. He is a resident of Wellesley.

Jaycees

Miss Newton will be selected at the Jaycee Awards Banquet Friday, March 22. Staging the spectacle are (from left): Herb Abramson, Mayor Theodore D. Mann, Robert W. Snyder, Beverly Powers and Jeff Cornell. Applications for the pageant are being accepted this week at 444 Watertown St., by Frank Campion. Entrants must be between 18 and 28 and not previously married.

Program objectves of Chamber groups reported

Detailed 1974 program objectives for the employment and education planning organizational development and public affairs councils of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce were announced recently by Robert L. Tennant, 1974 President.

Under a new structure, program objectives were determined by council steering committees and utilized the findings of the most recent membership opinion survey which rated the priorities of 34 community and business issues.

The employment and education planning counncil has determined the following objectives: The career orientation committee will seek to help students identify career interests through the second career orientation program to be conducted in November. It will explore a program for high school teachers and counselors to keep current on occupational needs and trends, assist in promoting the Job Bank and community classroom programs and will also develop a community resource inventory to include speakers, films and visitations.

Cooperation among the area's institutions of higher learning on making an inventory of existing programs for community enrichment and identification of needs presently unmet will be the focus of the work of the Chamber's higher education task force. The group will also develop a plan to bring academic and business leaders together on matters of mutual concern.

The Manpower Training & Development Task Force will be concerned principally with helping business meet manpower requirements. It will serve as a resource for utilizing federal and state training programs and as a clearinghouse for O.S.H.A. regulations. In addition, it will work to assure adequate public transportation to the industrial areas to meet employee needs.

The personnel council, in addition to conducting a wage and salary survet abd promoting effective exchange of information among its members, will arrange eight meetings during the year on topics of technical and special matters relating to personnel.

Members of the employment and education planning council are Richard F. Kaerwer, 3 M Company, chairman; Loren Eaton, GTE Sylvania; John Fox, Newton-Wellesley Hospital; Hugh Gallagher, Needham Public Schools; Margaret Hunt, Newton Savings Bank; William Moynihan, Cramer Electronics; Dorothy Sparrow, Boston College; Paul Wegerdt, GTE Sylvania and Dr. James Whalen, Newton College.

Internal affairs of the Chamber organization are the responsibility of the Chamber's organizational development council, led by William M. Cahill, Jr., Newton-Waltham Bank, who serves as vice president and treasurer of the chamber. It will be responsible for arranging the Sixteen annual achievement dinner next October, through the achievement dinner task force; establishing the 1974 budget and guidance for Chamber finances through the financial planning committee; and conducting a strong membership development program to produce $4,500 in new income through the membership "chargers" committee.

Through the chamber image committee, an ongoing program to develop a better understanding of the chamber among both its members and the public will be implemented. This will include liaison with the media and continuance of the contract club program of membership visitations throughout the year.

Members of the organizational development coundil also include Philip F. Cacciatore, American Door Distributors; Margaret E. Connor, Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge; Paul C. Duncan, New England Telephone Co.; John Horne, Norfolk County Trust Co.; Robert P. Lurvey, West Newton Savings Bank; Victor A. Nicolazzo, Bigelow Oil Co., Eugene S. Tarsky, CPA and Robert L. Tennant, Tennant Insurance Agency.

Potential hazards of moving discussed

The south, particularly the southwest, glitters year-round for some people in other parts who have lung disease and breathing problems. But they should beware.

Some people with respiratory problems do feel better in dry, warm climates. It's easier to breathe. And patients bothered by allergies and asthma can try to escape pollen and vegetation in desert areas of the southwest.

But the southwest is no antipollen paradise, says the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association Arizona, for example, has mountains as well as desert, and vegetation abounds in both. Some people prone to allergies develop adverse reactions even to desert sand.

For people with breathing difficulties, there are other considerations, too. Only certain localities may have chest specialists; this needs to be checked out. And climate cannot improve specific lung diseases, like emphysema. Emphysema is a severe, irreversible condition, and patients need to remain under medical care.

Besides these medical considerations, there are equaply important emotional and social considerations of uprooting. Moving is never easy. Unemployment, the cost of living, and the general economic climate is allegedly the same in the southwest as most other states.

There is no panacea for all respiratory patients. Many can create the kind of home climate they need by filtering devices, air conditioners, and other equipment. The best course is prevention. Cigarette smoking is allegedly the major cause of severe lung dis3ases such as emphysema, chronic bronchitis, and lung cancer.

To find out about ways to protect lungs. People may contact the Lung Association at 745 High Street, Westwood, Mass.

Biernson to talk

George Bierson will talk about education at a meeting sponsored by the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of Americans for Constitutional Action at the Newton Community Center on Monday, March 18, at 8 p.m

The Community Center is located at 429 Cherry St., West Newton. Admission is free.

Quinn to be chairman of Easter Seal project

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department will be chairman of Coffee Day for crippled children and their Easter Seal appeal in Newton.

Coffee Day on Thursday, April 11 throughout Massachusetts is an annual event of the Easter Seal Society. It is a two-week special project. Starting on Thursday, March 28, small red buttons will go on sale in hundreds of Massachusetts restaurants, coffee shops and snack bars to benefit physically handicapped children served by Easter Seals.

Buttons are sold for $1 and on April 11, persons having a button may drink free coffee in any of the participating establishments.

The Massachusetts Restaurant and the Massachusetts Hotel-Motel associations endorse the event.

Proceeds of Coffee Day will go toward the Easter Seal Society's rehabilitative services; recreation and camping for the disabled of all ages, and environmental projects to provide better housing, transportation and educational opportunities for the physically handicapped regardless of the cause of crippling.

Families needed

Families Extended needs families which would be willing to accept an adolescent into their home for one week to six months.

Built into this program is an orientation program as well as supervision for both the foster family and the adolescent.

Interested people may call Rick Williams at 969-5908.

Crime prevention

The Newton police crime prevention program will be hosted by the Oak Hill Park Association in cooperation with the Oak Hill Pharmacy on Saturday, March 16, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Complaints to Post Office on smut mail down in '73

The number of complaints about unsolicited sexually oriented material sent through the mails is on the decline, the Postal Service said todayv

Such complaints from postal customers totaled about 45,000 for the year ended last June 30. This was 38.4 per cent fewer than the 73,000 received the previous year.

George C. Davis, assistant general counsel in charge of the Postal Service's Consumer Protection Office, says laws aimed at unsolicited sexually oriented advertising have made the problem less acute.

According to Davis, there are two legal methods by which postal customers may prevent the delivery of objectionable mail to their residences.

"First, those who have received unsolicited material considered to be offensive may submit a request to their local postmaster which directs a particular mailer to refrain from sending any additional mail to the postal customer.

"Or," Davis said, "persons who do not desire to receive any such material may have their names and addresses placed on an official list maintained by the Postal Service. No one may mail any sexually oriented advertisement to any individual whose name and address have appeared on the list for more than 30 days."

The list is available for a fee to mailers of sexually oriented material. More than 73,000 names have been added to the list since implementation of the Sexually Oriented Advertising Statute in February 1971.

Davis noted that successful application of these remedies depends on postal customers who receive such material and advise local postal officials. Cooperation in this manner permits the Postal Inspection Service to investigate and obtain evidence to prosecute offenders.

During 1973, investigations conducted by postal inspectors resulted in the conviction of five corporations and 22 individuals. Fifteen court orders directing compliance with Postal Service prohibitory orders were issued against specified mailers of sexually oriented advertisements.

Europe offering low fares

Energy crisis or not, the railroads of 13 West European countries are still offering American travelers low cost unlimited first-class rail travel. Would you believe 21 days for $150, for instance.

And that includes Europe's super-duper Trans-Europe Express (TEE), the high-speed extra-fare trains which link 172 key cities on the continent. Moreover, the same cut-rate Eurailpass entitles the purchaser to free rides on certain steamers, ferries and motor coaches as well as other extras.

The Eurailpass has to rank high among travel bargains anywhere in these days of the floating dollar and energy crunch. European trains are among the most modern—they are clean, comfortable, frequent, fast and reliable as I have learned from personal experiences in Italy, France, Germany and Norway.

Eurailpasses must be bought in the United States —they are not available in Europe —from travel agencies or local offices of the member railroads. The pass must show the holder's passport number with both being checked by train conductors and border guards. To have full value, do not get the pass stamped until the first train trip.

Prices Go Up

There are about 100,000 miles of track in the combined networks of the member railroads in Austria, Belgium, Denmark, France, Italy, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland and West Germany.

Eurailpass prices have gone up $20 to $50 since the dollar crisis in 1973 but they are still a good buy, particularly for Americans who plan to travel extensively in Europe. In addition to the 21-day pass for $150, there's a one-month pass for $190, two months for $260 and three months for $300. Children 4-12 pay half-fare while those under 4 ride free.

Students under 26 are eligible for a two-month, second-class Student Railpass with unlimited mileage for $165. The student pass includes many of the side benefits offered by the Eurailpass.

In addition to its low cost, Eurailpass offers other dividends for the American traveler. By paying in advance, he doesn't have to worry about paying a higher fare because of currency fluctuations. And there's the convenience of city-center to city-center transportation which eliminates the time and expense of getting to and from outlying airports. But, probably more important, the energy shortage is expected to have only a minimal effect on rail services.

Reservations a Must

The Eurailpass Executive Committee noted that most of the railways, "particularly the highly trafficked routes," are electrified and depend more on power generated by hydroelectric and coal-burning plants than on oil.

"No curtailment in services are planned," the committee said recently. "As a matter of fact, possible additions are being planned to compensate for heavier demands expected as a result of automobile and aircraft fuel curtailments."

The passes do not include meals or sleeping accommodations such as couchettes. But Eurailpass holders do not have to pay the supplementary fare usually charged for seat reservations on the crack TEEs and other luxury trains. There now are 39 of the all first-class international specials, each running in two directions daily, in the TEE network. But advance reservations still are a must.

Trains on the more popular routes generally include dining cars but it also is possible to buy snacks and soft drinks from venders on board. Food and drink also can usually be purchased from stands and shops at stops along the way.

You can fix your itinerary as you go, stopping off whenever and wherever you decide.

Give till it helps.

Chess Chatter

By ANDREW SCHMIDT

We chess players of USCF Region One can be very thankful that the New England chess scene is composed of the very best in the two difficult areas of chess—playing and organizing.

Locally, Newton players such as Larry Eldridge, who writes chess pieces for the "Christian Science Monitor" and the "Maine Sunday Telegram," and junior high players such as Michael Moy and Danny Shiman have earned distinction for both chess journalism and actual chess playing. Nationally, Norman Weinstein of nearby Allston is gaining international invitations leading to the title of 'International Master,' and as such is giving New England recognition worldwide.

However, this region also has the talents of the relentless Steven Dann of Worcester, who is a USCF regional vice-president, Massachusetts State Chess Association membership secretary (he also was president a few years back), CONE (Chess Organizers of New England) president, etc. etc. etc. A very impressive list.

Steve travels around the state promoting chess tournaments, simultaneous exhibitions (rumors are he will do one at North High this year), and other chess organizer activities. Perhaps the reader will remember the 1973 Newton Novice Tournament in December . . . which brings us to the 1974 Newton Scholastic Novice tournament being held again at the Newton YMCA on Church Street in April.

Tow sections for junior high and elementary school age children will be held under the time-proven system of four games in a non-knock out type tournament. Play starts about 10 a.m. on April 6, and will be continued until the four games are finished about 3 p.m., although both times are very shaky and subject ot change. This tournament is primarily for beginners, and the low entry fee is only $2 by mail, plus a $1 year's membership in the state chess association.

For USCF tournament players, a rated section will be held for both 1500 and below and a separate division for 1500-1700 players. Details for those tournament will be in 'Chess Life and Review'.

Details and entry forms for both the elementary and rated tournaments can be had by writing to Steve Dann, 97 Granite St., Worcester, Massachusetts 01604. For players wishing to enter at the door, a $1 late fee is added to the usual tournament admission fee.

From the last Newton tournament comes this interesting game, complete with the finished position diagrammed:

PAWN SHORTS: The Newton Free Library drrw its semi-annual match vs. Watertown last week 3-3. Shiman, Louis Germani, and Michael Moy won for Newton.

Spring Jazz Fest at library on March 15

There will be jazz, standard hit tunes, ballads and old favorites when the Larry Smith Quintet from the Berklee College of Music performs at the Newton Free Library's Spring Jazz Fest, Friday evening, March 15 at 7:30 p.m.

The Quintet includes Larry Smith on drums; Glen Ingram playing alto saxophone; Jo Macaro on bass; Mike Marra at the piano, and Cliff Tetle, tenor saxophone.

Smith is a junior who played with the Stan Kenton Orchestra; Glen Ingram is a senior at Berklee majoring in arranging and composing; Mike Marra is a talented pianist who has played throughout the New England area; Jo Macaro is an applied music major at the college; and Cliff Tetle is a senior completing studies in music education who has a varied background in the field of performance.

The group starts off with a brief introduction, discussing musicians who innovate and set trends on particular instruments. They will also discuss making music, their instruments, how they are used, how the sound is made, and the range of a particular instrument.

Musical highlights will include "Windows," originally written by Chick Corea, a Berklee graduate, "Forest Flower,", "Autumn Leaves,", "Mr. Clean," "Summertime," "Our Day Will Come," and "Here's That Rainy Day."

The library will feature a special record and book exhibit, with materials available for borrowing, on March 15.

Artist to work

On Thursday evening, March 21, at 8 p.m., Newton Art Association members will be bringing sketch pads and canvases to the Newton Highlands Women's Workshop, 72 Columbus St.

They will sketch or paint a model or still-life arrangement.

Members, friends, and interested visitors who will not be painting or drawing watch works of the various artists develop. Refreshments will be served by Mrs. Leona Monto and Mrs. Elvira Suitor. Guests are welcome

The Saletans featured in Guthrie biography show

A benefit performance of the Woody Guthrie biolgraphy, "Bound for Glory," will be presented by the Folk Song Society of Greater Boston Saturday, March 16, at 8 p.m. in the Brookline High School auditorium.

Michael Cooney and Irene and Tony Saletan, featured performers, will be under the direction of Robert J. Lurtsema, host of the WGBH radio series Morning Pro Musica.

Woody Guthrie was a victim of Huntington's disease, a hereditary neurologic disorder for which there is no known cure. After his death, his widow, Marjorie, established the Committee to Combat Huntington's Disease, an organization dedicated to the care of those who suffer Huntington's disease and to its eradication through research. All the proceeds from the benefit performance will go to the Committee to Combat Huntington's Disease.

Alice Aronow of Newton is production coordinator for the performance.

Tickets for this musical can be purchased at the Peace Boutique, 811 Washington st., Newtonville, or at the door. Brookline High School is at the Brookline Hills stop of the Green Line trolley.

Forum topic Spanish Jewry

Fishing flies at library

With the approach of Spring the pulse of the fisherman quickens.

For the fisherman who also ties flies activity did not cease with the first fall of snow. All winter the fly-tyer has been actively preparing for the coming season.

People who are ready to go fishing and want information about flies can examine a March exhibit in the glass cases at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner, where famous fly patterns and more than 150 flies will be on display through March 31.

Many types of flies, including bucktails, dry flies, wet flies, and nymphs, will be on display. Different stages in the dress of the fly will also be shown.

All of the flies in this collection were tied by Bob Kopacz who has years of experience in the art. Bob has stimulated local interest in fly-tying by giving fly-tying courses including one at the Newton YMCA.

In addition to the array of flies, the display will include fly-tying tools, materials, and a collection of books by American fly fishermen.

It's Spring!

There could well be several feet of snow on the ground, but whatever the weather, it is now officially spring. Students at Mt. Ida Junior College got the "jump" on the season recently with an afternoon of riding activities. Here, Rosemary Minehan takes a jump on the course. (Photo by Nina Hudner).

Chestnut St. tree controversy spreading

An "operational mixup" about the removal of a tree in front of 239 Chestnut St.resulted in the arrest of one West Newton man and the confiscation of a gun from another last week.

Arthur Obermayer, 42, was charged by police with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a truck) and using a motor vehicle without authority. His case was continued to March 26. No plea was entered.

A statement from a Forestry Department foreman alleges Obermayer came out of his house and ordered the foreman to stop removal work on the tree, which has been declared diseased and has been recommended for removal for safety reasons by four studies.

The foreman said he explained that he was under orders from the forestry superintendent to remove the tree.

"Mr. Obermayer then went back into his house. About five minutes later, he returned," the statement alleges. "While Gene Machain was up in the sky-worker bucket, this same man jumped into Sky Worker No. 8 and threw the truck into reverse; the outriggers were down."

"Consequently," the statement continued, "Gene Machain hurt his back."

"Then another man appeared on the scene, name unknown, with a revolver and stood there with his hand on the gun and ordered us to stop removing said tree.

"Shortly thereafter, the Newton police appeared on the scene. They entered the home at 239 Chestnut St. and removed the man who had the revolver. Upon orders from the street commissioner we stopped the removal of this tree."

According to police, the gun was seized but no charges have been brought against the gun's owner, who is licensed to carry a gun.

Obermayer was released from Newton District Court on personal recognizance when his case was continued.

Public Works Director Richard Dudman said this week that the operational mixup occurred when Forestry Department personnel arrived at the scene a day earlier than scheduled.

Dudman had written Obermayer about the tree earlier in the week and had expected to discuss the tree with him last Thursday.

'No crisis' yet for schools

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

If funds to cover teacher's pay in June are not made available by April 1, the School Committee will cut off adult education, community schools, athletic programs and instructional materials in order to meet its payroll, the chairwoman said this week.

Declaring that this situation "is by no means a crisis," School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum said in a written statement: "Our first obligation will be to pay the salaries of our professional staff."

A shortage of $649,000 exists now.

At a high-level meeting of city and school administrations behind closed doors last week, the implications of the $649,000 deficit were studied, with the results that the city can wait until April 1, for expected state reimbursements.

Beyond that date, it is unclear what courses the city can take to raise the needed money. Even though the city's surplus account may by April 1 contain more than the needed amount, not all may be transferred to school accounts.

Any transfer from surplus must be approved by the Board of Aldermen.

The finaccial problem has its roots in early 1973 in the deliberate omission from the 1973-74 school budget of estimated salary increases to be negotiated later in 1973.

The reason for this omission was said at the time to be a wish not to reveal to the teacher's bargaining agent what the School Committee was willing to give in increases.

Mrs. Rosenblum's statement said, "It was anticipated from the very beginning that additional sums would be needed for salary adjustments resulting from negotiations with employee groups."

"This information was stated publicly on several occasions," the statement read, and went on to mention two School Committee budget meetings in February, 1973, at which School Superintendent Aaron Fink had said that the budget did not reflect negotiated salary increases.

The information was also conveyed by letter to Board of Aldermen President Eliot Cohen and to Ald. Sidney Small, Finance Committee chairman, the statement said.

Fink is also reported in the statement to have said at a School Committee meeting on July 30 that he had told Mayor Theodore Mann that "no assurance had been given by the School Committee that the Committee would not have to go back to the city for funds necessary to pay for increment for the teachers . . ." The July 30 meeting was in executive (closed) session.

However, at the time the tax rate was being set, Comptroller Arthur Marr had already warned the School Committee that they should ask for a supplementary budget to cover the teachers' salary negotiations, and says that he was reassured that the School Department would have sufficient funds.

Supplementary budgets can be submitted only up to the time the tax rate is set.

Notes from an August 6 meeting of the Board of Aldermen on the amount of surplus to be used to offset the tax rate contain the following:

Richard Bullwinkle: I find it strange that the School Committee had $1 million loose; Vienneau said they did not have a loose million (School Department budget director HarryVienneau).

(Bullwinkle went on at great length and in great detail to point out that the proposed $1.9 million to be taken from surplus was too much, and countered with $750,000.)

Arthur Marr: (of Bullwinkle's presentation) Bullwinkle with few exceptions is pretty factual. The mayor asked me today how much to take out of surplus. My big problem is the School Department. Some members of the School Department say they can absorb the teachers' increase.

Finance Chairman Sidney Small: (later) You did speak to the School Committee and they said they expect to handle the salary increase?

Marr: Yes.

Ernest Dietz: Can we borrow money if we run out?

Marr: We can only borrow for health and safety.

The result of the long and sometimes acrimonious debate was a vote to take $1.6 million out of surplus to be applied toward the tax rate, over the strong objections of Bullwinkle, Peter Harrington and others.

Politics were of prime consideration last August, since the mayor was running for reelection.

Supporters of the mayor's opponent in the election last November opposed the mayor's taking such a large amount out of surplus and accused him of doing so to lower the tax rate to help his reelection, and in turn were accused of not wanting to let him cut taxes at all in the hope that the higher tax rate would mean his defeat.

Mann's opponent, William Carmen, issued a press release Aug. 6, predicting that the city would be in financial trouble if the tax rate were decreased "with a record amount of money from the city treasury."

School Committee

Panel discusses house plans

By TOM GRAVES
Of The Graphic Staff

The Newton School Committee heard a discussion of the house systems at the high schools this week at a special meeting.

There are presently six houses at Newton North High School and three at Newton South. Several definitions were offered of what a house is, but it was repeatedly emphasized that a house is intended to be a mini-structure which gives students "a sense of belonging" to part of a school.

The School Committee flanked a seven-person panel composed of administrators, students and a teacher.

Harold M. Hawkes, housemaster of Newton South's Cutler House, said that the house system provides a better opportunity for close relationships than what existed before it began.

Hawkes noted that there are several factors which weaken the house system at Newton South. "A proliferation of course offerings takes students out of their houses," Hawkes said.

He added that a student union at Newton South had caused the elimination of house councils. The union, which exists for the whole school, has destroyed interest in "special house nights" and intramurals, according to Hawkes.

There has been an attempt at Newton South to have students take courses within their own house.

Andrea Brown, a South student, said that this limits the number of courses a student can take.

Ms. Brown noted that many students do find the house plan very effective. "It helps a student to identify as a member of a community," she said.

Michael Silton, a student at Newton North, suggested that it would be best if most or all sophomores had classes in their own house. Silton felt that vandalism at Newton North is a symptom of students feelings anonymity. To combat this, he asked for a strengthening of the house system.

Richard M. Adams, housemaster of Newton North's Beals House, said the house system" gives us an opportunity for humaneness we would not have without the house plan."

Adams commented that the house plan attempts to answer anonymity while open campus is a response to feelings that there was too much regimentation at Newton High School.

"We are aware that there is a group for which open campus is not appropriate," Adams said. "Students have been taken off open campus for cutting classes."

Adams said that in Beals House there is an emphasis on having sophomores feel part of the house, having juniors feel part of school, and having seniors relate to the community.

Adams remarked that three "pillars" of Newton North are the house plan, strong departments and open campus.

Peter G. Richter, head of the science department at Newton South, suggested that it might be desirable to have each house at South contain all of the members of one class. Presently, the houses contain students from all three classes.

Jaycee annual banquet Friday

The Newton Jaycees have announced the names of the five finalists for their annual Distinguished Service Award (DSA), to be presented at the banquet Friday night.

The finalists are: William E. Byrne Jr., Edward G. English, Howard A. Levine, Michael Lipof, Thomas C. Reilly, James M. Salter and Joseph E. Siciliano.

The first annual Notable Newtonian Award, sponsored by Silver Lake Dodge, will be given to a citizen who meets the DSA qualifications, but is over the age limit for this award, 36 years.

Also on the program is the first Annual Silver Tool Kit award that will be presented to Kevin E. Teevan for his excellence in mechanical technology.

Teevan is receiving his award for his post-graduate work at Newton Technological High School.

The banquet is being held at Sidney Hill Country Club. Bob Alkon (969-6032) has ticket information. Following the banquet, which begins with cocktails at 6:30 p.m., Miss Newton - Silver Lake Dodge will be chosen in a pageant at poolside at 9:30 p.m.

William E. Byrne Jr., the first on the list of DSA candidates, is a Newton Police Department cadet. At 21, he is one of the youngest men ever nominated for this award.

Byrne has served as a volunteer in several community organizations, including the Beginning Youth Center and a welfare family group on Cape Cod. He works with young people locally through

NRA hears plans for relocation

The Newton Redevelopment Authority (NRA) heard plans last week for relocating businesses in Newton Lower Falls which are scheduled for demolition.

The businesses discussed were Mary's Cafe, The Shed, Loumos Lee Television and Air Conditioning, and the Blue Lady Antique Shop.

Consultants Imre Halasz and Charles Downes presented four plans for relocating either three or four of the businesses. Two of the plans would put all four businesses at the easterly end of federal "parcel A" along Washington Street; the other two would place three of the businesses at the westerly end of the parcel.

Mary's Cafe cannot be relocated at the westerly end because of the site's proximity to a nearby church.

NRA Executive Director Gerald Early said that all four businesses have shown interest in building a new building.

"We are going to try to give them an option to stay in business," Early stated.

Procedure of selling city land under study

It may not be as easy as it once was to buy city-owned land, if a resolution submitted by the League of Women Voters becomes law.

The proposal to regulate sale of city-owned land has been approved by the aldermanic Finance Committee and sent to the Legislation & Rules Committee to be made into an ordinance.

Procedures until now have allowed offers to be made, reviewed by the Finance Committee, and voted on by the Board of Aldermen without regard for the used to which the land will be put except those dictated by zoning laws.

Emphasis in the new process will be on public notification of offers to buy.

When an offer is received, it will be docketed by the Clerk of the Board, who will make written inquiries of vaious city departments as to the city's needs for an interest in the land.

The Planning Department will make a recommendation on the basis of the needs of all departments, commissions and authorities.

The Board of Aldermen shall hold the item at least 60 days and no more than one year to allow receommendations from the Planning Department to be made and to receive written answers from the various city departments about whether the land is available for sale and not needed.

The appropriate committee of the Board dealing with matters of city planning shall then make recommendations on whether the land should be sold and on appropriate uses for the land.

If the Board of Aldermen decides the land should be sold, the petition offering to buy shall be referred to the aldermanic committee dealing with matters of finance and advertised for apublic hearing on the possible sale and appropriate uses for the land. Legal abutters shall be notified of the public hearing.

The financial committee of the Board shall subsequently recommend a minimum price and one or more preferred uses of the land for final approval by the Board of Aldermen and the mayor.

Streakers strike

It was even advertized in the school newspaper. Streakers were to rendevous for an afternoon dash, the paper said, last Friday at Boston College. And away they went amid, it appears, a rather unconcerned group of people. (Lupo photo)

Police meet with citizens

Chief William F. Quinn of the Newton Police Department announced recently that the Citizens Awareness and Crime Prevention Program, that has been visiting from village to village, has had some interesting results.

Two arrests have been made as a result of a 911 call. A citizen observing two young men in the process of a "break" called and arrests were made within min.utes.

Crime Program teams have interviewed and had personal discussions with over 6,000 citizens. The team consists of: Sergeant Charles Feeley, Sergeant John Likely, Youth Officer Robert Braceland, Roy Fairweather, Policewomen Marilyn Connell, Patricia McMaster, Traffic Inspectors Anthony Penzo, Robert Antonellis, John Kiley, Detective Leonard Farrell and Cadet Ronald Shorton.

From the Auxillary Police, Deputy Chief Jay I. W. Moskow, Captain Norman Arnonson, Julina Eaton, William Sidell and William Saunders. Also, Ex,lorer Scouts Glen Harris and Mark Spiegel marked bicycles. At Auburndale, Weston Safety Officer James McShane joined the team to interview Weston residents.

Acceptance of the program by the shopping public has been warm, encouraging and cooperative, and at locations where Mayor Theodore Mann and Quinn joined the team, both had lines of citizens wanting to discuss problems or offer assistance.

According to Quinn, "The reception and enthusiasm shown by the public for our partnership theme was gratifying and surprising. We had thought, that in view of the recent F.B.I. reports on the national crime picture, that we would be receiving complaints about crime, or fear of crime. Instead most citizens expressed confidence and pleasure in our programs and were most anxious to participate.

"They expressed a desire to share the problem and become part of a prevention team. Many stated that until they had a chance to talk with our people, face to face, they didn't realize Crime Prevention could be successful partnership effort. We told them we want and need their eyes and we will do the rest," Quinn said.

"Many of the younger citizens had never met an officer personally, and many women hadn't realized the proper way to carry a handbag or pocketbook until our policewomen demonstrated the better and safer ways."

The chief continued, "At one location, the presence of our officers lent great peace of mind to the mother of an inquisitive five year old boy who had managed to get his hand caught in a grocery conveyor, when Officer John Kiley stopped the conveyor and released the trapped hand. While this was going on Cadet Ronald Shorton called 911 for ambulance service, and within four minutes the boy and his mother were on their way to Newton-Wellesley, where he was seen to, and released.

"This story had a double happy ending; the inquisitive boy found out how conveyors worked and was not injured, and Cadet Shorton, who had called 911 from a pay phone, had his dim returned, showing that our 911 system works even on a pay phone."

The Chief said, "The only negative echo is one with a positive bang. We have to apologize to our people interested in Operation Identification. So many joined that we have a waiting list of over 500 for our equipment and we estimate a three to four week wait for an engraver."

Franklin students dabble in maple syrup making

A total of 51 kindergarten and first-grade students from the Franklin School in West Newton leaned first-hand about the fine art of making maple syrup recently as part of a field trip to the Y.M.C.A. Ponkapoag Outdoor Center in Canton.

Among the students who made the trip were those in the kindergarten and first-grade classes of Karen DeRusha, as well as first-graders in the classes of Alicia Spencer and Linda Bergantino.

Also going out to tap the trees were the mothers of some of the students: Suzanne Goldstein of 146 Parmenter Rd., Sally Fraser of 150 Parmenter Rd., Mary MacLaren of 176 Cherry Street, and Margaret Buchanan of 122 Adena Rd., all of West Newton.

In addition to helping harvest the sap from trees already tapped and over-flowing, the youngsters also got to tap some of the trees themselves under the supervision of Ponkapoag's resident naturalist Mike McCusker.

It was a quick trip from the rows of sturdy maples—known to backwoodsmen as "the sugarbush," to the center's 200-gallon outdoor evaporator, where the children watched the sap boiled down into fresh maple syrup which they all got to taste.

The Ponkapoag Outdoor Center in the Blue Hills Reservation has been granted special permission to tap the trees for educational and recreational urposes.

March is known as the month of the "Maple Moon," and all this month (as long as the sap keeps running) the center is sponsoring three-day residential "Maple Sugaring Weekends" for families, groups, and indivduals.

Newton's men in blue will face off against the Massachusetts State Legislators hockey team tomorrow night (Friday, March 22) at 8 p.m. at the Charles River Ice Skating Center, Wells Avenue.

The hockey game will be for the benefit of the Shriners Burn Institute, which treats child victims from all over the world free of charge.

There will be a $2 donation requested instead of an admission fee.

The Police Department lineup will consist of Safety and Youth Off. Roy Fairweather, Det. Richard O'Halloran, Sgt. Frank Gorgone, Det. Gerry Marchand, Det. Jack Claflin, Ptl. Jack Bellevue, Ptl. Frank MacKenzie, Sgt. Jim Carter, Lt. Paul Robinson, Ptl. James O'Donnell, K-9 Off. Tom Fleming, Ptl. Frank Fall, Ptl. Dave Richards, and Lt. John Parker, two Newton firefighters, Peter Guzzi and Paul Barry, and a former All-American player, Don Fox.

The Legislators' hockey team will include former Bruins players Fernie Flammin, currently coach at Northeastern University, Eddie Sanford, and Don McKenny. Other players will be State Treasurer Robert Crane, Peter O'Neil of the office of House Speaker David Bartley, and several state senators and representatives.

The Newton Police Department season record against other police departments is six wins and three losses. The Legislators have a record of seven wins.

Developer appeals zoning law

A developer four times denied a zone change and permissive use has petitioned the Zoning Board of Appeals for variances under Chapter 774, the "anti-snob zoning" law.

The firm of John R. McIsaac will ask the ZBA for a comprehensive permit to build 140 units of housing on the 10-acre Staniford Street tract, Auburndale, at a hearing next Tuesday night.

The variances requested include a zone change from Residence C to Residence D district, a reduction of the required 25-foot frontage per attached dwelling, a variance from the required one and one-half parking spaces per unit, and a waiver of site-plan approval by the Board of Aldermen.

The land is being actively sought by the Conservation Commission for inclusion in the top-priority land acquisition proposal of the 1974-75 capital improvement program.

The land lies partially within a floodplain and abuts Auburndale Park, linking a series of open spaces from West Newton to Auburndale.

The petition for a comprehensive permit proposes 32 townhouses and 108 garden apartments, all as defined under the zoning ordinances.

The housing will be for low and moderate income persons. The low income units, 35 of the 140 total, would be administered by the Newton Housing Authority under its leased housing program at rentals prescribed by state law.

The 105 moderate income units would rent at rates determined by the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency, which Lawrence Shubow, lawyer for the developer, said are "considerably below market value."

The proposed housing will be built in a total of eight buildings. Some of the parking and roadways will be within the floodplain, the petition asserts, and some trees will be removed.

According to the plan, the buildings will cover 12 per cent of the land, roads and parking 21 per cent, and 67 per cent will remain open.

Four alternatives presented in the petition include a single-lot subdivision and a lower-density condominium.

A 100-unit development was recommended for denial by the Planning Department in 1973 because of incompatibility with the surrounding neighborhood, traffic-access difficulty, and problems with flood plain compensation, among other reasons cited.

Subsidized housing workshop topic

Can housing needs of low and moderate income families be met today in suburban communities?

Are there any viable methods besides new construction, which is still fighting for acceptance in many suburbs?

These questions will be discussed at a workshop, "Suburban Housing for Low-Moderate Income Families - Alternatives to New Construction," to be sponsored by Norumbega Association at 61 Chestnut st., West Newton, Thursday, March 28, from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m.

Resource people will include: Reilly Atkinson III, of the Joint Center for Urban Studies, David Bird of Massachusetts Tomorrow, Rolf Goetze of the Boston Redevelopment Authority and Newton Alderman David Jackson.

Audience discussion will follow capsule presentations on the following topics: "Update of Housing Needs Data" (based on the Joint Center's December 1973 publication, America's Housing Needs 1970-1980); "The Trickle-Down Theory," "Rehabilitation in Suburbs?," "Bootleg Apartments and the Need for 'Prohibition Repeal'," "Stemming the Tide of Demolition," and "Attitudes on the Fringe."

A citizen organization advocating an integrated approach to planning for the future of our region, Norumbega Association is concerned with such interrelated areas as transportation, open space, industrial development, housing, education and population growth. Housing fits into the picture because a balanced region ought to provide for the accessibility of housing as well as jobs, education, etc. to a wide variety of people.

The conference is open to the public; all interested town officials, organizations and individuals are invited to attend. Call Norumbega at 332-1270 for further information.

Fishman sponsors elderly aid bills

Property tax relief, utility rebates, free recreational opportunities, and absentee voting privileges are among the elderly-benefits legislation sponsored by Sen. Irving Fishman (D-Newton).

At recent hearings in the Massachusetts Senate, Fishman testified on behalf of his bill, S. 1331, which would extend the tax exemption from real estate taxes for certain elderly persons.

Under the current law only those grossing $6,000 per year are eligible for the exemption. Under Fishman's bill federal social security benefits would not be counted as part of a person's gross income for purposes of computing the tax exemption. Thus, many elderly property owners with marginal incomes would not have to pay real estate taxes.

Fishman also testified on behalf of his bill to grant rebates of at least 35 per cent of the basic gas, electric and telephone charges to consumers over age 65 who have a gross annual individual income not over $5,000 or a joint income of less than $7,500.

In related matters, Fishman is sponsoring legislation to provide free admission to state-operated recreational facilities for those over 60 years old, and free course-auditing educational privileges at any state college or university for those over 65.

Fishman's bill to provide that all registered voters over the age of 70 may vote by absentee ballot will be heard before the committee on Election Laws on March 25 at the State House.

Reporter spends day with mayor

By ANDY FIELDING

Who is the lowest paid psychiatrist in the United States?

According to Ted Mann, Ted Mann is.

"I practice mass psychotherapy," explains Mann, now in his third year as Mayor of the city of Newton. He leans over the cluttered mahogany desk in his spacious City Hall office, puffing on a big, thick cigar, in spite of the fact that he's got a bad cough.

He sees himself as a sort of counselor, an advisor, a doctor with a very large practice.

"I put in seven days, seven nights a week," he says, "I am always on call–my phone number is in the book, and as you can see, my door is always open. I have a policy which makes me accessible to people. Any citizen can call me, and I respond. That's what government is all about."

Those aren't just a bunch of words coming from a Mayor trying to get good copy out of a student reporter there to find out just what goes on during the course of a mayor's day. He speaks the truth. Observing–or as he might put it, analyzing–Theodore Mann at work for a day, one is impressed by his accessibility, his availability.

He does have an "open-door," "open phone" policy.

This particular day, a Friday, is not, according to those working in the Mayor's office, a terribly busy one, but from the time he steps into his office shortly after 9 a.m., Mayor Mann is busy taking telephone calls (his wife, in fact, needs a special phone line to be sure of getting through to her husband), meeting with unexpected visitors, at the same time keeping up with the daily appointments schedule.

Whether it's an elderly woman who was threatened with imprisonment for not paying a bill, or a citizen with a dry cleaning problem, or a state representative seeking support for a piece of legislation he's filing (all three of whom did not have appointments), Mayor Mann is there, willing to offer help, counsel and advice.

Earlier in the morning, this day, the Mayor meets with Don Levitan, director of inter-governmental relations at City Hall. They briefly discuss a Spaulding School transportation problem. Levitan will return later in the day about an issue involving the MBTA.

A representative of the city's neighborhood Youth Corps comes in to have a private chat with the Mayor.

Larry Muther, of the Newton Taxpayers Association, has an appointment, and he and Mann go over some tax points. Muther will later report back to the association concerning the meeting.

All the while, the Mayor is cordial, and he's informed. And when he's unsure of an answer, he'll ask questions; when he's confused he'll quickly consult someone who does know the answers.

The major question confronting the mayor and his staff on this day centered not around NCDF, nor around reorganization, nor around the city's budget, but around a tree.

Shortly before the mayor arrived at work in the morning, his administrative aide, Chuck Miller, received a phone call from a Newton citizen complaining that a tree was being cut down in front of his home, without explanation or apparent reason.

As soon as the Mayor arrived, he was confronted with the tree dilemma, and began to take action. He telephoned the man who complained, but spoke instead to the man's wife, since her husband had since left for work. At the same time, he called in Reese Boynton of the city's Forestry Department, who had begun to remove the tree; Richard Dudman, the Director of Public Works (who subsequently went out to speak to the woman personally), Ed Bolduc, the street commissioner; and Miller.

The woman contended that the tree was alive, that a hearing was necessary to remove the tree, and that no one had been informed it was being removed. Boynton, however, said that he had determined the tree was dead, and should thus be removed, since it constituted a public safety hazard.

Throughout his telephone conversation with the woman, and throughout the rest of the day (the "tree crisis" would weave itself in and out during the full course of the day), the Mayor emphasized his own concern for "the public safety."

In discussing the tree, the Mayor, interestingly enough, made heavy use of medical terms and analogies.

"If a doctor detects a cancer," he would say, "there must be some sort of treatment," or, "If we make a diagnosis, we may find that surgery is necessary."

The woman, however, didn't seem to understand (she had, as a matter of fact, already complained to an alderman and a state representative candidate), and the Mayor seemed to be getting irritated. But he kept his poise.

To check on the "health" of the tree – to find out whether it was dead or alive–the Mayor directed that a piece of the tree be sent over to a firm in Waltham to be examined. The firm later that day concluded the tree was, in fact, dead. Another expert, however, hired by the complainents, contended the tree was alive. So as of now, the tree still stands.

This incident, though not one of monumental importance, is a significant one. It clearly shows how a government can and does respond to a crisis, to a complaint by an ordinary citizen. As the result of one telephone call, action was taken. And though it seems clear that there was a bit of confusion on the. part of City Hall as to the procedure involved in cutting down trees (particularly dead ones), it's encouraging to see that action was taken, and taken with speed and concern. It was also encouraging to see the Mayor himself take such an active role in the whole procedure.

It's time for lunch and the student reporter expects to see the Mayor eat something lavish, something expensive. He's wrong. The Mayor orders fish sticks from the local Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant. While eating, he chats with Chuck Miller, Jane Pitt of the Dept. of Human Resources, as well as someone from the forestry department, about the controversial tree.

Lunch is over, and the day's guests are slowing down, the calls are easing up. Rep. Paul Guzzi, now a secretary of state candidate, pays a social call.

As Guzzi enters the Mayor is busy reading over some notes and papers ("I think being a Mayor," says Guzzi, "is like being a teacher who has a lot of papers to correct.").

As a Mayor of a suburban community, Mann must keep open the lines of communication with the state government. At one point during the day, he gets on the phone, and calls Al Kramer in the governor's office. They discuss the energy situation. "I've got to keep my finger on the interrelationships between the county and the city," he says, as he hangs up the phone still puffing away on one of his cigars. "I've been in the state legislature. I know who to call, I know where to go looking for solutions to problems...It's a good thing when you can call the governor's office and you're received."

He sits back, and picks up a copy of a local school newspaper which contains an interview with him. "The kid did a good job," he says, and proceeds to dictate a message of thanks to the student.

Others filter in and out, and by 5:30 the work day is coming to an end.

But though City Hall is closing up, Mayor Mann is still "on call." Later that evening, he has to speak at Temple Shalom, as well as visit some patients at the Newton-Wellesley.

Undoubtedly, he'll be busy over the weekend, taking calls, seeing visitors. Hopefully, though, he won't have to make any "house calls."

As he's getting his coat on, he recalls the elderly woman who had been threatened with imprisonment.

"When she came in," he says, "she was shaking, she was scared. When she left, she was more calm, she was more at ease. You know why?"

He paused, and looked at the student reporter.

"Mass psychotherapy."

Police charge local man with assault and battery

A 30-year old Newton man was picked up on a warrant this week and charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon and assault with intent to murder.

Joseph A. Brouillette, 24 Beech St., Newton, was arrested by Detective Robert MacDougall Tuesday.

The charges stem from an alleged assault at the Elks Lodge in Newton, 429 Centre St. last Friday. Police said the clubwas rented.

According to police, a call was received from the Elks on Friday. Charles Kelly of West Newton was carried bleeding from the building and transported to Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Kelly was reportedly knifed at a private party after an argument.

Newton police also arrested eight people last Friday night for "knowingly being present where heroin is kept."

The arrests were made at 16 Melbourne Ave. Newtonville. Entrance was gained by means of a search warrant acquired through Newton District Court. Arresting officers included Lt. Richard Duffy, Det. Rupert Baker and Det. Richard Forbes.

Arrested were Betty A. Currier, 16 Melbourne Ave., Daniel E. Wall of Woburn, Kevin F. Dooley of Woburn, Paul L. Paris of Woburn, Gary M. Faretra of Burlington, George J. Keranas of Woburn, Salvatore A. Foti of Everett, and James M. Mirakian of Woburn.

Fitzsimmons flushed two juveniles out of a house and they were intercepted and arrested by Sgt. Philip Morreau and patrolmen Harry Cooper and James Rogers.

Pines Supports safety bills, increase in cigarette excise

Rep. Lois Pines (D-Newton) testified last week before the Legislative Committee on Public Safety on two bills— one to require the use of shoulder and lap belts in motor vehicles and one to require the mandatory installation of fire alarm and detection systems in all new private dwellings and apartment buildings.

Pines also testified in support of her proposed legislation in increase the cigarette excist tax by four cents to provide additional revenue for funding Chapter 766 and improve mass transit in Massachusetts.

Pines hopes to make Massachusetts the first state to adopt legislation requiring the use of safety belts. The U.S. Department of Transportation estimates that deaths could be reduced by 10,000 lives per year, and many times that number in injuried could be mitigated or averted altogether if all states adopted this legislation, Pines said.

The result, Pines said, would be less demand for hospital. medical, police and legal services, and reduced auto and health insurance premium.

Pines' bill would require a fine of $25-100 if a driver were found not using his lap and shoulder belts. "Enforcement of this law will, of course, be difficult," Pines commented, "but many good laws in highway safety and other areas are difficult to enforce."

The bill requiring fire detection devices in all buildings used as dwellings, co-sponsored by Pines and Sen. Michael LoPresti of Boston, was supported by Fire Commissioner James H. Kelly of Boston and the Associated Firefighters of Massachusetts.

The devices called for in the bill would "act as early warning fire alarm systems, by registering the presence of smoke or other products of combustion and responding with an audible signal," Pines explained.

House Bill 1126, which would increase the cigarette excise tax by four cents, was heard by the Taxation Committee.

The bill would generate approximately $28 million in new revenue, half of which would be used for special education required by Chapter 766 and half for mass transit, Pines said.

"We must address the problem of reimbursing cities and towns for the excess per-pupil costs of educating special-needs children," Pines said.

Act or advise?

Another of the mayor's advisory committees, Consumer Affairs, is coming out of the closet.

Since its establishment sometime in 1972, its active membership has dropped so drastically that it wasn't even crowded.

This week's meeting dealt with the question that plagues many of the advisory committees — "What can we do?"

The charge to the committee from the Mayor Theodore Mann tells it to "advise me on issues of concern," "assist me in initiating and directing programs which would provide assistance to the public," and "help me educate the community" in field of consumerism.

At least one other advisory committee has grown restive under such vague directions. The Transportation Advisory Committee has many times expressed a desire to deal directly with a problem, feeling that the mayor often does not have the time or the inclination to pursue its advice.

The Advisory Committee on Consumer Affairs, now chaired by Rev. Robert McEwen of Boston College, has apparently recently been infused with new blood and is trying again.

McEwen, early in the meeting, recognized the relatively powerless nature of the committee and spoke in favor of what once had been a priority of the committee — the establishment of a consumer affairs commission.

Noting that the commission was no longer on the agenda, he said, "There's a lot of difference between reporting to the public and reporting to the mayor."

McEwen expressed disappointment that the mayor did not make a consumer affairs commission part of his election platform. "I could have gone around to the back door and gotten an alderman to draft it and propose it, but the mayor should do it."

Several members felt that the committee has been so unproductive that a commission would serve no purpose. The consensus was to wait until the committee can produce results before pressing for the establishment of a more powerful body, and McEwen reluctantly agreed.

Turning to ideas that could be put into action quickly, a new member, Bruce Taylor, suggested a consumer column for the local papers.

Another suggestion was to improve the publicity about the committee, since almost nobody in the city seems to know of its existence.

Referral of consumer complaints to the appropriate city agency was a service several members thought the committee could handle, once the mechanisms were figured out.

A "war on waste" was a suggestion of McEwen's, which would not only tell consumers how to avoid waste of all kinds, but also would alert them to watch for and challenge wasteful practices in business and industry.

Lillian Yoffe, not yet a member of the committee, but recently in the news for leading a "rolling boycott" of certain food products because of high prices, proposed a legislative subcommittee to watch for consumer-related state and national legislation, on which the committee could take a position.

All suggestions on immediate action were approved, as was the task of writing a new ordinance governing inspection of eating establishments and possible publication of their ratings.

The Advisory Committee on Consumer Affairs feels keenly its lack of opportunity to take things into its own hands, as does the Transportation Advisory Committee.

While the mayor's advisory committees, unpaid and unfunded, have performed a valuable service in some fields, their greatest success appears to be in response to a specific question, such as whether to have a CATV franchise in Newton or whether to create a municipal electric plant.

These groups cannot themselves construct an electric plant or a TV network, so they and their task are self-limited.

Some of the other advisory committees provide an ongoing critique of what the city administration is doing and are reasonably successful.

Political Highlights

Sargent's stock rises as gas shortage eases

Polls made on a day-to-day basis have shown Governor Francis W. Sargent's political stock rising as the gasoline shortage eased and lines of waiting motorists virtually disappeared at many filling stations.

That appears to corroborate the belief of some political observers, including this one, that the upset Democratic victories in congressional fights in Michigan and Ohio, resulted from issues that were closer to the people than the Watergate scandal.

Surveys of voting sentiment made by this writer have indicated that the election trends of a relatively few weeks ago have changed and that Governor Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight would be reelected if an election were held today.

The apparent reason for that shift in public sentiment is the easing of the gasoline shortage and the belief of many motorists that Governor Sargent had a part in putting more gasoline in the tanks at filling stations.

The danger of this situation from the standpoint of Sargent and Dwight is that if the gasoline shortage recurs and if the lines of automobiles reappear at gasoline stations, the inconvenienced motorists are likely to direct part of their wrath and indignation at them.

This reporter has yet to find any Massachusetts resident who believes Sargent or Dwight is in any way responsible for the Watergate mess. But the people blamed every Republican in sight for the gasoline shortage and high prices generally, and Sargent and Dwight are very much in sight.

The rise in the popularity of Governor Sargent in a short period of time has been astonishing. This observer counted him out earlier this year. But on the basis of a weird, up-and-down poll he's now very much in the gubernatorial fight. Future developments will determine whether he remains in it.

Richardson and Brooke head for 1976 battle

The 1976 Presidential Primaries should prove the most interesting and important ever held in Massachusetts.

Senator Edward W. Brooke and former U.S. Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson almost certainly will be opponents on the Republican side.

It will be the second time they have been head-to-head adversaries in a Republican party fight. They battled for the GOP nomination for Attorney General in 1962, and Brooke won.

The deciding factor in that clash was that Brooke had gained the second-ballot endorsement of the 1962 Republican State Convention after a first-ballot deadlock. It won him the nomination.

The outcome of a Presidential Primary contest between Brooke and Richardson probably would depend on which of the two achieved greater success in getting his supporters to turn out and vote. The one who loses in his home state would be just about eliminated from national consideration.

The last big Republican Presidential Primary fight in this state was staged in 1952 between forces backing Dwight D. Eisenhower and Robert A. Taft. The group allied with Ike won.

Senator Brooke executed a political coup for Nelson Rockefeller over Richard Nixon in the 1968 Presidential Primary. But that was done behind the scenes and was not an out-in-the-open political fight.

What happens in the Democratic Presidential Primary two years from now will depend on Senator Edward M. Kennedy. If he wants the Presidential nomination, he will have the Massachusetts delegation to the Democratic National Convention in his pocket.

If Ted is not a candidate, as he implies will probably be the case, a wide-open fight might develop for the Bay State vote at the Democratic conclave.

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White, who was almost tapped as the Democratic Vice Presidential nominee in 1972, might just be the state's favorite son candidate for President in 1976. It would place him in a strong position to get second place on the Democratic national ticket with someone such as Senator Henry M. Jackson.

Spaulding may enter Attorney General race

Former Republican State Committee Chairman Josiah A. Spaulding of Manchester is seriously considering the possibility of challenging William I. Cowin of Newton for the Republican nomination for Attorney General.

Spaulding has not yet made a final decision, but his friends say the likelihood is that he will enter the Attorney General race. This would mean another tough Republian primary contest.

Up to now it has been assumed that Cowin would get the GOP nomination for Attorney Genral without a real fight.

Cowin is known on Beacon Hill as the "deputy Governor" and is the Secretary of Administration and Finance in Governor Sargent's Cabinet.

Mr. Sargent, in response to a question during a televised interview a few weeks ago, said he expected to run in combination with Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight and Cowin.

However, Sarge is not likely to take sides in a Republican primary fight between Spaulding and Cowin if one develops.

Despite the high position Cowin holds on Beacon Hill, Spaulding probably is better known to the rank and file Republicans throughout Massachusetts as a result of his service as head of the Republican State Committee.

In the 1970 Republican primary, Spaulding overwhelmed John J. McCarthy of Chatham, prominent conservative Republican leader, who once held the same position under John A. Volpe which Cowin now holds under Sargent, in a contest for the Republican nomination for U.S. Senator.

Spaulding subsequently was defeated by Senator Edward M. Kennedy but made a creditable run against the state's most powerful vote-getter.

Cowin would give more racial balance to the Republican State Ticket than would Spaulding, but that factor probably will not weigh heavily with most Republican voters. Like Spaulding, Cowin has not yet announced his candidacy for Attorney General and is expected to leave Governor Sargent's Cabinet when he does.

Spring and its benefits

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Are you one of those people who can't seem to wake up in the morning unless the sun is shining brightly through the window?

If so, you're like me; and all of us, however meritorious daylight saving time is, have really been suffering lately.

It's morning, one eye opens, and all is in darkness.

A mind like the aforementioned therefore reasons that it is not REALLY morning, it's some trick of the somnolent imagination this awaking in utter darkness, and therefore about another hour of sleep won't hurt...

Completely Black

I've gone through this syndrome every winter of my life that I can remember. I recall, most vividly, that during my college years my sneaky sleeping mind would DREAM the alarm was sounding, I'd actually wake up and turn it off, and there would go my 8:30 a.m. class.

That's why spring is so important to we people who are waiting for the sun.

Once we pass that eternal vernal equinox, at least we know the sun is headed our way.

We won't be late for work again, we people who know, regardless of what anyone says, it's not morning when there's not a single ray of daylight in the sky.

Spring, and I don't care if there actually is four feet of snow on the ground at this minute, has arrived, and the yearly struggle is virtually over.

While on the subject, I was wandering through a shopping center Saturday and was stunned to see the television in the window of a television store broadcasting a baseball game.

It took me a minute, and then I realized, reinforcing this week's theme, that, yes, it was a real baseball game and the reign of hockey and basketball is almost at an end.

Baseball here, however, won't replace hockey in Newton hearts and minds until the playoffs end.

I know all about this, you see, because Elizabeth McKinnon is, among other things, a hockey freak.

And to make matters more acute, her son, David McKinnon; and Ald. Richard Bullwinkle's son, Dick Bullwinkle, are on the first place team, the Cougars.

The Cougars beat the longtime first-place Maroons for this honor last Sunday. Sunday, March 24, they enter the playoffs. Dick Bullwinkle scored the winning goal for the Cougars as is recounted in a story on the sports page.

Elizabeth is responsible for the rise of hockey on the Graphic sports pages, and she deserves some recognition. Tuesdays, I listen to her going through whatever amount of work it takes to get the standings straight. Hockey is important in Newton, and it's her work that got hockey news prominently into the paper.

Oil deposits off Cape cause many questions

Recent geological and seismic tests have indicated that there are petroleum deposits about 70 miles east of Nantucket which might produce up to 500,000 gallons of oil per day.

That is an extremely important finding at a time of an oil shortage and an energy crisis. The discovery has resulted in debate on a number of questions.

1. How much danger is there that oil spills from offshore wells would damage Nantucket and Cape Cod beaches?

2. How many new jobs would be created?

3. Would the operation of offshore oil wells assure a steady supply of oil at lower prices?

4. Would the royalties from the offshore oil—and possibly gas—wells go to the state or federal government?

Experts say that any oil spills probably would be "weathered" by winds and ocean and currents and that no damaging amount of oil would be likely to reach the beaches on Nantucket, Cape Cod or Martha's Vineyard.

Operation of the offshore wells would create a substantial number of new jobs and would produce a steady supply of gasoline and heating oil at lower prices. Estimates are that crude oil could be landed for as little as 80 cents a barrel. The present international market price is between $7 and $9 a barrel.

Experts on the financial aspect of the situation assert that the state could block the operation of offshore gas and oil wells by court action until it was assured of a satisfactory share of the royalties.

Auto center at South High

To the Editor:

At a recent meeting at the Newton South High School, it was brought to the attention of all those present that an enormous amount of money goes into the busing of students back and forth to extra-curricula activities; i.e.–swimming team composed of 30 girls and 20 boys—$800 per month, track team—$35 each time they practice, plus various other school activities.

The particular meeting was called to discuss the feasibility of building an addition to the existing school buildings to house the auto mechanics class which now meets outside of the building alongside of the industrial arts room.

Newton South High School is probably the only one which can boast of a regularly scheduled class being held out of doors–winter, summer, spring and fall-where boys, and a couple of girls, work under cars in the mud and snow and rain.

This class was originally designed as an experimental one, but has blossomed into a full scale, warmly welcomed work-study group of 138 students at this time. When started two years ago, it had 26 students enrolled.

Daily, Mr. Connelly, the teacher of this class, turns students away because he has no facilities. Mr. Connelly has used most of his own tools since few have been supplied, he has given of his time and energies until at this time this group of students can honestly say they are equipped to work in a filling station and handle repair jobs.

Some of the students are gainfully employed after school hours and weekends doing just that and plan to earn money while attending college with these jobs—perhaps even earn a living. In our college-oriented community we have plenty of time and money for academic and sports ventures, but where does that leave the boy who, and there are more and more in our city, does not wish to go on to college—certainly not trained to earn his keep.

It is the suggestion of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen that this group of students be bused to Newton North High School at a cost of $18,000 per year, where advanced courses and facilities are available. However, if the aldermen would take the time to check they would find that the Newton North schedule is already filled in this area, and they could not possibly absorb even 25 students, let alone 138. Also, if the aldermen would take the time to involve themselves a little more in the functions of the Building Committee they would have known that the state will pick up 65 per cent of any school building which meets with certain specifications, which existing plans do, and that the remaining part of the proposed budget would be paid for in three years of busing at $18,000 per year.

I, as a taxpayer, and I am sure I am not alone frankly, object to having my tax dollar bus students to out of school activities, while others must work outside. Are other people in this city aware of the money which is spent of this type of superfluous activity?—Or don't they care?

Don't blame us

To the Editor:

Have just completed reading the article "Oh, deer!" (March 14, 1974). Rewarding it is to see that a small part of nature in the City of Newton is still being preserved.

How hard the people in Thompsonville have worked to save more of the Hamond Pond Woods, but there are very few of us left that love Newton the way we do and want to save it from becoming a cement jungle.

Too many are here to get all they can out of the city and not give anything in return. Too many are here to make it a very unhappy place for us to live in after they leave for greener pastures.

Don't blame Thompsonville, we tried.

One plan for each end of the parcel had separate buildings, while the other plan for each end contained a single building which would house all interested businesses.

Halasz said that "in a single building, the four parties would have to get together in a common venture."

"We'll meet with these people and see what they want to do," Early commented. "We want to come to some conclusion so we can move ahead."

Early spoke in favor of discouraging parking along Washington Street. It was suggested that the businesses, if relocated might have no pedestrian entrances on Washington Street, and a fence might front the area.

According to Downes, parcel A was originally intended for 60-75 dwelling units. He said that if the businesses were placed on the property, density requirements would allow 40-45 dwelling units on the remaining portions of the parcel.

NRA member Margaret Smith said that she was inclined to favor one of the plans for relocating to the easterly end of the parcel because Mary's Cafe could not be included at the westerly end.

NRA Chairman Cecil Cadwell noted that options may exist other than the ones presented. He said that two of the businesses might want a joint venture while the other two might want individual ownership.

In other action, the NRA heard a report on the grading of land in parcel C (commercial section). Spaulding & Slye, the deisgnated developer of the parcel, sent representatives to talk about the grading.

One representative said that a goal is to blend the grades of the Spaulding & Slye land and the adjoining land in parcel A.

The NRA voted approval of the "intent" of the Spaulding & Slye grading plan.

The NRA also authorized advertising for bids for demolition of 10 sites.

YMCA announces youth programs

The return of its popular sewing class highlights the Newton YMCA's youth programs this spring. Registration is now underway.

The art of sewing will be taught to girls 10 years old and over by Mary Bonica, a long-time Newton Y instructor. Most recently, Mrs. Bonica taught both dressmaking and a course in furs to adults, and in the past instructed children in sewing. Her course focuses on hand sewing, using a pattern, fitting, and the use of a sewing machine.

The crafts program will once again feature four different classes, each taught by Tobey Hirsch, a graduate of Carnegie Mellon University and a Y instructor for four years.

For boys and girls eight years old and up there is a painting class which teaches students about color theory as they work in oil, tempera, and water colors.

The crafts workshop, also for those eight and older, is a general arts and crafts program which focuses on a different project each week. Such activities as puppet-making, tie dyeing, hand crafts and rubbings will be offered.

The highly successful "arts 'n tots" class for children three to five years old is once again scheduled. A class that utilizes such materials as paper, boxes, paint, crayons and paste, "arts 'n tots" students create collages, rubbings, paintings, sketches and many other things.

Three pottery classes are scheduled. They will teach children the basic methods of hand building, slab, coil, pinch, and glazing techniques. Two classes will be held for boys and girls eight and over, and one class is planned for those five to seven years old.

Joseph Carota offers a magic class to children eight and older for the second year. Students learn magic tricks, magic techniques, and the history of magic in his course. Activities using silks, ropes coins and paper, to cards and balls, will be demonstrated and taught.

Bob Gahtan offers folk guitar courses to beginning and intermediate students nine and over. Gahtah takes the beginner from chords through strums and melodies toward developing a large repertoire of songs.

Both judo and karate are offered those interested in fitness and self defense. The karate class stresses the sporting aspects of the discipline and its aid in physical fitness. Judo, for boys, focuses on learning to fall, and major judo throws and holds.

Swimming lessons are scheduled for boys and girls three to 18. Six different classes are offered children three to five — tiny tots — while four classes are available for boys and girls six through seven, or tadpoles. The registration date for children of Y members is March 25, while the date for children of non-members is March 27.

For boys and girls eight to 18 there are classes scheduled for every swimming ability, including lifesaving for those 12 and over. Registration for lessons begins March 26, while lifesaving registration is now being taken.

Other activities being offered to youth this spring include softball, genral sports, gymnastics for girls, floor hockey, tiny tot gym classes, ballet, and creative dance. For information or a brochure, people may call the Newton Y at 244-6050.

Groundbreaking

Construction of a $350,000 fine arts wing at Pine Manor Jr. College got underway recently with groundbreaking ceremonies. The wing will adjoin the Coach House, which currently houses the bir library and studio art facilities. The new wing, intended for expanded activities in photography, design, printmaking, drawing and painting, is scheduled for completion in September.

Open burning discussed

Chief Frederick A. Perkins, Jr., of the Newton Fire Department wishes to inform the public of the recent change in the "Open Burning Law".

This statute authorizes open burning of products of open space land husbandry and management including certain specified materials from March 15, 1974 to April 15, 1974, and March 15, 1975 to April 15, 1975 in the Metropolitan Boston Air Pollution Control District.

Material specified in the statute includes tree branches, brush, cane; driftwood, and forestry debris.

The department has interpreted that the intent of this legislation is to allow for open burning associated with the following activities: domestic tree trimming and pruning; domestic garden preparation; commercial nursery tree trimming and pruning; government nursery and forest tree trimming and pruning; maintenance of existing access ways; removal of driftwood from beach and shore areas.

The statute specifically prohibits open burning of grass, hay, and leaves. The Fire Department has interpreted that open burning associated with the following activities would not be consistent with the intent of the legislation: residential, industrial, commercial, and governmental land clearing for site or road development; reduction of materials other than natural wood; reduction of whole trees and stumps; reduction of construction or demolition materials; operation of a private or municipal refuse disposal area or any other area subject to the provisions of Section 150A of Chapter 111 of the General Laws.

Any open burning conducted under the provisions of this statute must be performed in accordance with the following requirements: Without causing a nuisance; with smoke minimizing starters; between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.; on land proximate to the place of generation of such material, or at another place specifically designated on the permit; in accordanc.e with a written permit issued under the provisions of Section 13 of Chapter 48 of the General Laws.

Before doing any outside burning, a permit must be obtained from the Fire Department. Permits are available Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Newton Fire Department Headquarters, 1164 Centre street, Newton Centre.

Courses offered at Davis School

The Davis Community School, now entering its second year, is currently offering courses in Italian, cooking, ceramics, photography, and dancing, and a family gym program.

On Tuesdays, Italian is taught to Davis school students by a volunteer mother. On Wednesday afternoons, dancing is offered to first and second grade children, and budget gourmet cooking is taught in a course which includes mothers and daughters.

Wednesday evenings, the Recreation Department and the community school co-sponsor a family gym night, and a ceramics course for adults is given in the art room.

On Thursday afternoons, a photography course is given to a group of students.

The program at Davis is modest because of space limitations in the school. With the completion of the new addition, scheduled for early 1975, it is expected the program will expand to meet the needs of the community.

Taxpayers ask IRS

Editor's Note: The following questions and answers on federal income taxes have been prepared by the Internal Revenue Service.

Q. Besides my Social Security income of $2100 and $550 in earnings from lawn mowing, my wife and I had only our savings accounts to live on. Must we file a federal tax return?

A. Yes, you must file even though your taxable income is less than the lowest amount normally subject to income tax. Anyone earning $400 or more from self-employment must file both Form 1040 and Schedule SE. If you had expenses against that lawn-mowing income (gas for a power mower, etc.), you may also want to file a Schedule C.

Q. I've decided to start my own business preparing tax returns. I won't have any employees but intend to do all the work myself. Can I still pay into Social Security?

A. Yes, as a self-employed person if your gross income is $400 or more annually you must pay into Social Security by filing a Schedule SE and paying self-employment tax on the first $10,800.

Q. When I can make the time I type research papers for other students at $.40 a page. Does this have to be shown on my income tax return? Must I pay self-employment tax too?

A. Yes, this income must be included with all other income on your tax return. If you've earned $400 or more you will have to pay self-employment tax on it too.

Q. I'll be retiring this year and will start receiving a pension of $300 per month from my employer. Over the years I've given him $8,000 toward my pension. Will I have to pay tax on it?

A. You won't have to pay tax on the first $8,000 you receive since you've already paid the tax on that and you will be receiving back the entire contribution you made toward the pension within a three-year period.

Q. My payments from my annuity will be $1,000 each year. The annuity cost me $10,000 over the years. Will I have to pay any tax on this?

A. In order to determine how much of this is taxable, we need to know both your age and sex. Then we can refer to an actuarial table to determine your life expectancy. Suppose your table states that you can expect to live fifteen more years. Then your expected return on this annuity would be $15,000. Since you've already paid the tax on $10,000, or two-thirds of the proceeds, only, one-third of each year's payments will be taxed, or $333.34.

Q. Where do we deduct tuition for our son's college education?

A. Tuition is normally not deductible. It is a personal expense.

Q. The summer courses I took last year were in Spanish literature, an area I cover in the high school course I teach. No one said I had to take the courses, but I think they were important to my work. Can I take a deduction for this tuition?

A. You may deduct educational expenses for courses which maintain or improve your skills used in your employment. You may never deduct expenses for education which qualifies you for a new trade or business, even if it is applicable to your present employment.

Q. I am attending law school, and certain courses I am undertaking are directly relative to my occupation as a real estate broker. May I deduct the cost of these courses?

A. No since the law school courses qualify you for a new trade or business they are not deductible as education expenses on your tax return.

Q. My father worked right up until the day of his death. Now his employer is paying me a pension based on his years of service to the company. I understand that I don't have to pay tax on the part of the pension which comes from what my father paid in, but what about the rest?

A. As long as you are the beneficiary of an employee who died while still employed, you may qualify for an additional $5,000 death benefit exclusion. This $5,000 should be added to the amount contributed by the decedent to the plan.

Q. Why do state and federal employees have to pay tax on their pensions while other people don't pay any tax on Social Security?

A. In order to balance the tax impacts of these different types of retirement income, the Retirement Income Credit was established. You may use either the Standard Deduction or itemized deductions to be eligible to use it. To qualify for the retirement income credit: 1) you must be a U.S. citizen or resident, 2) you must have $600 of earned income in each of any 10 calendar years before the current year, and 3) you must have had retirement income during the tax year.

Q. What does the Internal Revenue Service consider "retirement income?"

A. For people under 65, retirement income includes only the taxable portion of a pension or annuity received from a public retirement system. For those 65 or older retirement income includes taxable income from pensions, annuities, interest, dividends, and ordinary rents (those with no personal services provided).

Q. What people are likely to qualify for retirement income credits?

A. Retired people who have Social Security income of less than $1,524 and earned income of less than $2,424 if under 62, or earned income of less than $2,974 if between 62 and 72 or any amount of earned income if 72 or older, may qualify for a retirement income credit.

Q. How do I figure out how much retirement income credit I'm entitled to?

A. You should follow the steps of Schedule R using the correct amounts of your individual retirement and earned income. If you have problems call or visit your IRS office.

Q. How should married people compute their retirement income credit? Do they have to file a joint return?

A. No, they don't have to file a joint return; they may file as married filing separately if it is to their advantage. If they file separately, they must use the regular individual method, but if they file jointly they have an option to either use the individual method or a special joint method which is shown on Schedule R.

Q. While working as a salesman on the road, I incurred some expenses related to my job—entertainment, gifts for customers; etc. Can I deduct?

A. Unreimbursed expenses of an outside salesman may be deducted on line 41 of Form 1040, regardless of whether the taxpayer decides to itemize his deductions or take the standard deduction.

Q. I have two jobs, one from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and the other from 5:15 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. Do I get any tax break because of the additional driving I do?

A. Yes, you may deduct the cost of getting from one job to the other on line 41, Form 1040 and Form 2106. You may not deduct any more than the amount of direct travel, extra mileage picked up stopping for dinner at home is not deductible.

Q. I know that the government allows you to deduct $.12 a mile for business mileage. My employer has just stepped up our reimbursement to 13.5 cents a mile. Do I have to report the extra cent and a half per mile as income?

A. No, as long as your allowance does not exceed $.15 a mile you are considered to have rendered an accurate accounting to your employer and this is non-taxable reimbursement.

Q. Can I claim a casualty loss on the amount I paid for repairs on a car I damaged while borrowing it?

A. No, you may only claim a loss on your own property.

Q. Sometimes I don't know if an organization I've given money to qualifies as a charitable organization. How can I find out?

A. If you're unsure, call your IRS office for advice. They'll check an official listing for you.

Be wary of unlicensed security service firms

Commissioner of Public Safety John F. Kehoe, Jr. today alerted all Massachusetts police chiefs to be wary of individuals in their areas who contract with property owners for security services without being licensed. He said he has received numerous complaints of individuals contracting with more than one landlord to provide security services in resort areas where there are a large number of cottages and uninhabited homes.

Commissioner Kehoe stated that any person owning homes or cottages is certainly free to engage a person or persons to keep watch over his property, whether he owns one home or several in an area. The problem arises he said, when these individuals contract with more than one landlord and provide a security check of private property.

Kehoe added that this type of an activity would be in direct violation of the statute, specifically, Section 23 of Chapter 147. Those individuals who undertake to contract with these private property owners, who are not licensed under the statute, are liable to be prosecuted under the same statute, which states, "Whoever violates any provision of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred nor more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

Commissioner Kehoe stated that only those agencies which are properly licensed and bonded can legally undertake to contract such a watch service.

Feline film festival Rescue League Mar. 23

A film festival for cat lovers and feline film buffs will be sponsored by the Animal Rescue League of Boston, Saturday, March 23, at the New England Life Hall in Boston.

Intercat '74, a two-hour program of entertaining and heartwarming films about cats, will be presented at a free performance for the general public, from 1:00 p.m. until 3 p.m., as part of the League's celebration of its 75th Anniversary.

The unusual film program is the creation of Pola Chapelle, a singer and cinematographer, who has presented Intercat film festivals in Paris (Intercat festival), Berlin (Katzenfilm Festival), Amsterdam (Moviekat) and most recently in New York and London. James S. Mellen is director of the Boston production.

The film program includes an original Felix the Cat cartoon, an animated version of the Owl and the Pussycat, and scores of films with live cat performers whose antics will delight adults and children alike. Among them is Miss Chapelle's own cat, George, who fishes in a bowl to the original musical accompaniment of a purring pianist called Mammacat.

Tickets for the event can be obtained by writing to the Animal Rescue League of Boston, P.O. Box 265, Boston, Mass. 02117. A paid public performance of the film festival will also be held Saturday evening, March 23, at 8:00 p.m., with tickets available at the box office.

Big fight one week away

CARACAS (UPI) — With their heavyweight championship bout just a week away, champion George Foreman and challenger Ken Norton resumed training today after taking Monday off to go sightseeing.

Before going out to the Poliedro stadium for training drills, the fighters were to undergo a physical examination at the National Sports Institute, a pre condition to their being granted licenses to fight in Venezuela.

The 25-year-old champion resumed training after a two-day break from drills, while Norton, who spent much of Monday with his publicists, was coming back after a 24-hour layoff.

"George is real loose," said Foreman spokesman Bill Caplan. "The day off did him a world of good."

Bills on judicial qualifications, removal backed by Mofenson

Rep. David Mofenson has recently spoken in favor of a number of proposals for the League of Women Voters, Massachusetts Bar Association, and the Supreme Judicial Court concerning judicial qualifications and Removal, which spent so much of its time last year in dealing with the Judge Troy removal proceedings.

The bills, spanning both ends of the judicial spectrum, take two general approaches, one dealing with the questions of selection and removal within an existing constitutional framework, the others with the problems of selection and removal by enlarging, sharing, or reducing powers through constitutional amendment.

One proposal for selecting judges establishes a mechanism for recommending nominees to the governor for his consideration; a second approach establishes by constitutional amendment a requirement that the governor choose one of the names set before him by a nominating commission.

The approach in removing and disciplining judges would follow much the same line. Commissions would be selected to review the performance of judges and investigate complaints and make recommendations to the Supreme Judicial Court, providing an entry mechanism whereby a citizen can make a complaint and expect that it be acted upon quickly and effectively.

In the legislation the court is given clear authority to censure and suspend judges and if desired, recommend that the legislature remove.

The constitutional commission approach does virtually the same thing with one difference — the Supreme Judicial Court is given the power to remove.

Nothing in any bill takes away existing powers from the legislature; at most existing powers are shared by a sister body.

Important considerations lie in the composition of the various commissions. The mix of laymen, lawyers, and judges is a difficult one and ought to be considered carefully by this committee, Mofenson said, as well as the question of prerogatives and separation of powers.

State reimbursement for Newton Junior College urged by Backman

Legislation to provide for state reimbursement to the City of Newton for one-half the operating cost of Newton Junior College, filed by Sen. Jack H. Backman (D-Brookline), was heard recently before the Committee on Education.

The bill also provides that the college shall become part of the state system of community colleges if so recommended by both the Newton Board of Aldermen and the Newton School Committee.

Sen. Backman stated: "Since 1946 Newton Junior College, the first public community college in the state, has provided an educational opportunity to students who might not otherwise have received a higher education.

"There is a need for this type of school, and even if it should be necessary to merge it with an existing institution, it would be my hope that Newton students would receive the same kind of admissions treatment that the city has provided. It would be unfortunate if the children of the city were to suffer because of state policy."

Joining Backman in support of the bill was Mayor Theodore Mann, who announced through Newton Junior College President Charles W. Dudley that he fully supported the Backman measure.

Dudley, in his statement to the Education Committee said, "The ultimate objective and the only viable long-term solution is the absorption of Newton Junior College into the state system of community colleges under the aegis of the Massachusetts Board of Regional Community Colleges, a prospect which appears to be several years away."

"In the meantime," Dudley said, "in order to retain Newton Junior College intact as an ongoing institution, what is urgently needed at the moment is the availability of meaningful state reimbursement based on a formula which provides for substantial contribution to operating costs. This proposal would achieve this."

Also appearing was Mrs. Eleanor Rosenblum, School Committee chairman who, speaking on behalf of the school Committee, urged the Committee on Education to give the Backman bill a favorable report.

Also appearing were Dr. Philip J. McNiff, chairman of the Newton Junior College Board of Directors, and Michael Dathe, student representative.

Newton Reps. Lois Pines, Peter F. Harrington, and Paul Guzzi also notified the Committee on Education of their support of Sen. Backman's legislation.

Recipients of veterans' benefits are eligible for SSI assistance

Recipients of veterans' benefits from the Newton Department of Veterans' Services are eligible to receive benefits under the new Social Security SSI program.

Newton Veterans' Agent Carleton P. Merrill had applications for the SSI program submitted by all of the department's over age 65 recipients as well as by disabled recipients of veterans' services benefits under age 65.

Merrill has pointed out that as a result of action by the Massachusetts Veterans' Service Agents Association, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare has ruled that veterans' benefits in Massachusetts were not considered a needs payment and are not income when computing the supplemental security income benefit amount.

This decision meant that those receiving veterans' benefits could be eligible for SSI and still continue to receive veterans's benefits up to the maximum benefits allowed under Chapter 115 of the General Laws which govern veterans' services payments.

Merrill further advised that since Title XIX (Medicaid) also provides coverage for those in receipt of SSI, that medical services presently rendered under the veterans' services program would be transferred to Medicaid once the recipient is in receipt of a Medicaid identification card.

The fiscal effects of the SSI program are most advantageous for recipients of veterans' services and for the City of Newton, as the majority of expenses will be assumed by the federal and state governments. Once fully implemented less money will have to be appropriated by local communities for veterans' benefits for those over age 65 and for disabled under age 65.

Merrill has advised that 13 recipients of veterans benefits have received SSI payments and that by using a 12 month projection an estimated savings of $13,740.24 in cash payments and an estimated $3,348.00 in medical payments will result to his department.

As of March 1, an additional 33 recipients of veterans' benefits were still waiting to receive notice from Social Security as to their entitlement under the SSI program.

Despite the savings to the City of Newton for the over age 65 payments of veterans' benefits, Merrill pointed out that his department would still fill an important need for the veteran population of Newton due to increased unemployment and increased medical costs for the under age 65 veteran or veterans' dependents. It will also provide information and services in respect to entitlements under the Veterans Administration.

Iannella in race for Lt. Gov. attacks Sargent administration

Boston City Councill Christopher Iannella announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Councillor Iannella, a graduate of Boston College and Harvard Law School, charged the Sargent administration with ". . . the inability to solve the major problems facing Massachusetts, unemployment, inflation, taxes and crime."

Iannella stressed his governmental experience as important to the Democratic ticket. Iannella noted, "Our present governor and lieutenant governor lack both minicipal and legislative experience — they don't understand the problems of our cities and towns — they don't understand the competing interests and concerns of our citizens."

Iannella said that the Sargent administration "has only one answer for our problems — spned more money.

"Don't they realize," Iannella continued, "that government spending is a prime cause of inflation, high taxes a prime cause of economic decline? Massachusetts needs a fast-moving program to create more jobs in business. Instead, the cost of government is driving business out of the state."

Iannella, presently chairman of the City Council's Executive Committee and former chairman of the powerful Appropriations and Finance Committee declared, "For the Sargent administration's politics, patronage, and pressagentry — I would substitute insight, initiative and independence.

Christopher Iannella makes his home in Jamaica Plain with his wife and their three unmarried children.

His statement indicated that he would seek to meet with other dandidates for lieutenant governor to ask them to agree to a campaign spending limitation stricter than that set by law. "Money just shouldn't buy an election," he said. "Public records will show my budget has always been modest. Most of my contributions are ten and fifteen dollars each — all from citizens who think as I do," the councillor concluded.

Iannella has pledged to take his campaign to every part of the state and to make it "an open contest of issues — free from bitterness and rancor which could endanger what I see as a near certain Democratic victory in November," he said.

Lawn King dealership in Greater Boston

William Bornheimer has recently established a Lawn King dealership in the greater Boston area.

Lawn King is a nationally franchised automated lawn care service. Within the last three years it has become the fastest growing service of its kind in the country, with the greatest number of dealers.

Lawn King provides a full program of care for residential, commercial, and industrial lawn needs. The service includes all products and processes necessary for growing a good lawn.

These include power aeration, rolling, seeding and fertilization, plus herbicide and insecticide treatments. Customers are also instructed in the proper cutting and watering techniques and provided with answers to any other questions regarding the maintenance of their property.

Bornheimer is a veteran in the lawn care field. He attended Rutgers University majoring in agriculture. For three years he managed a franchise in New Jersey, moving from there to St. Louis, Mo. where he opened and successfully operated a franchise for six years. He sold his operation there in the summer of 1973.

After carefully researching areas in Chicago, Baltimore and Detroit, he chose Boston to open his new franchise.

Bornheimer sees a real need for an efficient lawn care service here and is looking forward to sharing his knowledge and expertise in the field.

You can help save energy in the kitchen

NEW YORK (UPI) — More thoughts on licking the energy and economy crises in the kitchen:

From Valerie Clark, home economist for Wisconsin Electric Power Co.:

Avoid opening the oven door unnecessarily when baking or roasting. You can lose as much as 20 per cent of the heat each time you peek.

In range-top cooking, fit the pan to the burner. A small pan on a large burner wastes fuel.

Straight-sided saucepans and skillets are energy-savers.

On an electric range-top, flat bottomed pans are more efficient than ridged ones because they contact the entire heating surface.

Use Little Water

Water boils at 212 degrees Fahrenheit at sea level. Once it starts to boil, use the lowest possible heat to retain that temperature. Higher heat won't make the water any hotter.

Use as little water as possible in cooking vegetables. You'll conserve more nutrients and need less fuel to heat the pan.

Don't fill your refrigerator so full that air can't circulate properly. A moderately filled one works more efficiently, with lower fuel costs.

Organize the refrigerator's contents so you won't have to keep the door open for long periods searching for various items. And open it as infrequently as possible, to avoid overworking the compressor, and using excess energy.

Check the refrigerator door gasket. If it's loose or leaking cold air, replace it at once.

Plan Meals Ahead

Miss Clark also recommends defrosting whenever the frost becomes a quarter inch thick. Her tips appeared in Our World, a publication for Tupperware dealers, managers and distributors in the United States.

The magazine had other useful ideas for saving money as well as fuel:

Plan meals a week at a time and shop once a week, for everything except necessary extras such as bread and milk.

Cut up chickens yourself — you can save as much as five cents a pound.

Make fortified milk by adding dry milk to one liquefied kind and make your own cocoa mix with cocoa, dry milk and sugar.

Think big when you shop for canned goods. If you can't use them in case lots yourself, make a deal with friends and relatives to share canned goods bought by the case at discounts.

Some other ideas the magazine didn't mention include:

Organize Car Pool

Buy flour, sugar, rice and other staples in large bags. Rice and sugar keep indefinitely in airtight containers. One friend, who lives in rural Maine, stores flour in her freezer for months at a time.

If your car is large enough, organize a pool with neighbors for weekly grocery shopping trips.

Store extra loaves of bread and cartons of milk in your freezer to save extra trips to market.

Good cooking smells good, so why use your kitchen exhaust fan all the time? It can remove heat from the whole house or apartment.

Check pan lids to make sure they fit tightly. Food cooks faster in a tightly covered pan.

Turn a burner on after a pan is on it, and before you remove the pan.

If your teakettle doesn't whistle, watch for steam coming out the spout steadily and turn off the heat at once.

Before you go on vacation, empty the refrigerator of perishables and unplug it. Unplug electric clocks and clock-radios, too.

AND NOTE, ENERGY SAVERS! Check the EER (Energy Efficiency Ratio). It's the measure of the ratio of output or cooling power (measured in BTU's/hour) and the amount of energy (measured in watts) required to produce that cooling power. Naturally, the less electrical power it takes to produce the same BTU's, the higher the efficiency and the lower your operating cost!

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I would like to offer a recipe as well as ask for one. The one I am offering is Chicken Superbo and the one I am asking for is I would very much appreciate either from you or the readers, a recipe for a good Chef's Salad — the kind you order in a restaurant. We haven't been eating out very much lately and while I am not the greatest of cooks, it seems to me I ought to be able to make a good Chef's Salad. Thank you.

Mrs. D.E.G., Needham

Anwer: Thank you for your excellent (and easy) Chicken Superbo. As for the Chef's Salad, every chef has his own idea of the kind of ingredients he prefers in his heaped high salad bowl. From a very famous chef, here is:

CHEF'S SALAD

2 heads of head lettuce, washed and chilled
Frecnch dressing, below
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
1 cucumber, sliced
½ pound Swiss cheese
½ pound Cheddar cheese
1 cooked chicken breast
½ pound bologna or salami, ham or corned beef cut in strips
4 hard cooked eggs (for garnish)
3 or 4 medium-sized tomatoes
Radishes

Line a large salad bowl with large leaves of lettuce. Tear remaining lettuce into bite-sized pieces, toss with French dressing and chopped parsley. Fill salad bowl with tossed greens and cucumber and arrange strips of thinly sliced cheeses, the chicken meat and bologna or ham in neat bundles on top. Garnish with quartered hard-cooked eggs, quartered tomatoes and radishes. (Croutons are very nice with this salad.)

Add more French dressing when you serve. Also serve additional strips of cheese, ham, chicken along with the greens. Serves 6.

FRENCH DRESSING

¼ cup vinegar
¾ salad oil or olive oil
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 cloves garlic, mashed

Combine all ingedients in a bottle. Shake well before using. (It's a good idea to prepare salad dressing the day before to allow ingredients to mellow.)

CHICKEN SUPERBO

1 bottle (8 oz.) Italian Dressing
6 chicken breasts
1 bottle (12 oz.) apricot preserves

Marinate chicken breasts in Italian dressing for 3-4 hours or overnight, covering pan with foil and placing in refrigerator. Approximately 2 hours before serving time, drain dressing from chicken, reserving one cup. Mix with bottle of preserves and spread over chicken. Bake in a 350 degree oven, skin side up and uncovered for about 1¼ hours or until nicely browned. (Other parts of chicken may also be used.)

Question: Even though meat prices have been cut a bit, we don't have meat too often and when I do buy it it's usually something inexpensive like a chuck steak . . . but no matter how I prepare it, the meat is not tender. Someone mentioned marinating it and doing it in the German manner and I wonder if you have such a recipe. We'd all appreciate it.

Mrs. W., Dedham

Answer: Any meat that is marinated overnight is bound to be tender and flavorful. Serve on a bed of hot fluffy rice or boiled medium wide noodles.

SAUERBRATEN STEAK

1 chuck steak or beef blade steak 2-½ to 3 pounds)
2½ cups water
1 cup wine vinegar
1 tablespoon brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
6 whole cloves
6 peppercorns
2 bay leaves
2 medium sized onions, thinly sliced
one-third cup salad oil
2 tablespoons cooking fat
¾ cup water
½ cup raisins
1 tablespoon brown sugar
two-thirds cup crumbled gingersnaps

Combine 2½ cups water, vinegar, 1 tablespoon brown sugar, salt, cloves, peppercorns and bay leaves in saucepan and bring to boil. Pour over sliced onions and let cool. Stir in oil. Pour marinade over steak and allow to stand in refrigerator 8 to 10 hours or overnight, turning at least once. Remove steak from marinade to absorbent paper and pat dry. Brown in cooking fat. Pour off drippings. Strain marinade and add 1 cup to steak, reserving remaining marinade. Cover tightly and cook slowly for 2 hours or until steak is tender. Remove steak to a hot platter and pour off liquid. Add 1½ cups reserved marinade, ¾ cups water, raisins and 1 tablespoon brown sugar to frying pan. Bring to boil. Add crumbled gingersnaps and stir to thicken. Serve gravy with steak over hot rice or noodles. Serves 4-6.

Question: I'm curious. Some friends of mine were talking with much gusto about a Monte Cristo Sandwich and I pretended I knew what they were talking about, but to be perfectly honest, I'd never heard of one, much less eaten one. Can you tell me what it is and if possible, how to prepare it? Thank you.—Mr. and Mrs. E.T., Westwood

Answer: A Monte Cristo sandwich is a meal in itself...rich and filling and best when served piping hot. It's easier when you assemble sandwiches and make the egg mixture in advance; dip and saute sandwiches just before serving.

MONTE CRISTO SANDWICH

18 slices bread
Butter or margarine
6 thin slices turkey or chicken
6 slices cooked ham
6 thin slices Swiss Cheese
3 eggs
6 tablespoons milk
Dash salt
Pineapple slices
Currant jelly or raspberry jam

For each sandwich, butter 1 slice bread and cover with a slice of turkey. Top with a slice of ham. Cover with second slice of buttered bread. Butter top of bread and cover with Swiss cheese. Close sandwich with third slice of buttered bread, buttered side down. Trim crusts. Cut sandwiches in halves and fasten with wooden picks. Beat eggs with milk and salt. Dip sandwiches in mixture and saute in butter or a mixture of butter and oil and saute until brown on both sides...or deep fry in 375 deg. Remove picks, and serve with pineapple slices and currant jelly. Serves 6.

Across the Kitchen Counter

By RUTH LENSON

Don't know what started it–perhaps the announcement that bread may go up to $1. per loaf, letters have been coming in requesting step-by-step lessons on bread-baking. Good!

So, come on everybody—Mom, Dad, children, exercise enthusiasts (bread-baking is good exercise). Kneading dough takes some muscle but most of all it's good therapy–it relaxes body and mind and is an all round joyous happening.

ABC'S OF BREAD-MAKING: The tools necessary for making bread are quite simple, and chances are you'll find everything in your kitchen. Needed are: Measuring cups (one for liquid, one for flour); measuring spoons; mixer (rotary beater or electric mixer for fine grained loaves although the entire process can be done by hand; 2 loaf pans; a saucepan for heating liquids; a large mixing bowl; a large wooden spoon is nice for mixing flour but is not necessary; wire cooling racks.

DO NOT PRESIFT OR SIFT ALL PURPOSE FLOUR. WHEN USING DRY ACTIVE YEAST, DO NOT DISSOLVE IN LIQUIDS. TO MEASURE FLOUR, DIP CUP INTO FLOUR AND LEVEL OFF-DO NOT TAP OR SHAKE STEPS IN MAKING BREAD: Ingredients are combined in one mixing period. 1. Stir together about one-third of the flour and all of yeast. 2. Heat liquids, fat, sugar, salt over low heat only until warm (105-115 deg.) stirring. 3. Add liquid ingredients to flour-yeast mixture and beat until smooth–2 min. medium speed of electric mixer or 300 strokes by hand; blend in eggs if called for. 4. Add 1 cup more flour and beat 1 minute on med. speed or 150 strokes by hand. When thoroughly blended, add more flour by hand--dough should be stiff, not sticky. 5. Kneading: Place dough on a lightly floured surface (bread board, table top or counter). Press ball of dough away with heels of hands, fold it over on itself and push dough away–again and again, firmly; turn dough one-quarter around and repeat process. KNEAD UNTIL THE DOUGH FEELS SMOOTH AND SATINY (like a baby's bottom) this usually takes 8-10 minutes. 6. Shape dough into smooth ball and let rise in warm place 75-90 degrees. 7. Shape dough into loaf. 8. Let rise in warm place. 9. Baking: A 1 pound loaf usually bakes in 30 minutes in a 400 degree oven.

BATTER BREADS–a flour-yeast-liquid mixture too soft to be kneaded. These are easy to mix and rise quickly. Batters have been beaten long enough when they tend to leave the sides of the bowl and follow the spoon or mixer beaters–a well-beaten batter looks shiny and smooth.

WHITE BATTER BREAD
(DOES NOT REQUIRE KNEADING)

4 to 4½ cups unsifted flour
3 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
2 pkgs. active dry yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
2 tablespoons margarine

In a large bowl thoroughly mix 1½ cups flour, sugar, salt and undissolved yeast. Combine milk, water and margarine in saucepan and heat over low heat until liquids are warm–margarine does not need to melt. Gradually add to dry ingredients and beat for 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally. Add 1 cup flour or enough to make a thick batter and beat at high speed 2 minutes, scraping bowl occasionally. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff batter. Beat until well blended. Cover and let rise in warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 40 minutes. Stir batter down. Beat vigorously about ½ minute and turn into a greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pan. Bake in 375 degree oven 40-50 minutes or until done. Remove from pan and cool on wire rack. Yield: 1 large loaf.

ENRICHED WHITE BREAD

5½ to 6½ cups flour
1 pkg. dry yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons oil
1 tablespoon salt
Oil

Stir together 2 cups flour and yeast. Heat milk, water, sugar, 2 tablespoons oil and salt over low heat only til warm stirring. Spring's key is balance

If there's one thought shared by all shoppers this spring, it's that decisions in clothes buying be well thought out.

No longer can women afford the nagging unsureness of, "Well, I don't like it, but I'll get used to wearing it," knowing all the time that the article of clothing would never receive the amount of wear warranted by the price tag.

The well-bred jacket dress is sure fire for spring. For some time now, women have turned away from this style, however, it makes good sense to have a matching jacket to top a pretty dress when the day gets chilly or you enter an air-conditioned room.

Call it the dress with a plus, when you take a beautifully shaped and fitting dress such as Qiana red and white surah with easy-pleated skirt and long bodice, topped with a red linen jacket. Or black and white pin-dotted silt, the tank-top dress bound in white and cinched at the waist in black patent. Its little "waiter's" jacket accented with white piping.

What comes naturally for spring are three piece suits accented with mandarin and shirt neck overblouses that are matched with easy pleated skirts. The chemise becomes an important fashion look, subtly shaped and incorporating the new zippered necklines and cuffs, providing a casual look if desired.

The shirtdress in delicately patterned crepe is the perfect dress, an easy traveler assuming the characteristics of daytime through evening wear. Perky, bright polka dot and houndstooth patterned three piece cottons are set off by fly-away jackets while shantung halter-neck dresses with flattering flared skirts make dramatic statements.

The separates theme sings out loud and clear. Designer Stephen Burrows believes that the most casual and successful way to look for daytime is to combine separates in different fabrics and textures.

Beginning with poplin as a base cloth, he adds moss bank, rainproof chintz, cotton batiste stripes, printed rayon challis and wool jersey to his sportswear concept. Most of his silhouettes are small at the shoulder, widening into flared backs, blousons and watermelon sleeves. As for lengths, skirts reach the middle of the knee or scan 14 inches from the floor. Pants break at the top of the shoe and have a gentle flare from the knee.

Susan Sheinman, designing for Papillon does not quibble — her remarks are very matter-of-fact. "Clothes today must be butterfly-light, but not for butterfly brains. I don't see long skirts for city wear. They look draggy, non-young." With all the 60's nostalgia, Susan is very much the realist declaring that she enjoys looking back in quick glances and not with long, soppy sighs. For her the only point in time for fashion is now — her aim is to look alive, healthy and fresh and borrow only a few amusing echoes of the past.

The dress is most important in her collection — the proportioned dress that is both comfortable and attractive. Most dresses have ignored waistlines except when it's elasticized for evening. Her sleeves are the new loose roll-ups without a cuff.

One designer who believes that the bigskirt should be worn as an alternate of pants is Adri. For example: Take your favorite sweater set. You can wear it with pants or with an easy flaring doubleknit skirt but make sure it swings just below the calf (and not unflatteringly at the widest part) or a bit longer, depending on your leg and height.

"Or," says Adri, take a backwrap denim jersey top of the T-shirt family and buy pants to match it, but also try the sporty, big-pocketed bigskirt. No need to ignore the classic favorite, jersey shirt and doubleknit pants, just try another look — a flaring, gently shirred jersey skirt for a dynamite look that can go anywhere the pants go."

Balance is the key to a workable contemporary wardrobe, according to Adri, and that means: easy jersey dresses (that end at the knee), pants forever and ever, long sexy Lycra dresses (newest have deep round necklines and push-up sleeves, a variety of little tops and a multitude of sweaters.

Local people named to advisory board

Fr. Robert Golledge, Dr. Richard Hale, and Mrs. Edmund Ritter of Newton have been named to the Boston Bicentennial Advisory Board, according to an announcement by Katherine D Kane, Boston 200 director.

The Boston 200 Bicentennial Advisory Board is made up of over 80 members representing organizations participating in the city's 1975-76 celebration, chairmen of the 18 task forces helping to form new programs and neighborhood bicentennial committee chairmen and community representatives from the 23 Boston neighborhoods planning local bicentennial activities.

The Advisory Board will represent many interests—geographic and thematic—involved in Boston 200.

"I am very pleased to be working with the Advisory Board and know their input will make Boston 200 a strong program," Mrs. Kane said. "The Boston 200 Corporation Board of Directors was announced last week and will complement the Advisory Board," she added.

Boston 200 will focus on the people, heritage, culture, commerce and environment as they relate to 200 years of evolution of "the city in America," Boston's bicentennial theme. The program begins in April 1975 and continues through 1976.

The Boston 200 office is located at Boston City Hall.

"Gatsby" elegance revives 1920's

Teen-agers in the 1930s used to laugh and laugh at the clothes of the decade before. Those knee-baring headlines! Those baggy dresses! Those cloche hats! Those forehead bands! Those frizzy hair bobs!

The decade of the 1920s ushered in the true 20th century, and its fashions were, indeed, a shock. They began with ankle-length hemlines which gradually rose to the knee about 1926.

Since women were rebelling all over the place, they went into loose clothes which denied female curves, wearing bandeaux beneath to flatten the breasts and get the desired "boyish" figure.

The fashions of the later 1920s might have gone on developing, but the Depression destroyed them. Not until the 1950s, when the shift restored the loose silhouette, and the 1960s, when the mini skirt revived the above-knee length, did the 1920s register a comeback.

That comeback was brief, however, as the mini era was confined to cheap "youth" fashions. The movies which have lately glorified the 1930s brought back the fashions of the decade when the 1920s seemed merely another silly "youth" period of flappers drinking bathtub gin.

Now all that may change. Theoni Aldredge has costumed Paramount's new version of F. Scott Fitzgerald's "The Great Gatsby" to illustrate the way fashion really was in the 1920s. The results are enough to send every current designer scampering to the drawing board to do some updated versions.

"The Great Gatsby" takes place dead center in the 1920s, just before the flapper era really hit. Fashions mingled a number of influences — the Orientalism of lounging pajamas, used strictly at home, but considered daring, the beading and embroideries of Art Deco, considered very modern then, the misty glamour of georgette and chiffon, left over from the days of World War I.

If it was all a bit confused, it was often pretty or downright glamorous.

It was that glamour which Fitzgerald captured in "Gatsby." The first we see of Daisy Buchanan and her friend, Jordan Baker, they are described in terms of fashion: "They were both in white, and their dresses were rippling and fluttering as if they had just been blown back in after a short flight around the house."

As for Jay Gatsby himself, in his "white flannel suit, silver shirt and gold colored tie," his attempt to impress Daisy includes a memorable moment when he eagerly demonstrates the luxuriousness of his wardrobe, especially the rainbow-hued piles of shirts.

Theoni Aldredge has captured this moment in the 1920s, the divide of 1925, when the post-war world was still glamorous. Mia Farrow, as Daisy Buchanan, wears floating yellow chiffon, finely pleated in the Fortuny manner, permanent pleating then available only to the rich.

Lois Chiles, as Jordan Baker, stretches out on a sofa, her lounging pajamas in crepe-backed satin, the tunic top sashed (fringe ends) and V-necked — same thing being worn now!

Then the scene switches to one of Gatsby's big, meaningless parties on the Long Island estate that he bought with what may be the proceeds of bootlegging.

Suddenly, the Jazz Age springs to life and the fashions change, too. Daisy appears in a beaded evening cap that conceals all her hair and ages her ten years.

A feathered, embroidered, glittered cape covers an equally glittery sleeveless shift, and she's part of the '20s of bootliquor, "wild" parties and "Flaming youth."

It's precisely this changeability, this mixture of romanticism and hard materialism which deceives Jay Gatsby, who remains a pure romanticist to the end.

Others may come to his parties in the then-new casualness of a "tux," but he remains commited to the white tie and tails of the pre-World War I era. For Gatsby, casual dress means a cap, instead of a hat, worn with a three-piece (vest) business suit, for a summer's day motoring.

Undoubtedly, Theoni Aldredge's costumes for "The Great Gatsby" will influence coming seasons, but the fierce conflicts which produced the 1920s fashions are gone with history. The new versions of '20s fashions are gone with history. The new versions of '20s looks will have to suit the feelings of 1974.

Lois Chiles as Jordan Baker, champion amateur athlete in the 1930's period of "The Great Gatsby."

Mia Farrow as Daisy Buchanan in the Paramont film with Robert Redford as Jay Gatsby.

Q. I have been told that the certain time I was born that my chart indicates there would be many afflictions during my lifetime. Is this true? I was born in Providence, Rhode Island on June 4, 1936 at 11:15 A.M. and it was a Thursday.

J.G.

A. While a horoscope does indicate certain possibilities it is not necessarily fatalistic. That is much depends upon what one does or does not do. We have some intelligence and we do have varying degrees of will power. Knowledge, properly applied, can free one from so-called fate. It is not knowing or knowing and not applying such knowledge properly that leaves us subject to conditions.

You were blessed with splendid mental possibilities but your imagination which may get out of hand and your persistent restlessness may be a part of the "affliction" referred to. Your symbolic search for that distant rainbow may keep you continuously on the move.

Instinctively you have an urge to travel and to gratify such if you are unable to travel physically, you travel mentally far and wide. You love and need attention and one way or another you are bound to get it.

If you have not already done so try to cultivate mental accuracy and refrain from speaking impulsively. Get your facts straight and avoid fantasy. Undoubtedly you can talk yourself into or out of most anything and others may find you difficult to really pin down to specifics.

Channel your fine mental energies into some set line of study which in turn will help steady your restless nature. Don't be in a hurry to speak your mind and bear in mind that you can catch more flies with honey than with vinegar. In other words, practice tact and diplomacy. Care is needed in your dealing and relationship with the opposite sex.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

A BOON TO GARDENERS: Home gardeners who have never used the so-called "Jiffy pellets" for starting plants, should try them this year. These are highly compressed pellets only about ¼" thick, but when you place them in a shallow pan, they swell in minutes into a cylinder about 2 inches high and in diameter. These are then all ready to sow seed in or set cuttings or transplants into. No pot is needed since the growing "soil" is enclosed in a plastic net that holds its cylindrical shape...When ready, the plant and pellet are set out in the garden, with no shock of transplanting or check in growth. The roots continue to grow right through the net.

And while you're at it, it's a good idea to buy some instant soil mixes if you want to sow your own seed. Don't scoop up some soil from the garden and use it for starting seeds. The "instant soils" which florists use for starting seed has no soil in them, but loaded with peatmoss, vermiculite, perlite plus some nutrients.

These materials are sterile and will practically reduce "damping-off diseases to zero. Not only are the instant mixes sterile, but they provide good aeration, drainage, more uniform growth as well. These are great for starting your seeds of tomatoes, peppers, eggplants and all your flowers.

RIEGER BEGONIA: One of the best house plants we have today is the Rieger begonia, something new. The Rieger elatior (elatior means "Exalted") has semidouble flowers, grows larger than regular begonias and blossoms the year round. It's a cross between the showy Christmas begonia (Gloire de Lorraine, or "Busy Lizzie") and a tuberous begonia. The result is a fibrous-rooted type with sterile flowers. That means the Rieger is not propagated by seeds because they produce sterile seed. Cuttings are taken from the tips and rooted in perlite, vermiculite or plain tap water.

Of course, they are patented so legally it's not right to propagate them for sale or otherwise. Like all begonias, the Rieger likes a loose soil mixture, such as 10 percent loam, 45 percent perlite or vermiculite and 45 percent peat. In summer they do not like direct, but the rest of the year they can get moderate sunlight. Rieger has a tendency to get leggy and must be pinched back. Don't let the soil dry out completely at any time, and avoid overwatering. Never wet the foliage as it encourages diseases such as mildew and botrytis.

Riegers may be big bloomers but they are not heavy feeders, so go easy on the plant food. Feed them a liquid plant food such as 23-19-17 once every 5 or 6 weeks. Plants with dark green heavy foliage do not produce as many flowers as plants slightly on the hungry side.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: "We have a Maternity plant, or Kalanchoe. Please tell us how you pronounce the scientific name. Is it Kalen-cho?"

No. Pronounce it Kal-an-koh-ee. Any scientific plant name that ends in "oe" is pronounced as two syllables for those letters. So Kalanchoe is "Kal-an-koh-ee." Same as for the medicine or healing plant, Aloe. You can call it "Al-oh-ee".

CBS has set air dates for three major golf tournaments. The Colonial Open in Fort Worth, Texas, will be covered May 18-19, the Kemper Open at Charlotte, N.C., June 1-2, the American Golf Classic at Akron, Ohio, June 22-23.

Liturgy on March 31

The Parent's Association of Newton Country Day School of the Sacred Heart has extended an invitation to parents, alumnae, friends and students of the school to participate in an unusual experimental liturgy at the school Chapel on Sunday, March 31 at 11 a.m.

Written by Rev. Richard Powers of St. Sebastian's Country Day School and Daniel Ferrone of Newton, and dramatized by students of St. Sebastian's, the liturgy is called "The Mass of God's People with Players." It combines the celebration of mass with liturgical drama, using theatre in the teaching parts of the Mass. Traditional mass prayers are combined with monologues by figures from the Old and New Testament. The congregation joins the costumed players throughout the service in song and prayer.

Coffee will be served after the liturgy with time for questions and discussion.

In addition to the general lecture, participants in the program may enroll in one of several courses offered over the six-week period.

These courses include conversational Hebrew and Yiddish, Judeo-Islamic History, and Bible and Hebrew Literature. In addition, there is a continuing workshop on Soviet Jewry, the March 26 meeting of which will be devoted to a consideration of demographic patterns of Jews in the Soviet Union.

Johnson sorry Sox are not unbeatable

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) —The way the Red Sox have been rolling through the Grapefruit League, Manager Darrell Johnson can afford to joke after a loss.

"I'm sorry to say we're not unbeatable," Johnson said Sunday after a 4-3 loss to the St. Louis Cardinals at St. Petersburgh.

Johnson could afford to smile because a second squad started another winning streak by beating the Philadelphia Phillies 10-7 some 20 miles away in Clearwater. The Red Sox, 9-2 as a result of the split, meet the Chicago White Sox today.

Three unearned runs were handed to the Cardinals on errors by Rick Burleson and Mario Guerrero. Burleson, playing shortstop, let a grounder go through his legs for two runs in the third inning and Guerrero, installed at third base in place of Danny Cater in the ninth inning for defensive purposes, put the winning run on with a wild throw. A single by Ken Reitc drove in the winning run and made a loser of right-handed relief pitcher Diego Segui.

Reggie Smith played right field against his former teammates and tied the score at 3-3 with a leadoff home run in the ninth inning. The hit by Reitc scored Jay Johnstone from second base and gave the pitching victory to a former Red Sox reliever Ken Tatum.

The win at Clearwater was featured by the hitting of Bernie Carbo, Jim Rice, Dick McAuliffe and Cecil Cooper. Carbo had four straight hits to lift his spring batting average to .294 and drove in three runs. Rice had a home run and two singles and drove in four runs. McAuliffe and Cooper had two hits each.

"I knew Carbo would eventually begin hitting," Johnson said. "He had just been tense at the plate because he was trying too hard."

Bill Lee and Rick Wise, two certain starters when the season opens, were extremely sharp. Lee held the Cardinals to five hits and no earned runs in six innings and Wise gave up one hit in five innings against the Phillies. Luis Tiant showed that his strained elbow is still bothering him when he yielded seven runs to the Phils in four innings.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (UPI) — Luis Aparicio turns 40 in a few more weeks, but merely by looking at him there isn't a way in the world to tell that.

He has the body, the general physical lines of a 30-year-old and the healthy enthusiasm most frequently associated with young boys.

The mind is something else again however. Luis Aparicio shows his age and his maturity in his thoughts and by some of the things he says in this, his 19th year in the big leagues.

"I can't go on forever," he says. "Someone will have to take the job some day."

This day maybe?

Luis Aparicio smiles, then shrugs while waiting his turn at the batting cage. His reply doesn't really answer the question directly.

"Ever since I first reported to the big leagues in 1956, I never came to spring training once feeling I have the job," he says.

Candidates for the Job

The specific job Aparicio is talking about now is the shortstop position with the Boston Red Sox. Candidates for the job, not necessarily in the order named, are Rick Burleson, a slender, 22-year-old Californian who was the best fielding shortstop in the International League last year; Mario Guerrero, a 24-year-old line-drive hitting Dominican who filled in well at shortstop and second base for Boston last season, and 39-year-old Luis Ernesto Aparicio, who has to be classed among baseball's top 10 all-time shortstops and certainly the best ballplayer ever to come out of Venezuela.

Even though he claims he can't go on forever, there's no question he'd like to go on playing shortstop for Boston at least one more year.

"Sure I wanna play," he says. "That's why I'm here. Next year, who knows? By next July, not this one, my son, Louis, will be ready to sign a baseball contract.

House acts to save April checks for 6,000 Mass. disabled

Legislation to protect the endangered checks of 6,000 disabled in Massachusetts has passed the House of Representatives, Congressman Joe Moakley (D-Mass.) reports. Half of those effected live in the Boston area.

At the beginning of the year all elderly, blind and disabled welfare recipients were transferred to Supplemental Security Income, a federal program run by the Social Security Administration. However, all disabled who qualified during the last half of 1973 had to be recertified to continue in the program.

With the April 1st cutoff date looming, Moakley was warned by Frank Manning, President of the Boston-based Legislative Council of Older Americans, that the recertification process would not be completed in time to insure uninterrupted benefits for the 6,000.

Moakley joined with fellow Massachusetts Democrat, Rep. James A. Burke, to introduce legislation to save the April checks of those snared in mounting red tape.

Recognizing the urgency of the problem, acting chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Al Ullman (D-Oregon) entered a motion to suspend the rules of the House to obtain immediate passage of legislation emboydying the Burke-Moakley Bill.

Under the legislation, checks would continue to be paid until December 31, 1974 assuring that no needy recipient would lose his benefits.

"With this legislation we are acting to avert a grave tragedy for our disabled neighbors," he concluded.

The bill now goes to the Senate, where Moakley expects prompt action.

B.C. cagers win in NIT, 63-62

By RICHARD SILVER

The Boston College Eagles defeated the University of Cincinnati in opening round play of the National Invitation Tournament last Sunday night, 63-62.

The victory gives B. C. the right to meet the University of Connecticut in a game to be played at Madison Square Garden in New York tonight.

B. C. took an early lead with junior Mel Weldon at the helm. The Eagles built a 14-8 lead, the biggest either team was to have all night.

At this point, the B. C. offense stalled and star Cincinnati senior Lloyd Batts brought his team back to an 18-18 deadlock.

A little past the ten minute mark, Weldon picked up his third personal and spent the rest of the half on the bench. B. C. had Cincinnati inconsistency to thank for the slim 30-29 deficit they carried with them into the locker room at half-time.

Cincinnati built a five point 38-33 lead and it looked like B. C. was in trouble. With 16 minutes left Mark Raterink picked up his third personal foul and joined Weldon on the sidelines. Weldon had picked up his fourth in the first 15 seconds of second half play.

But help came from an unexpected spot; the bench. It started with Will Morrison who replaced Weldon. He hit for six big points while playing the toughest defense many agree he has played in his two years at B.C. Among other things he held Batts to just one field goal in the second half.

Paul Berwanger, the highly touted frosh from Cornwall, N.Y. was another surprise. He also hit for six points and grabbed important rebounds at both ends of the court along with a blocked shot here and there.

The two of them accounted for six of the 10 straight points B. C. reeled off. The other two baskets came from Jere Nolan, (13 points), with an assist from Berwanger, and Bob Carrington (high scorer with 15 points, six rebounds). B. C. led 43-38.

The Eagles had a slim but comfortable five point lead, or was it? The Bearcats fought back hard for three minutes, scored six straight points and took the lead. In the next minute and a half the lead changed hands five times until Morrison put the Eagles ahead to stay with a leaning one-hander from the lane with 8:12 to go.

Boston College led by six with 1:54 remaining, and then, shades of the Providence College-Boston College game, the roof almost fell in.

Cincinnati hit two in a row and B. C. was up by two.

With 26 seconds left, Nolan was fouled and made one of two free throws. Next it was Cincinnati at the line as Bill Collins fouled Batts with nine seconds left. He made both shots and B. C. led 63-62.

All the Eagles had to do was hold onto the ball to win. Jere Nolan did just that as he failed to pass the ball inbounds and B. C. lost possession on a five second violation.

The luck of the Irish was with them this St. Patrick's Day, along with some great defense, as the Bearcats missed three shots before time elapsed to put B.C. into the quarter finals tonight.

B.C. will be up for revenge against UConn (it upset St. John's earlier on Sunday) as the Huskies beat B.C. in the next to last game of the regular season in Storrs, Conn., 77-69.

Winter athletes honored

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN
And AMY ROSENTHAL

Newton South honored its winter athletes at a co-educational dessert hour last week.

Members of the School Committee attended and Mayor Theodore D. Mann gave a speech about Newton's youth.

Coaches made short speeches and gave varsity letters or numbers to team members.

The first speaker was the boys' gymnastics coach, Tom Steeves. He explained that graduation losses contributed to this past season's losing gymnastics record.

Steeves complimented Captain Dave Williams, saying that "he was one of the best gymnasts I have ever had the pleasure to work with and only injuries prevented him from becoming state champion."

Track Coach Donald Sutherland followed with a funny speech about the indoor track team. This year's team had an 0-7 record. Sutherland said that he had three outstanding performers in Steve Berger, Andy Shulman and Chuck Bond.

Hockey Coach Neil McPhee also experienced a losing season but he is optimistic about the future. He has a good nucleus returning next year.

McPhee talked about Captain Steve Tresca and junior all-star Joe Donlan. Donlan was cited for his excellent play on defense and his selection to a Dual County League all-star team.

Wrestling Coach Aredis Kojoyian talked about the great success of this year's wrestling team. Kojoyian felt that the 12-2 record the wrestlers had was the result of hard work and dedication.

Kojoyian complimented his captain, Paul Linn, for showing great leadership, and praised senior Mike Shockett for becoming the first Newton South state wrestling champion.

Kojoyian announced that Peter Nathanson, who had a 12-2 record in the 128-pound class, and Peter Maples, who was 12-0-2 in the 177-pound division, have been selected to be captains of next year's team.

Basketball Coach Dick Walker pointed out that the strong play of all-stars Rich Spector, Mark Jefferson, and Ron Harris contributed to his team's success.

The cagers had a 12-5 record and qualified for the state basketball tournament. A South basketball team had never qualified before this year.

Walker's main point was to stress the importance of team play and the contributions of his players.

The senior and junior cheerleaders were recognized.

Ms. Pam Nixon, girls' basketball coach, talked about this year's season. She said that she was apprehensive about the season because it was her first year of basketball coaching at Newton South. She added that the team started off slowly, but came on strong at the end of the season. The varsity and junior varsity teams won their final games of the season.

For the girls' gymnastics team, the end of the season was both a sad and happy time.

It was sad because Coach Ann Wright is leaving this year, moving to Colorado. It was happy because, as Ms. Wright stated, the team improved 21 points during the season.

Ms. Wright was particularly pleased with the versatility and hard work of the girls. One team member, Maureen Foley, qualified for state competition on the uneven bars.

WHEREAS: MICHAEL SHOCKETT, who has always preferred actual achievement rather than the emoluments thereof, lived up to the highest of traditions by earning the Eagle Scout Award with the Silver Palm in Scouting at the early age of his teens (13),

Cougars defeat Maroons, 2-1

Newton Youth Hockey Cougars raced past the longtime first-place Maroons, 2-1, to end the senior division's regular season in first place, 24 points to 23.

Playoffs begin on Sunday, March 24, with the first place Cougars playing a best of three games series against third place Olympics and the second place Maroons against last-place Blades in the semi-finals.

Finals between the two winners will be played as a best of three or five games, to be decided later.

Last Saturday's thriller saw a well-played first period, followed in the second period by a goal by Chris Harney for the Maroons and David D'Amicao or the Cougars.

The game winner was a powerful slap shot by Dick Bullwinkle from near the blue line.

Newton Youth Hockey Association got a lift last week, when the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen voted to request the mayor to reinstate the budget request of the Recreation Department for $11,000 for youth hockey.

Dual meet March 23

The Newton swim team will host a dual meet on Saturday, March 23 from 4-6 p.m. at the Newton North High School. The meet will be with the Woburn Swim Club.

Cronin, Achtmeyer compete for colleges

Sophomore Greg Cronin of Waban has completed a successful season with the Dartmouth hockey team.

Cronin, a hard-working wing, ended the season with four goals and 15 assists for 19 points, fourth best on the team. One of Cronin's goals was in the final 10 seconds of Dartmouth's 4-3 win over Boston University.

"Greg played all year with a bad knee, but came up with some very big plays and I am happy he'll be around for two more seasons," said Dartmouth coach Grant Standbrook.

Freshman Bill Achtmeyer of Chestnut Hill was a performer for the Princeton University squash team.

He is the son of Mrs. Virginia Adams of South Craftsland Road in Chestnut Hill, Mass. and is a graduate of Belmont Hill School.

NHL roundup

The Los Angeles Kings, who were saved from defeat by a third-period goal by Frank St. Marseille, now are unbeaten in the last eight National Hockey Leagues.

In other NHl games Tuesday night, Dennis Hextall had one goal and three assists to lead the Minnesota North Stars to a 6-3 victory over the California Golden Seals at Bloomington, Minn., and the New York Islanders defeated St. Louis, 5-1.

In the World Hockey Association, Paul Andrea scored three goals as Cleveland defeated Chicago, 7-4, and Vancouver beat Minnesota, 5-4.

Los Angeles moved two points ahead of Atlanta in the NHL West playoffs race as a result of the tie. Toronto had taken a 1-0 lead in the second period on a 25-foot breakaway shot by Dennis Dupere at 1:39. But just after the third period's opening faceoff, St. Marseille rammed in a rebound of a shot by Gene Carr for his 14th goal of the year to produce the deadlock.

Stearns Club wins award

Stearns Club Wins Award

The Stearns Club has won the 1974 Sportsmanship Award in the Newton Recreation Department's Girls' Junior High Basketball League. The award is presented to the team exhibiting good sportsmanship throughout the season. The award is voted by the league's team managers and officials.

Recreation Supervisor Fran Towle, invites women to join a Recreation Department-sponsored Softball League. They may contact her at 969-3171. League play is scheduled to begin the first Sunday in June.

The department's three-trail mini bike facility on Winchester street, Newton Highlands, will open Saturday, April 6, weather conditions permitting. The tracks are open to Newton residents, boys and girls, aged eight to 16. It is operated Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. under the direction of Paul Patriacca, assisted by safety director Bob Braceland.

Interested riders may sign up at the track or at the Recreation Department office at 70 Crescent street, Auburndale. There is a $5.00 registration fee for each bike, and each rider must also have a certificate which costs $1.00. Bikes are limited to five horsepower and riders must have safety helmets and hard toed shoes, and vehicles must have proper safety equipment.

Last year, the mini bike facility located on the old City infirmary land attracted between 40 and 60 riders each Saturday. Recreation Supervisor William Barry urges parents to encourage their children to use this facility, noting that it is not legal to operate mini-bikes on the public highways.

The playoffs in the A and B Divisions of the American Basketball League will be held beginning the week of March 25. The games will be played at Warren and Day Junior High Schools with the first game beginning at 7 p.m. and the second at 8 p.m. The finals are scheduled for the week beginning April 1. In the case of ties at the end of the regular season play, teams will compete in special playoff games.

Latest standings in the A Division show the Troubadours on top with an 8-1 record. Three teams, George's Cafe, Waban Wonders and the Boys' Club, each at 7 - 2, are tied for second place.

In B Division, there is a tie for first place. The Big Blue and the Ziphaels each sport 9-2 records. Next comes the Upper Falls with 8 - 2 and the Hoops, 7 - 3.

Some 20 to 25 regulars are playing badminton at the Warren Junior High School from 7:30-10:30 p.m. on Thursdays. This program, for those of high school age and adults, is directed by Mrs. Rogan and Mr. Passero.

The current season will wind up in a month or so, but interested Newton people are invited to go down to Warren Thursday nights with an eye to participating for the entire season next year.

The youth activities sponsored by the Newton Recreation Department are proving to be quite popular with 90 to 100 young people attending the various centers held throughout the city Friday and Saturday nights.

Programs are conducted at the Newton Community Center on Cherry Street, West Newton Friday nights from 7 to 11 p.m. and there is a gym oriented program at Warren Junior High on Saturday nights from 7 to 11 p.m. Both programs are directed by Katie Smith and Phil Churchill.

Nick Siciliano directs a youth center at the Emerson School Saturday nights between 7 and 11 p.m. Another youth center has been opened at Meadowbrook Junior High, which also runs between 7 and 11 p.m. Saturday nights.

In answer to inquiries regarding the coming season for the Newton Recreation Department's Softball League, Barry, the league director, says that returning teams will be given priority. New teams interested in playing in the league, which operates from the first week in May to August, may call him at 969-3171 and be placed on a waiting list.

Available facilities limit the league to 24 teams. Last year, about 500 men played in this league. An organizational meeting will be scheduled, according to Mr. Barry.

Director of the National League, Recreation Supervisor, Robert Doherty, reports that the league is having playoffs. The final standings for regular season play are: No-Names, 12-2; Newton Centre, 11-3; Boys' Club, 9-5; Hawthorn, 7-7; Beginnings, 7-7; Temps, 5-9; Messina Club, 4-10; and Capitols, 1-13.

In the Pony League, Hawthorn A is first followed by Newton Centre and Boys' Club at 7-4; The playoffs started this week. They will be held at Warren Junior High Thursday and Friday. Game time is 7 p.m.

Federation of Women's Clubs adds new groups as Associates

The Executive Board of the Newton Federation of Women's Clubs will hold its regular meeting at 10:15 a.m., March 25, at the Newtonville Branch of the Newton Free Library.

Mrs. John Jenkins, president, will conduct the meeting. Mrs. Henry Lambert, Waban, will speak about the P.T.A. Mrs. Lambert has served as secretary to the P.T.A. for 12 years.

Mr. David Rottenberg, representing the International Meditation Society, will take on the subject of "Relaxation."

The Federal has recently added two more groups to its Associate Organizations. They are The American Field Society, which sponsors exchange students both in America and abroad, and The Newton Citizens' Advocacy, which works with retarded persons on a one-to-one basis. This latter organization has recently opened a halfway house for eight adults who are able to work in a sheltered workshop.

Members of Federated Clubs or Associate Organizations are welcome to attend all board meetings.

Trees-

Obermayer had contended that the tree had another 10 years of life left on the basis of an evaluation of the tree he had had done by a different tree firm from those used by the city.

The tree is reportedly one of the eight trees, the threatened removal of which for a now-completed widening of Chestnut St., brought 150 citizens to City Hall in protest last July.

Dudman said Tuesday that he has a meeting arranged with Obermayer for Wednesday evening on the subject of this tree and a Dutch elm nearby, which also must be removed because of disease.

"The tree is now tenuously standing," he said.

The Red Cross has presented special awards in recognition of outstanding volunteer service to seven members of the Junior League of Boston.The women have all been active in BEAT (Blood Emergency Action Team). BEAT is part of the Red Cross Blood Program and consists of a group of on-call blood donors and the volunteers who contact them for donations in emergency situations. The Junior League has provided a number of volunteers for BEAT to assist with recruiting, clerical work and publicity.

Miss Alliston Baker, Mrs. Arch W. Shaw II, Mrs. John R. Giles II, and Mrs. Richard Hankel were honored for their contribution to BEAT. All four have made lengthy commitments as volunteers either staffing or organizing the Junior League involvement in the program.

Mrs. John Cornish, Blood Program Chairman, and a leader in the BEAT effort, was particularly cited for her work inthe community.

BEAT donors fill many kinds of emergency demands for blood. Often the blood is needed within hours of the donation such as in open heart surgery.

Regular blood banks, although essential to the total program, do not answer the special needs covered by BEAT. BEAT volunteers include many people other than Junior League members. More donors and volunteers are needed to help expand the service and anyone interested in participating can call 262-1234.

Alien life form contest at museum

Walking plants or little green men? Cyclopes or starfish eight feet wide?

Can you justify your idea of life on some other planet?

If you can, enter the Alien Life Forms Contest at Boston's Museum of Science.

In addition to submitting an original drawing, painting, or model of an extraterrestrial life form, you also write 100 words or less about the hypothetical conditions of the world on which your imaginary life form exists and how it adapted to those conditions.

Prizes will be given in three age categories: 12 and younger; 13 to 17; and 18 and older.

First prizes are 2.4-inch Alt-azimuth telescopes provided by the Unitron Instrument Company of Newton Highlands. Second and third prizes will also be awarded

The contest is run in conjunction with the forthcoming program in the Charles Hayden Planetarium which runs from March 26 through June 16. "Earth Calling" reviews attempts being made to reach intelligent life in distant star systems and discusses current and future space exploration.

The contest closes April 15. Winning entries will be displayed in the Planetarium lobby. Entry blanks and rules may be obtained in the Museum.

Information from VA

Vietnam Era veterans needing dental care are presumed to be service connected and therefore eligible to receive dental treatment at Veterans Administration expense provided:

—they apply to the VA within one year after their discharge, and —they were discharged or retired under conditions other than dishonorable.

This general eligibility covers sufficient treatment at VA expense to put the veteran's teeth into good condition one time. It does not extend to treatment for dental conditions that obviously existed before the veteran entered military service, VA officials pointed out.

Veterans who have special eligibility for continuing VA dental treatment, and for whom the one year application limit does not apply, include:

—those receiving VA compensation for dental conditions.

—those whose dental conditions resulted from combat wounds or service injuries.

—those who were prisoners of war.

VA said that in addition, any veteran discharged or retired under conditions other than dishonorable may receive VA dental treatment reasonably necessary to obviate the need for hospital admission, provided he cannot afford to pay for the necessary care elsewhere.

Tony Newman's versatile and successful, too

NEW YORK (UPI) — That Anthony Newman is a versatile young performer and conductor there is no doubt. To underline the proposition, he has a series of new Bach records ranging from the "Well Tempered Clavier" to the "Lutheran Organ Mass."

The "Well Tempered Clavier" is a basic work of keyboard literature and one that separates the merely serious from the sublime. It is quintessential Bach.

I will confess to appreciating earlier versions of the work more, i.e. that of the late Wanda Landowska on the harpsichord, but this is a matter of both feel and taste. The Newman version of Book I (Columbia M2-32500 — two records) seems to me both planned in concept and impeccably performed.

An interesting touch is that Newman uses three separate harpsichords, each replica said to embody the tonal qualities of historic harpsichords in Europe and America.

The "Lutheran Organ Mass" (Columbia M2-32497-two records) is Part III of Bach's Klavierubung, composed of Prelude and Fugue in E flat major, 21 choral preludes and the four "duets."

After the opening Prelude in E flat come the 21 chorale preludes consisting first of the choir singing the hymn tunes and then the organ development.

Newman plays the organ with the Boston Archdiocesan Boys Choir. My own enjoyment was heightened by a boyhood of Lutheran church music to which Bach gave the supreme expression.

Back at the harpsichord, a third Newman record (Columbia M-32300) is of the Bach and Haydn concertos in D Minor and D Major which he both plays and conducts.

Finally, a hodgepodge of selections apparently intended by Columbia to bring in some subculture record buyers and entitled Bhajebochstiannanas, an anagram on Johann Sebastian Bach (M 32439).

It includes Bach's Preludes and Fugue in D major (organ), Prelude and Fugue in G major (harpsichord) from Book I of the Well Tempered Clavier and the Passacaglia and Fugue in C Minor (organ).

Almost 2% of veterans are women

Women comprise 1.9 percent of the nation's 29 million veterans, the Veterans Administration reported today. The figure includes 8,500 separated from military service in fiscal year 1973.

There are 542,000 women veterans, 305,000 of whom are credited with World War II service. Nurses who served during the Spanish-American War and World War I women veterans total 15,000. Vietnam-era women veterans numbered 91,000 through June 30.

During World War I, women served as military nurses, Navy Yeomanettes and women Marines. The Women's Army Corps was not established until World War II.

Expectant mothers meet for discussion at hospital

OSCAR SPINNER has been elected to the board of directors of the International Association of Financial Planners. He is currently regional vice president for the northeast and is a former president of the Boston Chapter of his group. Spinner, a resident of Newton, is associated with CNA Financial Companies.

In the outpatient lobby of Newton-Wellesley Hospital, a group of expectant young mothers gather every Thursday morning.

They don't exchange recipes and knitting patterns as they wait for maternity clinic appointments. They do exchange hopes, apprehensions and youthful philosophies on childbirth and child care. They are part of an informal but carefully structured group designed to give them extra support during their pregnancies.

The young mothers are participating in a new kind of comprehensive maternity clinic care program. Under the direction of Mrs. Joanne Costa, R.N. the program offers the clinic patient continuity of care throughout her pregnancy.

While she will see different doctors, the patient is in constant contact with maternity specialist Costa. The nurse is available for phone calls and consultations in periods between obstetrical appointments and makes house calls when necessary. She voluntarily stays with her young mothers throughout labor. Mrs. Costa also keeps personal patient-nurse contact alive in the post-delivery period.

At a recent informal Thursday morning lobby session, three young mothers-to-be from Newton spoke in favor of the clinic program.

"You don't feel like you're in a clinic here," said a black-haired 27-year-old first-time mother. "There's none of that around the side street by the back door feeling."

The program is open to Newton, Wellesley and Weston women planning to deliver through the hospital's clinic program.

Mrs. Costa is currently working with 12 expectant mothers and four who have already delivered. Four or five regularly participate in the Thursday group which is convened by Mrs. Jennifer Coplon of Newton's Family Counseling Service and Newton-Wellesley nursing and social services personnel. Mrs. Coplon is expecting her first baby shortly.

The young mothers have no reticence in expressing their feelings and in fact are encouraged to do so. Two 18-year old expectant mothers reported that they were completely reality-oriented–focusing on the birth of the baby and not the baby's long-term future.

Part of the purpose of the meetings is to bring hidden fears to the surface for rational discussion. According to Mrs. Costa, herself the mother of four children. "The maternity cycle in and of itself is a crisis. It's steeped in mystery and symbolism."

A maternity nurse deliberately asked three young mothers if they had considered the possibility of a defective birth. Said an 18-year-old woman, "You could drive yourself nuts just thinking about the possibility, never mind what you'd do about it."

The three young mothers-to-be stated that they had been reassured about the labor and delivery process. In response to questions arising within the group, they toured labor and delivery rooms and saw first-hand where they will be and what to expect during delivery.

Maternity specialist Costa is one of less than a dozen graduates of a new M.S. program conducted by Boston College Graduate School of Arts and Sciences and Harvard Medical School.

Nurses are educated to work as practitioners in close collaboration with physicians. The health team plans for each patient and the nurse practitioner performs certain prescribed medical procedures, freeing doctors time for more complex diagnoses and treatment.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital also has a pediatric nurse practitioner who fills a similar function with infants and children in the outpatient service.

Mothers utilizing maternity clinic service can bring newborns and older children to the pediatric service.

HAL R. FISHBEIN, president of National Hearing Aid Centers of Boston, recently received the Outstanding Dealer Award for 1973, presented by Fidelity Electronics of Chicago. Fishbein lives in Newton.

Tutors sought

Tutors are needed at Day Junior High School to help students with math and reading.

Need exists during both mornings and afternoons, Monday through Thursday.

For more information, people may call 244-3670 or 332-0156 8:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Committee member

Mrs. Elmore I. MacPhie of 48 Prince St., West Newton is serving on the planning committee for the Tufts University President's Ball which will be held on March 30.

More women smoking cigars

According to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, ten million women have quit smoking cigarettes. But, would you believe, more women are now smoking cigars?

Men seem to be switching to pipes, but more women are lighting up cigars. The Cigar Institute of America estimates that more than 500,000 of the 15 million cigar smokers in America are women. This is almost a 300 per cent increase during the last decade. And cigar makers and sellers feel this figure is an underestimate.

A cigar ad is now being prepared for the ladies. "We get letters," says the vice president of General Cigar Company, "telling us to feature more women in our advertising so cigar smoking on the part of women will become more socially acceptable. When women started smoking cigarettes years ago, it wasn't acceptable. But advertising changed that. The same thing is slowly going on with cigars and women."

Tobacco smoke that is not inhaled allegedly affects the sites it touches. Hot smoke lingers inside the mouth and can travel into the throat and windpipe, even into the upper breathing passages. Smoke, which may be dissolved in the saliva, can be swallowed and enter the digestive tract.

New studies indicate that cigar and pipe smokers have even higher death rates from certain specific causes - such as cancer of the lip, mouth, throat, voice box, and stomach - than do cigarette smokers.

To find out more about the effects of all kinds of smoking on men as well as women, people may contact your Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association.

Scout Supper to be held on March 27

The twenty-fourth annual Scout Supper will be held on Wednesday, March 27, at 6:15 p.m. in the Community Hall of Temple Emanuel at 385 Ward Street, Newton Centre. Cub Pack 217 will join with Troop 225 in sponsoring this event.

Awards will be given to qualified scouts and cub scouts. Adult leaders and den leaders will also be given certificates of appreciation for their contributions to the scouting program.

This year the committee has arranged an unusual program for the scout family. Ken Pauley, director of special activities at the Science Museum in Boston, will present "Magic Through Science." Another feature of the evening will be the presentation of an Eagle Award.

A family supper will be served. The charge is $2.50 for children and $3.00 for adults.

Invited guests include Rabbi Samuel Chiel, Morris Finkelstein, president of Temple Emanuel, Malcolm Flash, chairman of youth activities, Chester Rubin, youth activities director, Dr. Louis Kassler, president of Brotherhood, Kenneth Dana, executive director, and Adolph Andersen, scout executive of Norumbega Council.

The following are serving on the Scout Supper Committee: C. Benjamin Lofchie, co-chairman, Irving Medoff, co-chairman, Daniel Bloom, Joseph Winer, Harry Weiner, Morris Danovitch, Melvin and Dorothy Jacobs, John Bradley, and Chester Rubin. Daniel Bloom is in charge of reservations.

Springtime lecture at Science Museum

In the spring everyone's fancy turns to thoughts of gardening and birding - at least everyone who comes to Boston's Museum of Science Friday night, March 22.

Just two days after the Vernal Equinox, springtime will arrive at the Museum with an entire evening, beginning at 6:30, devoted to demonstrations and tips on preparing for nature's rebirth. Both experienced and novice gardeners and bird-watchers will benefit from a variety of suggestions for better ways to pursue their avocations.

Two hall demonstrations, one on growing and using herbs and one on organic gardening, will introduce visitors to the how's and why's of these two specialized and popular areas of horticulture. Both demonstrations will be given informally and on a continual basis throughout the evening.

Several gardening experts from Lexington Gardens will also be on hand to discuss specific questions and problems with visitors. To complete the gardening presentations, a film on composting will show the methods and benefits of this ecological practice.

Migrating birds arrive in New England along with the spring's warmer weather, and visitors will learn the best ways to observe these colorful harbingers of the season from Peter Stowe, Assistant Director of Education at the Museum. As with the participants in the other programs, he will be available for informal discussion throughout the evening.

As one in a weekly series of Friday night specials, the March 22 program is offered to visitors at no charge above Museum admission, which is reduced to half on Friday nights ($1 for adults and 50c for children).

Every Friday night, the Museum's Skyline Restaurant is open for dinner from 5 until 8 p.m., and the Friendly Shop is open throughout the evening for snacks and sandwiches.

Ample parking is available in the Museum's garage for a nominal fee, and the MBTA Green Line Lechmere car stops 500 yards from the Museum.

Backyard Frontier

By POLLY BRADLEY

Spring begins, as far as my family is concerned, when we take our first trip to the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary.

The Sanctuary's center is a hill which was once a farm, then became a private estate, and is now maintained for wildlife and for conservation education by the Massachusetts Audubon Society. It combines the beauty of the old New England farmland, the park-like arboretum quality of the estate, and the rich animal and bird life of the marsh which surrounds the hill and is part of the Sanctuary.

Spring came early this year for us, when the whole family went "sugaring off" the second weekend in March at Ipswich River.

It was more than just watching syrup boil and eating fresh syrup on ice.

Robert McLean of the Department of Natural Resources, service forester for Essex County, told us that the best type of tree for syrup is one that is bushy at the top, with plenty of branches to help manufacture sap...thus the name "sugarbush". The sap ranges from 2 percent to 8 percent sugar, with about 4 percent being a fairly good "sugar-bush". At 4 percent sugar, 20 gallons of sap will make a gallon of syrup.

Of course, it wasn't always so difficult to get syrup. According to McLean, when the Indians first tapped maple trees, it came out pure maple syrup, but when they got greedy, the Great Spirit decided to make them work harder for their syrup. At least that's what legend says.

Richard Mailey, director of the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary, showed us how a tree must be ten inches in diameter before it can be tapped: if a smaller tree were tapped, it would take out more sap than the tree could spare. For each additional bucket on the same tree, the tree must have 6 additional inches of diameter.

We tasted the sap. It requires some imagination to taste any sweetness in 4 percent sugar sap, but there was no question about it when we tasted the boiled product, poured over ice.

Naturally, the eating was the climax as far as the children were concerned. And the next day, at home, I made waffles and had both genuine maple syrup and standard fake "waffle syrup", so the children could contrast the two.

It was than I discovered I'd made a terrible mistake. I should never have taken the children sugaring off. Now they know the difference and are demanding real maple syrup all the time...after all these years that I'd fooled them and saved the expensive real stuff for the adults.

Sugaring off is over for the season, but there are hundreds of other fascinating programs and classes in wildlife, conservation, nature crafts, and natural history planned for the coming warm weather by the more than forty wildlife sanctuaries and nature centers of the Massachusetts Audubon Society. And all are open for simply walking, seeing, and enjoying.

There is a sanctuary within energy-crisis driving distance of every home in Massachusetts. For a free list, send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Wildlife Sanctuaries," Massachusetts Audubon Society, Lincoln, Mass. 01773.

Leff supports amendments

Secretary of Elder Affairs Jack Leff testified recently at the State House before the Joint Legislative Committee on Social Welfare.

He spoke in support of three bills to amend his department's reorganization legislation which was passed at the close of the last legislative session and is effective July 1 of this year.

The three bills heard would (1)transfer the meals program for elders from the Department of Education to the Department of Elder Affairs; (2) place the Board of Accreditation of Homemaker Services in the Department of Elder Affairs; (3) clarify wording of the reorganization legislation relative to the purchase of home care services.

Specifically, the transfer of the meals program would allow Elder Affairs to coordinate the state meals program with the federal nutrition program which it administers.

"As it is now operated within the Education Department, the meals program for elders is really an after-thought to the children's school lunch program," the secretary stated.

"This amendment (H-1102) would insure consideration of the special dietary needs of elders in menu planning; greater accessibility for elders to meals programs by virtue of their location in community centers such as churches and senior centers as well as schools; and coordination of meals programs with ancillary social services such as transportation and information and referral."

With regard to the second amendment, Leff stated, "Elder Affairs' original reorganization legislation proposed the creation of the Board of Sccreditation of Homemaker Services and its placement in our Department. As that legislation was finally passed, however, the Board was placed in the Welfare Department. This amendment (H1109) is designed to return the Board to Elder Affairs.

"Inasmuch as 64 percent of homemaker services are provided for elders, and as homemaker services are the key to Elder Affairs' home care program, homemaker services enjoy a position of priority in Elder Affairs that they have never held within the Welfare Department. Still, recognizing that other age groups do receive homemaker services—however limited by comparison—the Board is designed to reflect broad representation from consumers, homemakers and government agencies including the Executive Office of Human Services, Departments of Welfare and Public Health, and Office for Children."

The third bill (H-1103) s a tehnical amendment designed to clarify the wording of Elder Affairs' reorganization legislation relative to the purchase of home care services from Elder Affairs by the Department of Public Welfare.

Leff stressed the importance of all three amendments in completing the reorganization of the Department of Elder Affairs—and insuring the ability of the Department to provide a better way of life for all the Commonwealth's elders.

Hawkes had said that vandalism at South results from "exuberant, vigorous youngsters with little to do."

School Committee member Joan Needleman asked why kids have little to do.

Hawkes responded that there are students who are not committed to their studying.

Adams said that student schedules are presently being studied. He noted that the typical course load is four major subjects and gym. "There is a feeling that anyone below the typical load should have immediate attention," Adams commented.

Silton suggested that there should be an evaluation of the way students handle course loads.

School Committee Chairwoman Eleanor Rosenblum asked which is more important, providing a feeling of community or allowing students a wide selection of courses.

Hawkes said that reducing anonymity requires close contact. He added that South emphasizes having students take courses within their house.

Newton North principal Richard Mechem said that a strong effort is made to keep students within their house, particularly in their sophomore year.

A student in the audience said that houses are used mostly for discipline and attendance.

Newton South principal Ernest V. Seasholes questioned whether modifications of the house system should be thought about. Possibilities he mentioned included increasing the sizes of houses and allowing students to choose what houses they wanted to be in.

Mechem noted that people have thought about combining two houses or having mini-houses.

Vermont lifestyle subject of lecture

Two authentic 20th-century pioneers will discuss their lifestyle at Pine Manor Junior College in Chestnut Hill Monday, March 25.

Helen and Scott Nearing, authors of "The Maple Sugar Book and Living The Good Life," moved to the Green Mountains in Vermont from New York City during the Great Depression.

They sought at the time an uncomplicated, satisfying life on the land and wound up testing principles of how one should live in today's world. Their talk will take place at 7:30 p.m. in East Commons, and the public is invited at no charge.

Of their totally self-sufficient life, the Nearings say: "We wanted to live simply, doing as much good as possible to our fellow humans and fellow beings, and at the same time doing them as little harm as possible." On their farm in Vermont they established their own maple sugar industry and grew all their own food.

The Nearings said that their experience is a prescription for "how to live sanely and simply in a troubled world."

Slide talks planned

Three free slide talks at Newton Free Library branches will feature trips to England, the Greek Islands and the Middle East, and the Caravan Countries.

Colorful villages, agriculture and camel caravans in the Himalayas will be part of the program, following coffee and conversation at 10 a.m. Branch Librarian Arlene Lynde will host the program at Waban.

At Highlands Branch there will be a special program for senior citizens on Wednesday, March 27 at 2:30 p.m. Elsa Badger will show slides of her travels through the Greek Islands and the Middle East.

Joan Nolan, Highlands Branch librarian invites senior citizens and other interested citizens to this program.

Budget goes to Board Saturday

The City of Newton will have to raise about $659 per head in taxes in the coming fiscal year.

The 1974-75 total city budget, to be presented to the Board of Aldermen on Saturday, comes to $61,372,022.18, less revenue sharing.

The full board will begin public disdussion and voting on that day. Completion of the work may be achieved by the following Saturday, April 6.

In a communication to the board, Aldermanic Finance Committee Chairman Sidney Samll notes that the departmental budget requests had amounted to $65.6 million which Mayor Theodore Mann reduced to $63 million and the Finance Committee, during budget deliberations with all department heads and aldermanic committees, further reduced.

After Finance Committee cuts of more than $1.6 million the budget came to $61,372,022, and after the inclusion of $1.2 million in federal revenue-sharing funds, the total amount to be acted on will be $60,172,022.18.

The portion of the total budget that represents the School Department budget is $29,131,917.

Several budget additions are expected before the aldermen and the mayor close the books.

Increases due to upcoming labor negotiations have not been included, nor has the first year's payment on the bonding of teachers' salaries for the months of July and August this year.

Authorization to bond was voted recently in accordance with a special state law enacted last year to help the cities and towns to spread the extra teachers' salaries incurred in the 18-month shift to the state fiscal cycle.

Extra money may need to be included in the budget to pay for increased cost of solid waste disposal after the use of the Newton incinerator is discontinued at the end of 1974 or early in 1975.

About a half-million dollars is needed to make necessary repairs and modification of equipment in the $22 million new Newton North High School, occupied last fall, according to several aldermen.

Charge 2nd man in tree incident

A Forestry Department employee allegedly injured in an incident two weeks ago connected with the attempted removal of a Chestnut Street tree has filed a complaint against a West Newton man, charging him with "threats to do bodily harm."

At a show cause hearing before Newton District Court Clerk Henry Schultz Wednesday, Samuel M. Robbins, 51, of 300 Prince St., was charged in this complaint by city employee Gene Machain.

Robbins is scheduled to appear in court Thursday, April 4.

Both Robbins and Marchain declined to comment Wednesday after the show cause hearing ended.

Arthur Obermayer

The incident in question occurred March 14, when Arthur Obermayer of 239 Chestnut St., also West Newton, allegedly attempted to prevent the cutting down of a tree in front of his house by Forestry Department personnel.

Obermayer was charged by Newton police with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (a motor vehicle), after he allegedly jumped into the skyworker truck and rocked the vehicle back and forth to stop Machain, who was working from the bucket raised up into the tree, from continuing to saw the tree.

Obermayer said he had called police twice to have them come and stop the tree removal and was told the police "would look into it." He said he had piled the cut branches in the street to cause a traffic tieup that would bring police, but traffic simply went around the obstruction.

Nurses demand better treatment

There are reportedly labor problems at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

A nurse, who did not want to be identified, said this week that nurses are seeking more representatives on hospital committees. They want "more say in what happens at the hospital."

Nurses and other personnel reportedly want more "legal leverage."

It was emphasized that they are concerned with improving patient care.

A Newton-Wellesley nurse said recently that "the administration doesn't have to listen to you."

She noted that if 51 per cent of the nurses join the American Nurses Association, they can ask the Massachusetts Nurses Association (MNA) to act as an arbitrator in any negotiations.

She said "the MNA is a last resort. We are trying to solve our problems without outside help."

Another goal of nurses is "more respect from doctors."

It was noted, however, that the problems the nurses feel are concerns of "anyone having to do with patient care."

When asked about possible problems at the hospital, Administrative Vice-President William Brines said that "nurses have always had representation here."

Brines said that he did not feel a communication problem with nurses existed.

"I have listened to nurses whether they belonged to an organization or not," Brines commented. "I think we're communicating very well."

He noted that there is a "labor shortage" at Newton-Wellesley.

"We would love to get some more nurses," Brines said.

"We have very good nurses and very good people," Brines added.

Lincoln-Eliot addition up for vote again tonight

Working against an April 10 date for expiration of bids on construction of an addition to the Lincoln-Eliot School, the Public Buildings Committee Tuesday night voted 6-0 to approve the $1.2 million bond issue.

A special meeting of the Finance Committee will take place tonight (Thursday) to consider the matter. If the Finance Committee approves the money, the full Board will undoubtedly vote its approval Monday night.

Approval of the $1.2 million by the Public Buildings Committee was contingent on approval of 65 percent reimbursement by the state Board of Education's School Buildings Assistance Bureau, but Gene Larson, Public Buildings Commissioner, feels that state reimbursement will be okayed.

Larson will present the Lincoln-Eliot proposal to the SBAB on April 23.

A "public meeting" was held by the Public Buildings Committee last week in response to concerned residents of the Lincoln-Eliot neighborhood who were afraid the long-awaited renovation and addition project was about to be abandoned.

Many aldermen had expressed opposition to approval of the expenditure of a large amount of money on a school

Problems plague North

There are still ventilation problems at Newton North High School.

Director of Support Services John Gilleland told the Newton School Committee this week that an engineer's report had noted trouble in three rooms. Gilleland said that two of the rooms, served by a single unit, could be fixed quickly.

Newton North principal Richard Mechem said that he feels that "there are still sections of the building which still don't get much air."

Mechem added that "the cold air tends to hide this problem.

School Committeeman Alvin Mandell asked, "what do we do about faulty design?"

Mayor Theodore D. Mann replied that people at City Hall have met with representatives of Newton North, the Building Department, the designers of the high school and the people responsible for the heating system.

"We're attempting to get people to deal with this," Mann said.

School Committeeman Herbert Regal said the ventilation difficulty is a "very, very serious problem. Our staff is very unhappy and with good reason."

We have a heating system, per se, you could operate year round if necessary," Buildings Commissioner Gene Larson commented. "You cannot operate the cooling system year round. It would freeze up on us."

Both Gilleland and Larson remarked that the ventilation system at Newton North meets requirements of the School Building Code. It was noted that some of the spaces at the high school may be used for activities not anticipated by designers.

Larson said that he was going to meet with the Newton North architect Thursday.

Mann commented that the city solicitor's office would be involved "if there is legal liability on the part of anyone."

Gilleland said that orders have been given to turn on the air conditioning system at Newton North on April 1. He added that he hoped this would solve some of the problems.

School Committee member Mrs. Dorothy Reichard said that "we shouldn't ignore the fact that Dick Mechem has a real morale factor to contend with."

School Committeeman Gerard Byrne commented that the best leverage for getting the ventilation fixed would be to withhold money.

Larson said that about $500,000 is being held up. He stated that he is seeking another year's guarantee. "We are trying to reach an agreement," Larson commented.

Another problem at Newton North has been getting trees installed. First, a shipment of trees was returned, and a second shipment was sent. This group of trees could not fit in the pots the school had.

According to Larson, one of the trees in the second shipment may now be dead.

Mann, who was the victim of several "tree jokes" at the meeting, asked Larson if he was "sure the tree was dead."

"Maybe its just diseased and can last a couple more years," Mann remarked.

New concept in health care in Nonantum

Mrs. McGlaston palpitates client's neck, checking for abnormalities.

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of the Graphic Staff

Inside a modest Nonantum storefront, a new concept of health care for the suburbs is growing.

The Silver Lake Family Nursing Health Center at 358A Watertown St. opened its doors last December to provide low-cost health screening and health counseling to the community.

Nurse-practitioner Mrs. June McGlaston runs the clinic. Mrs. McGlaston is a new kind of nurse, having graduated from a special degree course at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. She is qualified to do a complete physical examination, including electrocardiograms, and a complete history taking, which is an art in itself.

"We like people to get a medical checkup before they get sick, not wait until there is an emergency," Mrs. McGlaston says.

The clinic is sponsored by the Newton Visiting Nurse Association. Mrs. McGlaston's "beat" as a visiting nurse was in Nonantum, tending to housebound patients needing daily care, so it was natural for the clinic to be located there.

Other factors were the absence of a neighborhood doctor (the closest is on Washington Street in Newtonville), and the interest of the Nonantum Christmas Party Association, which provides the storefront office at "token rent," Mrs. McGlaston said.

Neighborhood support comes also in the form of volunteer work by the Nonantum Women's Club, which puts up posters, distributes flyers, and does clerical work for the clinic.

On April 4 the Nursing Clinic will conduct an all-day clinic to screen people for diabetes. Appointments must be made for the simple 15-minute test, because instructions will be mailed out saying when and what to eat and when to come to the clinic.

The cost is a minimal $1.50.

At the last clinic, a blood pressure screening on Feb. 13, 89 people came, some of whom had not been to a doctor for more than 10 years. They came from all over the city.

Workshop on water pollution

The Charles River Watershed Association (CRWA) has entered into an agreement with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to conduct a one-day workshop for public participation under the new federal water-pollution law. The workshop is scheduled for Saturday, April 20, at Boston City Hall.

The new law, PL92-500, has several provisions for a citizen role in the implementation of the complex revision of earlier pollution-abatement legislation.

A three-day training institute was held in Boston recently for citizen leaders from New England, EPA's Region I. The April workshop is a follow-up to that intensive training session and is intended to carry the understanding of PL92-500 to a wider citizen audience.

CRWA's agreement with EPA is to cover the Boston Basin drainage area--the Charles, Mystic, and Neponset river basins and Boston Harbor. CRWA has extended the area of concern to include the contiguous Lake Cochituate watershed.

Planning for the workshop is being carried out with the assistance of the Mystic River and Lake Cochituate Watershed Associations and the Neponset Conservation Association. CRWA's director, Rita Barron, is general chairman.

While the public is expected to become involved in all stages of the new law, of particular concern to environmental groups is the monitoring of the new National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System which requires a permit for any discharge into the nation's water ways. This aspect of PL92-500 will be one major focus for citizens attending the April 30 workshop.

Mofenson calls for state assumption of court costs

Rep. David J. Mofenson (D-Newton) called this week for the assumption by the Commonwealth of those costs of operating the courts which are now borne by counties and municipalities and for the implementation of a unitary budgeting procedure for the judicial system.

"The present system of financing the Massachusetts courts is both illogical and inefficient," Mofenson said. "Administrative and fiscal responsibility is highly fragmented and widely dispersed. At least 16 governmental units including the Commonwealth, the City of Boston, the Suffolk County Courthouse Commission and the 13 counties outside Suffolk County deal financially with the courts, and at least 500 or 600 court and government employees prepare approximately 400 separate budgets."

Mofenson continued, "This tends to disperse responsibility for administration and policy, so that the court system cannot be operated effectively under uniform procedures and standards. Priorities for the whole court system cannot be formulated, alternatives cannot be compared, and resources cannot be economically allocated."

Mofenson said that 56 percent of the costs of the inefficient system are borne by the counties and 24 percent by the City of Boston, while only 20 percent is borne by the Commonwealth.

"Since county costs are assessed on member municipalities, court costs are largely financed by the regressive real estate property tax. Thus, the hard-pressed local property taxpayers pay for the administration of justice, a function which properly belongs to the state as a whole. This is one important approach to relieving individuals of excessive tax burdesn," Mofenson explained.

Mofenson cautioned that "simply by shifting the burden of court expenses to a wider circle of taxpayers will not, by itself, solve the administrative, budgetary, and fiscal problems facing the Massachusetts courts." Therefore, he says, any legislation providing for the state assumption of the cost of operating the courts should provide for the adoption of unitary budgeting procedures and controls within the judicial system.

Unitary budgeting is a comprehensive system in which all judicial costs are funded by the state through a single budget administered by the judicial branch. This would coordinate and, where necessary, centralize the responsibility for planning, channeling, and auditing all judicial expenditures in the state, and Mofenson said should bring more orderly planning and improved management to the courts of the Commonwealth.

"State financing helps maintain fiscal solvency of local governments, and state administration promotes the greatest efficiency," Mofenson concluded.

Training program for Newton police started

The Newton police in-service training program started recently.

Chief William F. Quinn stated, "Our program of continuing education is designed to increase the day to day efficiency of our department and improve our service to the community."

The chief added, "We feel our past efforts have been reasonably good but we are never satisfied with the status quo. The program encourages dialogue, and our officers contribute much to their own self improvement, efficiency and knowledge of law."

Captain John Bartinelli, director of training, has scheduled each officer for a one-half day session per week for 10 weeks. Subjects include: evidence and court procedures, first aid - water rescue - medic alert, Supreme Court decisions, traffic law, community relations, defensive weapons training.

Richard Steinberg, assistant district attorney from the office of District Attorney John Droney, was a guest speaker. He covered: evidence and court procedure, juvenile procedures, rights of appeal and motions to suppress.

Hospital curtailing visitors

Newton-Wellesley Hospital this week announced a temporary restriction on visiting privileges to all patients because of the prevalence of flu in the community.

Effective Monday, visiting privileges were being extended to members of the patient's immediate family only. All others are being asked to forego visiting privileges to minimize possible exposure of patients to flu virus

Just as soon as is deemed safe, full visiting privileges will be restored and announced, a spokesman said

Atomic energy lecture at local school April 11

A demonstration lecture on atomic energy and its uses, conducted by Wentworth College of Technology, will be presented at Newton Country Day School, Newton, on Thursday, April 11., The program, titled "This Atomic World," is designed to acquaint students with the basic principles of nuclear energy, its sources, and its role in agriculture, industry, medicine and research. The grant for conducting this lecture-demonstration program among high schools in Eastern Massachusetts was awarded to Wentworth College of Technology by Boston Edison Company.

Robert J. Phillipo will present the assembly program, which explains in student terms the structure of atoms and the operation of nuclear reactors as well as such concepts as radiation, fission, and fusion.

Phillipo has completed extensive training at Oak Ridge Associated Universities in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. He holds an Associate Degree in Electronic Engineering and a B.S. Degree in Engineering Technology from Wentworth College of Technology.

Specially designed electronic equipment is used during the 40-minute program to demonstrate the sources of radiation, how nuclear energy is harnessed to furnish electric power for cities, and the use of radioisotopes to aid in diagnosis and treatment of diseases and to learn more about life processes.

A blackboard talk or demonstration lecture to science classes, which deals more specifically with the topics of atomic structure, radioactivity, radiation biology, and careers in nuclear science, follows the assembly.

The program is operated in cooperation with Oak Ridge Associated Universities (ORAU) and the United States Atomic Energy Commission. ORAU is a non-profit educational and research corporation of 43 Southern colleges and universities, operating under contract with the Commission and other agencies. One of its major programs is operation of the AEC's nationwide exhibits program.

The "This Atomic World" program scheduled here is one of 18 similar units appearing daily at high schools throughout the country. They are part of an extensive traveling exhibit program designed to bring the public a greater understanding of atomic energy and its uses.

Life Care Center up for Board vote

By CYNTHIA BLACK
Of The Graphic Staff

The proposal for the 179-unit "Life Care Center" will go back to the Board of Aldermen Monday for an official vote.

The plan for the combination apartment house and nursing home for the elderly has been before the Land Use Committee for almost one year.

It was voted out of committee in time for the last meeting of the Board, but was sent back for further consideration and debated until 2 a.m. in Land Use Tuesday morning.

The center, to be built on Stanton Avenue in Auburndale, requires three separate votes of approval from the Board of Aldermen and the signature of the mayor before construction could begin.

If the approvals are granted, one resident in the immediate area intends to begin state and federal litigation to challenge the project.

Aldermen Monday will begin by voting to create zoning in Newton termed "Residence E," which will cover construction of life care centers. They will then have to approve changing this particular parcel of land from "Residence A" to "Residence I." Finally, they will have to grant a permissive use to developers Arthur Ullian and Dr. Edward Guiney for this life care center.

Land Use Committee members, in their five-hour discussion Monday, agreed to attach several new conditions to the permissive use request.

Among them are: limiting the total number of residents to 235 within 179 total units, establishing an escrow account to refund money to tenants who voluntarily leave the center, a minimum schedule of fee refunds that diminish at the rate of about 20 per cent for each year a tenant stays in the center, a minimum number of personnel, a request that monthly charges be increased only once a year, and preference for Newton elderly.

The committee voted 5-1 in favor of the permit with Alderman Joseph McDonnell casting the "no" vote and Alderman Terry Morris abstaining. It voted 6-1 to change the zone of the Stanton Avenue parcel. Again McDonnell voted "no." All members of the committee were present except Alderman Michael Lipof.

Lipof did, however, cast a "no" vote earlier in the evening on the creation of "Residence E" zoning. The vote on the zone creation was 6-1 with Morris abstaining.

Alderman Mark White and Alderwomen Susan Schur and Joan Saklad also attended the meeting.

Ald. Saklad was responsible for the incorporation of staff minimums in the permissive use and the limit on the number of residents.

Developer Ullian made a presentation to the committee describing eight other life care centers operating in other parts of the country and provided statistics on the number of units, number of residents, and size of staff of each.

One point that has frequently been raised by Land Use Chairman McDonnell is that other life care centers are operated by churches and other nonprofit institutions.

Asked about this again, Ullian stated that of the eight existing centers, seven are run by nonprofit organizations.

Picking his way through a sample residents' contract, McDonnell also pointed out that the center reserves the right to evict tenants, compel them to pay for a specified number of meals per day, and collect the monthly rents and frees even when the tenant is hospitalized and paying hospital or nursing care costs.

The developer also declined to estimate what his profit margin would be in this enterprise.

Attorney Joseph Weinfeld of 99 Stanton Ave., expected to bring suit if the project is approved, said Tuesday that once the mayor had approved affirmative aldermanic action, he would immediately seek a temporary restraining order to keep development from proceeding, followed by long litigation on the matter.

No local action on restaurant ratings

A recommendation to introduce a publicized rating system for restaurants based on improved inspection practices was given a no-action-necessary vote in the Legislation & Rules Committee this week.

The recommended ordinance amendment, proposed last year by then alderman Lois Pines, would follow similar proposed state legislation filed by Pines.

Citing Boston and New York among other communities that have published violations of health standards with the names of the establishments, Pines asked Chief Sanitation Officer, Harlan W. Kingsbury the procedure in Newton for making the information available to the public.

Kingsbury replied that the inspection sheet is available at each restaurant—if the operator wishes to show it.

Ald. Sidney Small objected to the whole line of discussion and said, "I worked with many health departments (Small is in the chemicals business), and I don't know of any cities or towns that do a better job."

Small went on to say that in his opinion the state should take the lead in establishing inspection standards.

Consumer advocate Rev. Robert McEwen commented to Small, "I'm a little distressed that you are shoving off so cavalierly the tendency to have local action instead of state and federal. If Newton isn't able to improve inspections, no city or town will be able to do it."

McEwen, supporting publicity about ratings, said, "Public notification by the press is viewed as a weapon to help health departments keep establishments clean when they aren't bad enough to close."

How public the inspection records are at this moment was not clear. At one point Kingsbury said the records are open to the public, but later said, "The public can see records with permission of the health commissioner.

In Small's opinion, such records are public, and in reply to Kingsbury's statement that he might not let everybody see the records, said, "A public record is a public record."

One definition of a public record is a record which by law is required to be kept.

Kingsbury described generally his own rating, which he established by bacteria (unidentified) count, as determined by swabs sent to a laboratory. Less than 100 is called excellent, 500 is good, more than 500 is unsatisfactory.

Other inspection techniques used are visual inspection and determining the temperature of the dishwasher water.

Kingsbury said he tries to get an inspector into every establishment twice every three months throughout the year.

Asked about closing a restaurant because of unsanitary conditions, Kingsbury said he had closed one this year after two inspections and an order to correct violations. "A restaurant can be closed immediately if there is a health danger," he said.

No restaurant in Newton has within recent years been found to be the cause of "food poisoning," Kingsbury said, although there have been such complaints. His department investigates all such complaints.

In other action the Legislation & Rules Committee voted no action necessary on a proposal to establish a special aldermanic committee on Public Health and Safety, which would have included the defunct Drug Committee, and voted 6-0 to hold action on a proposal to change the name of the Franchises & Licenses Committee to include "consumer affairs."

Members present felt that a committee on health and safety would be redundant and that adding "consumer affairs" to the other committee would lead the public to expect action that that committee is not prepared to undertake.

(McEwen is chairman of the mayor's advisory committee on consumer affairs, which is trying to get into consumer action.)

The L&R Committee voted 6-0 to deny a recommendation from Ald. Michael Lipof to establish an aldermanic committee on drug abuse.

Small dubious on money for hospital

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

Alderman Sidney Small, chairman of the Finance Committee, last week questioned putting $20,000 in budget reserve for the Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The money is sought by the hospital which is also hoping for an $8 million federal staffing grant.

Small stated the federal portion of the grant would decrease yearly and was concerned that "before long, we would be in full participation in running a psychiatric clinic." Small also cited the fact that a portion of Medfield State Hospital was closing and charged Newton-Wellesley with "researching a federal grant so 51 positions could be filled."

The hospital's Assistant Administrator Steven Baron stated that Small's "numbers were way out of line." He said the hospital is trying to absorb some personnel and have been meeting to work out employee relationships. He also pointed out that Medfield will maintain a portion of the hospital and need 60-70 people.

In response to questions about the grant, Baron stated that Federal contributions would drop over an eight-year period, but it would be state portion not the local portion which would increase yearly.

In the eighth year, the Federal contribution would be 30 percent and the state contribution, 70 percent.

Baron said the hospital was merely asking Newton for an "increase in funds already given" since the city already contributes $6,600 a year. He added that the additional funds were for "one year only." Weston and Wellesley are also being asked for funds.

Baron pointed out that the hospital and the community need a service "for people who can't pay for private psychiatric care."

He said the money would be used to hire two people. One would be a full time coordinator of partial hospitalization services for patients who don't require 24-hour care although they need to spend "significant parts of the day at the hospital. . . who can also work or go home on an individual basis." In a crisis the patient could be admitted to the hospital; however, the program is ultimately "less expensive for the patient since they spend less time in the hospital."

The second person needed is a psychiatric nurse or rehabilation counselor who would "coordinate patients through the system helping them back into the community." In the past Baron described these efforts as "fragmented."

Appeals Board hears plan for Staniford St. housing

By ELIZABETH McKINNON
Of The Graphic Staff

A developer seeking a comprehensive permit to build 140 units of housing under Chapter 774, the state's anti-snob-zoning law, was the only person recorded in favor of the project at a well-attended meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals Tuesday night.

The proposed housing would consist of 35 low-income units and 105 moderate-income units. The low-income apartments would be administered by the Newton Housing Authority.

An audience of about 50 people heard Lawrence Shubow, lawyer for developer John R. McIsaac of Newton, argue that "the time has come to do your duty by Chapter 774," a law that bypasses local zoning boards when a community has less than 10 percent of its housing or less than 1.5 percent of its buildable land devoted to low-income housing.

Shubow continued, "One way is to impose reasonable conditions (on developers); the other way is to say no and let

DSA awards

Is it necessary in Newton to be a politician in order to be a "distinguished citizen"

Last week, the Newton Jaycees bestowed the latest in a long line of Distinguished Service Awards to a Newton politician, making it their sixth recognition of a "politician" in the last six years.

Beginning in 1969, the award for community service known as the DSA has gone to: Ald. Thomas Concannon, State Representative H. James Shea, nobody in 1971, State Representatives David J. Mofenson and Paul Guzzi, State Representative Lois G. Pines, and, this year, Ald. Michael Lipof.

In many ways, a politician acknowledges his wish to serve the people by running for office in the first place. This does not automatically merit a pat on the back, or an award for what should be a foregone conclusion.

Newton's aldermen, state representatives, state senator and congressman receive recognition time and time again for their efforts and achievements. But what about the unsung residents who work long and hard hours for Newton, coaching, directing, fundraising, supervising, overseeing and participating, in our wide range of community commitments?

Granted, they don't do their work because they want to see their names in the paper; but, when we have it in our power to grant an award, to recognize community service, couldn't we try giving the award to someone other than an elected official?

Can't we thank anyone but an elected official?

Act or advise?—II

Some of the mayor's advisory committees that deal with public concerns, such as consumer affairs, environment, transportation, are asking, "What can we do?"

These particular committees are more involved with the public as individuals than are some of the truly advisory-only committees and those who have been given a specific question to answer for the mayor.

The chairmen of these three committees for example, are all activists in their own particular fields, and tend to draw other activists to them.

But they ask what can they do.

Instead of their being told by the mayor to "advise" him, let the mayor give them real tasks to perform that will get them and keep them in the public eye.

Let them be "advised" by the mayor and then turned loose to do their best.

A whole host of moving pleasures

By CYNTHIA BLACK

Sunday, I realized I own six perfectly matched, unblemished, untouched shrimp dishes, a thoroughly tarnished, unrecognizable silver service for four, a jar of olives now old enough to talk, and a Wisconsin driver's license that expired two years ago.

I am, in other words, experiencing the myriad joys of moving.

This is my third move in the past four years, and I was under the impression that Ive been judiciously tossing out unnecessary items all this time.

I was under that impression, that is, until I started packing Sunday.

"All right," I said to myself at 10 a.m., "so I'll own the only set of completely black silver in Newton," and into a box it went.

Hours and boxes and stacks of newspapers later, when I go to the top shelf and the shrimp dishes, I was forced to ask myself WHY I seem to have all of these things that I haven't seen personally since the last time I moved.

I've moved three times, but I was still stunned to discover eight glass dessert plates in my possession now for four years, cloudy, I admit. Where were they when I needed them? Why didn't I know I had them.

Completely Black

I'm determined to have eight people in for dessert next week. What else can I do?

I had a recipe for a special crabmeat salad, taken from the inside of a package of frozencrabmeat that cost $1.59 for eight ounces. I almost saved it just to prove to an unbelieving nation that's what crabmeat used to cost. How about my personal, unautographed copy of that best selling paperback, "The United States in 1800"? Am I about to be overwhelmed with curiosity on this subject? Will I ever reread a letter written by my mother in 1971? Will Wisconsin ever demand to see the title for my 1965 Rambler that I had in 1970 that expired in 1971?

"I'll never move again," I found myself grumbling as the sun sunk slowly into the west.

Tuesday, I undertook the ritual of discontining electricity and gas service.

First, Boston Edison. I got the recorded message that says all the phone lines are busy, hang on and someone will get to you eventually. Nothing new, except the recorder appeared to get stuck and the tape delivered its message 11 times before a real person got on the phone.

Then, Commonwealth Gas, the firm that has devised a new calling system to facilitate matters for its customers.

Call an "800" number, the receptionist told me; that's the central number for service.

I called and got an intercept operator who asked me what number I was calling from and then abandoned me. I called back and the phone rang 25 times.

I checked and discovered that the phone company claims there is no such number. I called Commonwealth Gas at its Boston number again and the receptionist volunteered to put me through to the "800" number herself.

The phone rang 33 times, punctuated by several Boston attempts to raise the phantom service operator. Finally, contact was made.

"Hello," this operator said five times before I screamed loud enough for her to hear me.

At least she didn't hang up.

That's it.

See you Saturday in Newton.

Liberal caucus

A hot day in Framingham Town Hall

By ELIZABETH McKINNON

There I was, slaving away at a hot caucus all day Saturday, and what were you doing?

The other 3309 people crammed into Framingham Town Hall by voting time seemed to have plenty of enthusiasm left, but by then I was disillusioned, hungry, and having a caffeine fit.

But as both a voter and an observer, I had come more or less undecided. But John Businger of Brookline seemed bland, Newton's Paul Guzzi said nothing startingly new, Larry DiCara of Boston made a long and boring speech in the present-tense style of John F. Kennedy and never did get around to what he would do as secretary of state.

It didn't get any better when candidates for attorney general spoke, with George Sacco telling us what he has done, not what he would do, and S. Lester Ralph . . . well, S. Lester Ralph.

What I remember, when I got my mind on whatever it was he was saying, was pretty good, I think. S. Lester Ralph should not be allowed to speak for more than three consecutive minutes.

After a couple of minor entries, including one I could swear never used a work longer than one syllable, the star was presented—Edward Harrington of Needham (no relation to out Peter, who was campaigning for his namesake).

Newton's official Liberal introducer, Gordon Martin, read yet another endorsement from former, former attorney general Ramsey Clark (listen my children, and I will explain who Ramsey Clark was), whose endorsements will someday be worth 17 cents—each.

Harrington woke everybody up, all right. His stule was so loud and confident I only remember his one good line, which all the papers I have seen so far ruined by leaving the end off: "You don't have to be a politician to be attorney general, and to be a good attorney general you must not be a politician."

Lunch break, and the food stores in Framingham missed the boat. Premade sandwiches anywhere. No street vendors. Two thousand people looking for something to eat in 20 minutes. Two dry rolls from a bakery. no coffee.

In the hold beneath Town Hall, the voting was to start for Newton and half the other delegations. Directions were being yelled through an inoperative PA system, then a feeble bullhorn.

Newton's Ward 5 location was standing in a corner, in the aisle, in everybody else's way. Vote. No, don't vote. More votes than people. No, OK. No smoking. Alderman Alan Barkin, in the nearby Ward 8 group, making sure.

On the first vote, which took something like two hours to tally (no smoking, no coffee), DiCara had 44 per cent, Guzzi 39.7, and Businger, to everybody's surprise, only 11 per cent.

Harrington was clearly going to get the endorsement for attorney general.

Bill Carmen was saying that Guzzi, even with Businger's votes, would be in a standoff with DiCara, because by the last vote neither could bet the 60 per cent required for endorsement.

But you all know how it came out—Guzzi and Harrington. We all thought it would come out that way, too.

Political Highlights

Would oust legislators for poor attendance

A variety of proposals for changes in the Massachusetts Constitution are pending before the State Legislature for consideration during the legislative session now in progress.

In order to become effective, they must be approved by two Legislatures and then be okayed by the people. The earliest any of them could go into operation would be when the vote is certified after the 1976 Presidential and state election.

One suggested constitutional revision, which probably has little chance of adoption, would oust from office any legislator who, for reasons other than illness, misses more than 40 per cent of the rollcalls in any one year.

Most members of the State Senate and House of Representatives are conscientious and devote their full time to their lawmaking duties while those two branches of the Legislature are in session.

A few, however, attend college or law school or have full-time jobs and are absent much of the time from the legislative sessions, actually neglecting the duties they are supposed to perform.

It is those legislators at whom the constitutional change proposed by Representative Howard C. Cahoon, Jr., of Harwich is aimed. Cahoon is disturbed by the poor attendance records of some of his colleagues.

Another suggested constitutional revision would limit the six State Constitutional officers—the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, State Treasurer, State Auditor and Secretary of State—to two consecutive four-year terms in the same office.

That proposal is sponsored by 10 Republican Representatives headed by House Minority Leader Francis W. Hatch, Jr., of Beverly. Conceivably, it could be enacted in time to prevent Governor Francis W. Sargent and Lieutenant Governor Donald Dwight from seeking reelection in 1978 if they win another term next November.

However, the measure obviously is aimed at the Democratic State Treasurer, State Auditor and Secretary of State who, once they are elected to those offices, usually hold the positions as long as they wish unless they seek promotion to higher office.

It is doubtful that Hatch and his nine colleagues will be able to muster much Democratic support for that proposal.

Incidentally, most Governors and Attorneys General do not hold those offices for more than eight consecutive years.

If Governor Sargent is reelected next November and remains in office for his full four-year term, he will become the first person in Massachusetts history to serve 10 consecutive years in the Governorship.

Actually, the longest unbroken service in the Governorship in modern history up to now was the six-year stint by Leverett Saltonstall, starting with his election in 1938 and running through most of the wartime period. The four-year term for Governors started only in 1966.

John A. Volpe also served six years in the Governorship, but his service was interrupted by a two-year stretch out of office as a result of his surprise defeat by Endicott Peabody. Volpe, of course, resigned midway through his final term and turned the gubernatorial reins over to Francis Sargent.

Eleven different constitutional amendment proposals call for the abolition of the Governor's Council and the transfer of its power of approving judicial appointments.

Eight measures would revise the State Constitution so that special panels would be created to screen potential judicial appointees and recommend the retirement or removal of judges whose performance was considered faulty.

One recommendation filed jointly by several legislators would require that all judges be lawyers. That would prevent a situation such as developed when former Judge Jerome P. Troy was disbarred but waged a fight to retain his judicial post.

Republican State Senator John M. Quinlan of Norwood and GOP Representative Harrison Chadwick of Winchester are urging a change in the State Constitution which would merge the Massachusetts House of Representatives and State Senate into a unicameral or single-chamber legislature. That would drastically revise our system of state government. It has scant chance of adoption.

Tree story whole story?

Editor, Newton Graphic

Last Thursday, March 21, the Newton Graphic printed an article on page 1 concerning the Chestnut Street tree controversy.

Although the paper went to press five days after the incident, no one from the Graphic contacted me to determine the accuracy of the story even though it principally concerned my actions.

I cherish my reputation in the community and am proud of the concern I have consistently shown for the rights of individuals — and that was what was involved in this controversy.

The first error in your story concerns the various opinions on the condition of the tree. There is no basis for the statement that the tree "has been recommended for removal for safety reasons by four studies."

The opinion attributed to me is not mine, but rather that of the nationally recognized F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Company, which states, "In conclusion, the life of this tree may be good for at least another 10 years and there is very little danger to passersby but the trunk will always present a problem to large trucks and plows which definitely accelerated its decline by careless operation."

Secondly, the reporter should have known from my letter to the Graphic of February 28 that legal action had been taken last summer and fall to prevent the cutting of this and seven other Chestnut Street trees after protests by over 150 West Newton residents at a hearing last summer. When the city first came to cut down the tree on Feb. 22, they ignored the agreement between the residents and the city.

Since that time I sent a telegram to the mayor, requesting a cutting delay. In addition, at my own expense, I obtained and presented to the mayor an expert opinion confirming the vitality of the tree. No opportunity was provided to me by the city to assess the merits of the varying opinions. On the day of the most recent incident, after asking the city workmen to stop, I immediately twice called the Newton police telling them that a law was being violated by the cutting of the tree. Their strongest response was that they would look into it, but they gave no indication that they would take any immediate action to prevent the cutting.

I then called the vice president of the Board of Aldermen, who was at work. Since the City Hall offices were not yet open, I tried to call various parties to the Superior Court injunction which enjoined the city from cutting this tree and found only one at home who said he would come right over.

When he came over, I was dismayed that he had a gun. As background, it should be known that personally I have never owned a gun, have never shot a pistol, have consistently supported strong gun control legislation, and will not allow my children to have toy guns in our home.

In conclusion, I do not know of any rational feasible milder alternatives available to me which would have postponed the cutting down of this tree. I deplore the city's violation of its responsibilities to its residents and am outraged that they find it necessary to take such precipitous action.

Restore Veteran's Day

To the Editor:

Great effort through the press is being made to draw the attention to the nearness of our Bicentennial celebration and the great historical achievements of Massachusetts patriots in the formative days of our nation.

Contrary to this effort to place emphasis on historical significance, another group opposes the restoration of Veterans' Day to its date of true historical significance — November 11.

In this atmosphere, the effort by big business and labor opposes the restoration of November 11 as Veterans' Day.

Thirty-six states, including all the New England States and New York, have voted to restore the historical significance of November 11 as Veterans' Day, thus saying by this act that the restoration of Veterans' Day to November 11 is paramount to the interest of any other pressure groups.

In 1918, World War I firing ceased on the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month. Never was number 11 so firmly stamped in history. After that, two other wars, World War II and Korea ended.

Because of pressure against adding two more holidays, in 1953 the name of ARMISTICE DAY was changed to VETERANS' DAY with the declared intent of making November 11 stand symbolically for the celebration marking the end of these savage wars. Vietnam may now be added to this list. There was no dollar sign in front of these 11's.

Thirty years of relentless pressure resulted in capitulating to the long weekends. In the juggling, Veterans' Day was moved to a day in October, completely without significance. Thus, the concern for the "almighty buck" and passion for long weekends, trampled significance, history and meaning.

If we are to ignore V. E. Day, V. J. Day, the Korean ceasefire, and the Vietnam involvement, we ask what is wrong with setting aside 11th day of the 11th month as the historically significant day to lump together the symbolic meaning of the end of these wars. What the hell war ever ended on the fourth Monday in October? National and state resolutions have mandated the restoration of November 11 as the day of true historical observance of Veterans' Day.

The American Legion marches shoulder–to-shoulder with the V.F.W., D.A.V., AMvets, Marine Corp League, and most significantly, the Veterans of World War I and the auxiliaries of all these fine veteran organizations in this cause. In the interest of the Bicentennial celebration historical spirit, it is urged that Veterans' Day, because of the foregoing facts, be mandated to be observed on November the 11th and no other day.

Committed to schools

To the Editor:

Newton Alderman Edward Richmond has called for a community discussion on the ramifications of the declining number of students in Newton public schools.

He questioned the need to fund capital improvements to various schools in light of this trend and asked Newton Citizens for Education to sponsor such a meeting. The executive board of our organization concurs.

On Tuesday, May 7, NCE will hold an open forum on the subject, "Declining School Enrollment — Asset or Liability?"

Spokesmen for the school administration, city government, and special interest groups will present their points of view and together we shall explore possible solutions. Our publication, "The Forum," will provide background data pertinent to the discussion.

If there is one thing Newton citizens take pride in, it is the strength of our educational system. We often disagree on the means to achieve specific goals, but we remain committed to good schools and are willing to pay for them. NCE hopes this scheduled meeting will help the community achieve a consensus.

Charles needs cleaning

Dear Editor:

Once again, the Charles River Watershed Association is disappointed not to see notice in the Newton Graphic of the upcoming Charles River Watershed Clean-up scheduled for Saturday, May 11.

While it is true that this announcement may appear somewhat premature in March, it is now that community leaders and groups must mark their calendars, marshall their members, and secure the permission of boards of directors and parents and teachers for various levels of involvement.

Last year was the first year that CRWA coordinated the clean-up which was initiated in 1970 by the MDC. Last year also was Newton's worst turn-out because early newspaper announcement was not carried.

Despite flyer distribution and some direct mailings, it is to our local newspapers that we turn for community coverage. Without adequate advance notice and preparation time, Newton's 11.8 mile section of the Charles River will not get the attention it needs and that the community wants to give.

John Bliss (244-6495) is the CRWA coordinator of the clean-up for Newton and we urge all interested in helping on May 11th to call him, or to call CRWA directly at 527-2799 for information.

Mrs. Rita Barron
Executive Director

Thank you

Dear Editor,

Just a short note to thank you so much for allowing us to put notices of our fund raising BOUND FOR GLORY in the Newton Graphic.

I am sure your publicity contributed to our overflowing house.

We actually had to turn people away.

Again, our many thanks for your kindness.

Spare us the labels

To the Editor:

Most of us have skeletons in the closets of our lives: events that are unpleasant to recall and would be uncomfortable if revealed. Fortunately, these are often easily concealed and eventually forgiven and forgotten.

Unfortunately, such is not the case for the man or woman who has been imprisoned. There are few appellations so adhesive as that of "ex-convict" and the bearer — one who has painfully paid his or her "debt to society" — is invariably subjected to a life sentence of labelling.

This brutal branding is devestatingly destructive: making it almost impossible for society to forgive and for the individual to forget an offense that may have happened many years ago.

The damaging effects of this all-too-frequent practice can be summarized by simply stating that it contributes to a higher rate of recidivism.

But the true tragedy is in the pain caused people who are quietly and conscientiously rebuilding their lives and — equally important — the damage that could be done to potential victims if such a person gives up the struggle for social acceptance and reverts to crime.

Those who carelessly or callously aim the "ex-offender" barb should pause to examine the causes and potential consequences of their verbal target practice.

"Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

"Heal a Nation" program planned by United Church

Two part-time staff persons have been employed by the Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ to work in the areas of mission promotion and the pain left over from the Vietnam war.

They are Mrs. Lynda Blake, who has been engaged to be a consultant in mission interpretation, education and promotion, and Ronald C. McKinstry, who provides staff services for a program called "To Heal A Nation" which was approved by the conference meeting last November.

Mrs. Blake, who lives in Newton, is a veteran career United Church of Christ missionary. With her husband Everett, she was a missionary in Turkey for 43 years.

She will provide leadership in the promotion and interpretation of missions throughout the conference and will work with the Church and Mission Committee.

Mrs. Blake first went to Turkey in 1928. She began teaching at the American Collegiate Institute in Izmir in 1942 and in 1948 she was appointed principal of the school.

She is a graduate of Wellesley College, holds a master of arts degree from the Pacific School of Religion, Berkeley, Calif.; a master of education degree from Boston University, and she also has received an honorary doctor of humanities degree from Doane College, Crete, Neb.

McKinstry, a native of Barre, Mass., heads a program which has as its purpose "to heal the pain caused by the Vietnam war" and experienced by the returning veterans, the draft evaders and the families of both of these.

In his work, McKinstry will attempt to minister to persons who have been "wounded spiritually, physically and psychologically" by the war, and to fulfill what the program's proposal called "the theological and biblical mandate for the church to bring healing to this pain."

He will be attempting to identify persons who have been hurt by war, and to assist local congregations and pastors to minister to these persons.

McKinstry is a second year student at the Boston University School of THeology, and also works as a youth minister at the United Methodist CHurrch in Oxford, Mass. He is a graduate of Morningside College in Sioux City, Iowa.

Open House at M.I.T. April 13

The SST may be dead, but the European Concorde isn't, and people will have a chance to fly it—by simulation—at the student-run Open House at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Saturday, April 13.

The Concorde simulation, viewing an ant's eye magnified 10,0000 times, and a model of a levitated high speed vehicle are but three of hundreds of displays and experiments to acquaint as many people as possible with what goes on at M.I.T.

Also—for the first time—the television studio of the Center for Advanced Engineering Study will be open for visitors to see how television is made. Through a combination microwave-cable link, visitors will be able to converse on television with someone on the Harvard television studio. Video tape programs for advanced engineering self-study also will be shown.

Open House will be held throughout the institute from noon to 5 p.m., with additional lectures scheduled in the evening. Nearly all of M.I.T.'s academic departments and interdisciplinary laboratoories and centers are expected to participate.

The event is being organized by a 20-member student committee, but eventually will involve several hundred students who will serve as demonstrators and guides. It is held every other year and has attracted up tc 30,000 people.

Chairman of Open House for 1974 is C. Robert Kenley, a junior in management from Noblesville, Ind.

"Several departments and centers have already registered their programs in some detail," Kenley said. "Some others are still developing their plans and some have such abundance that they haven't pinned down what they will be doing. However, we expect to have something to interest everyone at Open House."

VA information

Special counseling to guide veterans through the maze of problems associated with buying homes is now being provided by the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Atlanta, one of 13 offices to initiate this service in the past two years. VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson said the program will be extended to all areas that have as many as 25,000 veterans from minority groups.

Johnson said the counseling service, begun as a pilot project in Los Angeles and Baltimore, is available now in Denver, Chicago, Detroit, Newark, Cleveland, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Fla., Houston, St. Louis and San Francisco.

The administrator stated that counseling "is to help minority persons use the GI loan program for home ownership while adequately meeting responsibilities both as home buyers and as borrowers on mortgage loans."

Covered in the counseling service are such topics as availability of homes, budgeting and ability to meet costs and maintenance, and access to jobs, transportation, shopping centers, etc.

Johnson pointed out that "While counseling is aimed primarily at potential minority home buyers because they, generally, face greater obstacles in the home-buying market, any eligible veteran or person may participate."

Veterans interested in home counseling are urged to contact regional VA offices where the service is provided. Those interested in general information on the GI loan program should contact any VA office, or representative of local veteran service organizations, the VA official added.

Conservation Commission against Staniford St. plan

By ELEANOR SIEGEL

A battle is shaping up between the Conservation Commission and developers John R. and Joseph H. McIsaac over one of the last pieces of undeveloped land on the north side of Newton.

The site, over 10 acres on Staniford Street in Auburndale is one which the commission asked the mayor on Feb. 21 to take by eminent domain to preserve for recreation, park and flood plain resources.

Their plan was jolted when the developers appeared at a commission meeting Wednesday, March 21, with plans for 140 air-conditioned townhouses and garden apartments on the Staniford Street site. The units are intended for low-moderate income housing with 35 apartments to be leased to the Newton Housing Authority for subsidized housing.

The McIsaac's last effort to change the zoning and build housing failed due to what the developers term "unreasonable opposition by abutters who didn't want the housing."

Attorney for the developer, Lawrence Shubow, warned commissioners that Newton was "not in compliance with anti-snob zoning laws and that there "are those who have an interest in seeing Newton brought into compliance."

The law sets up three percentage scales for low-income housing building and Newton does not meet the requirements.

If the zoning board turns down the developer's request, Helen Heyn, secretary to the Commission feels the developer will challenge the ruling and the case will go to court.

Meanwhile, the commissioners are rolling up their sleeves for what chairman, Dennis Ditelberg, describes as their "toughest battle" since the developers have "shifted the burden onto the commission" to show why the land should be saved. Sources say the problem is complicated by the fact "there is an overwhelming need for low-income housing in Newton."

One point the commissioners expect to raise is that the "North end is in sore need of open space." Right now, this parcel links West Newton playground and Auburndale Park.

Commissioner Debra Howard said she saw the parcel as a possible "future corridor between Staniford Street and Norumbega." Commissioner Heyn says the parcel is a "water storage retention area vital to maintain so the next flood doesn't inundate the area."

Both Commissioners Howard and Heyn point out that if the land were taken by eminent domain, the commission "Would not onject to the Planning Department's suggestion that 1.77 acres be left for developing housing.

When Frank Quinn, executive director of the NHA heard of McIsaac's plan, he asked "why would they want to build on swamp?"

Quinn agreed with the Planning Department that the high part of the site seemed more "logical" for development and said the NHA would only be interested if the developer could build "safe, sanitary, suitable housing for our people."

Housing-

others (the state) impose the conditions."

McIsaac's firm, Auburndale Gardens, proposes to build 32 attached townhouses and 108 garden apartments on a 10-acre tract off Staniford street, Auburndale. Variances from present zoning requirements include a zone change from Residence C to Residence D district, a reduction in frontage feet per unit, a reduction in parking spaces, and no site plan approval by the Board of Aldermen.

If the Zoning Board of Appeals refuses the variances under the comprehensive permit, the developer may go to the state Housing Appeals Committee for hearings and an eventual ruling on whether the city must grant the permit.

Shubow said the site has received financing approval from the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency and the plans for the eight-building development have been "informally approved" by MHFA.

Opposition to the proposed development was led off by Newton's planning director, Charles Thomas, who called the proposal "unacceptable," and said the city should acquire most of the land for conservation use and set aside the Staniford Street side for low-income housing.

The Conservation Commission, which has the land high on its priority list for acquisition because it consists largely of wetlands, is adjacent too the Charles River, and abuts Auburndale Park, was represented by Helen Heyn, who hoped for "immediate action" by the Board of Aldermen and the mayor to acquire the land.

The Conservation Commission would not object to housing on the Staniford Street side, she said, but hopes that the city will acquire the "major portion" for conservation.

The question of what would be built in the flood plain—Shubow contended that none of the housing would occupy flood-plain land—concerned many who spoke in opposition.

The effects of accelerated runoff of rains from paved areas into the Charles River were brought up by Newton Conservators President Garrison Wilkes and by rita Barron, director of the Charles River Watershed Association.

Richard McGrath and David Jackson, aldermen representing the Auburndale area, were bothered by potential traffic and parking problems.

Heinz Aschkenasi of Kaposia street feared that "low-income" has become a euphemism for slums.

Still before the Board of Aldermen is an amendment to the zoning ordinances to allow cluster zoning, a concept allowing a greater density than usual on one portion of a large piece of land, provided that the overall coverage of the land is not greater than would be allowed under the regulations for the zone.

A development like that being proposed might have qualified under cluster zoning.

The Zoning Board of Appeals will meet again on Tuesday, April 2, to discuss the petition further.

John Tutungian of West Newton has been named to the Dean's list for the first semester of the new Bunker Hill Community College, Charlestown.

Tree-

Obermayer called Robbins, who lives nearby and Robbins came to the scane.

Obermayer was originally scheduled to appear in Newton District Court on March 26 on the assault charge, but said that his lawyer, David R. Pokross of Belmont had obtained a postponement until April 4.

The cutting of the tree was the result of an "operational mixup," getting the Forestry Department to the scene a day earlier than scheduled, according to Director of Public Works Richard Dudman.

Dudman said he had expected to hear from Obermayer and to discuss the removal of the tree with him on March 14, and the tree workers had arrived one day too early.

The city wants to remove the tree because it is diseased and damaged and in the opinion of city tree consultants should be removed for safety reasons.

Obermayer has obtained a contrary opinion from another tree specialist saying that there are 10 years of life left in the tree, although admitting that there is some damage to the trunk.

Obermayer has maintained that there should be a public hearing on the removal of the tree, at which testimony as to the tree's health could be presented.

Meanwhile, Obermayer has obtained a restraining order against the city ordering that no tree on Chestnut Street be cut down before a hearing scheduled for 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, April 2 in Middlesex Superior Court.

Presentation

A check for $8,000, the proceeds of the Newton-Wellesley Hospital Aid Associaton's Party day was presented recently to William S. Brines, hospital administrative vice president, by Mrs. Hugh M. Tomb (right) and Ms. Charles A. Higgins Jr. (left). The sum was the largest ever raised in this annual event.

Health-

Of the people attending, 13 were found to have very high blood pressure and eight had marginal readings. Twenty-four had no physician.

The 13 people with dangerously high blood pressure were referred immediately to their physician and the physician was notified.

Mrs. McGlaston has found that much of her clinic day is spent in health counseling. For example, people drop in to talk with her about problems with alcohol or children who are involved in drug abuse.

Two 10-year-olds came in to ask questions about menstruation. Although there is an abundance of literature available at the clinic on this and most health subjects, Mrs. McGlaston asked the girls' phone numbers, then called their parents to see whether there was any objection to her discussing the question. (One mother objected.)

A recently retired woman came into talk about a week-long headache that she attributed too her retirement, then after talking decided that what she really wanted was to get a job.

There are numerous questions about diet and general health.

One area of health so far shunned by visitors is the general one of sex education, abortion and birth control, but Mrs. McGlaston has informative pamphlets on these subjects, as well as services to which she can refer clients.

There has been one inquiry about venereal disease.

There is no suggestion that the clinic should substitute for regular medical care, but in cases where, for any of many reasons, there is no regular attention sought, the clinic can be the first step.

People avoid doctors for many reasons, not the least of which is the frequent two-hour wait in the doctor's office for what may seem like a trivial complaint. Many patients feel as if they are imposing on the doctor's time, and busy doctors often don't dispel this idea.

Others will not go to a doctor because they are afraid, still others because they cannot afford the fee.

But, says Mrs. McGlaston, "People are concerned about their health and want to know more about it."

Maybe a $5 visit to the clinic will reassure some people, and will break the ice for some, so that they will know their general health status before going to a doctor.

For a few clients a visit to the clinic and a talk with Mrs. McGlaston will convince them that they are ill enough to being regular doctor visits.

The clinic uses a referral list from Newton-Wellesley Hospital to give a client a choice of doctors if there is no family physician.

Mrs. McGlaston emphasizes that no treatment is given at the clinic, and that anyone requiring medication or further evaluation is always referred to a physician.

Besides the day-to-day operation and special clinics, the Silver Lake Family Nursing Health Center has conducted seminars on self-examination of the breasts for signs of breast cancer and on diet for diabetics.

Funded for a year by fees, the Newton Visiting Nurses Association through trusts and gifts, and the United Fund, for a total budget of around $15,000, the Family Nursing Health Center has a provisional life of one year, with the possibility of future life depending on the volume of clients and the money available.

The clinic is open Monday through Friday, 1-4 p.m. The phone number is 965-5990.

Muther discusses reorganization

Expressing concern that a proposal for a new chief financial officer could reduce the present relative independence of the city's treasurer and comptroller, the Newton Taxpayers' association has requested the Aldermen to hold up budget approval of the position at least until the powers and duties of the office are further clarified.

The Association recommends that an earlier proposal, for an administrative official to be in charge of devising and developing procedures and evaluating performance under the program-performance budget, be considered, and, if the job is found to be necessary, to use a title more accurately describing those functions.

"Our directors disagree with the recommendation made in the Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co. management study, that Newton's treasurers and comptrollers be moved from the jurisdiction of the Boards of Aldermen and placed under the mayor's," said Lorenz F. Muther, Jr., the Association's executive director.

"Although bringing finance together with administration under the chief executive can be good practice in private business, we do not agree that it is necessarily best in government. This is particularly true under strong-mayor charters such as Newton's where the mayors already have considerable powers and means of persuasion," Muther continued.

"We think it better, and, judged by the experience of other governments where finance officers have had to be pliant if not compliant under the influence of strong chief executives, we think it safer for the future to maintain Newton's existing check and balance arrangement," he said.

"Therefore, we do not think the implication, that the Aldermen may now agree with PMM&CO.'s recommended shift in authority over the treasurers and comptrollers, should be allowed to arise by way of the budget," Muther concluded.

Dinner meeting

The annual dinner meeting of the board of directors of the Friends of the Jackson Homestead will be held Thursday evening, April 4, at the Pillar House in Newton, it was announced recently by Harry L. Walen, president of the group.

Innovations In Sound

You've probably never thought of your car as an ideal stereo listening studio. Well, it is! The minute you sit in your stereo equipped auto, you're blanketed in thrilling sound. You'll witness an entirely new perspective in stereo listening; a richness in stereophony and realism of sound reproduction that has never before been possible Now, with stereo tape cartridges, whether you listen in your car, home, boat, plane or trailer you enjoy an unparalleled sound sensation crisp clarity and maximum fidelity, superior craftsmanship and a wealth of music for every taste from Broadway to The Beatles, from current hits to classical.

Stereo cartridges are carefully engineered to afford maximum reliability and convenience of operation

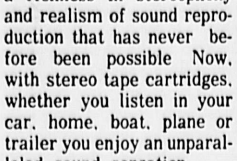
1 You never have to thread or even touch the tape.

2. You may change from one stereo program to another with the press of a button

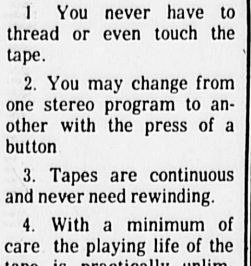
3. Tapes are continuous and never need rewinding.

4. With a minimum of care the playing life of the tape is practically unlimited

What is four-track and eight-track stereo tape? Within the ¼-inch tape width, music is recorded on four or eight parallel tracks which run the length of the tape Two tracks play simultaneously and produce true stereo sound Standard tapes provide up to 40 minutes of continuous music. Twin cartridges up to 80 minutes.



How does a tape cartridge work? Stereo cartridges contain a tape in a continuous loop, which simply means that the tape runs from the center of the spool and is returned to the outer lap of the reel. Thus, never needs rewinding. Inserting the cartridge into the tape playback unit is probably as easy as replacing your cigarette lighter in the dash.



Seeing is believing, however, and perhaps the least expensive method for you to experience the unusual convenience engineered into a stereo tape is to visit a dealer and ask for a demonstration.

Realizing that stereo tapes are here to stay, Lechmere Sales of Cambridge and Dedham is now compiling substantial stocks. This foresighted record dealer and department store devoted exclusively to providing the consumer with even a larger and more complete musical selection than previously realized with the more traditional record album departments.

Long recognized as a retailing leader and innovator, Lechmere now features perhaps the largest selection of stereo tape cartridges in New England. It's a certainty that a visit to either Lechmere in Cambridge or Dedham will prove a most rewarding musical experience

Information Please

This is the reader's column. If you have a question or a recipe to share with other readers, please write to: Information, Please, Transcript Newspapers, 420 Washington Street, Dedham, Mass. 02026.

Question: I've promised my children that I would bake a gingerbread and serve it with whipped cream, and frankly I though I'd save time and just bake a box-type gingerbread mix. Well, it was a flop because it was not light and tender as I recall gingerbread. Can you publish a really good one to be made from scratch? I really do enjoy your columns. Thanks. — Mrs. A. N., Norwood

Answer: I hate to say "I told you so," but truly, baking from scratch does not take longer (except for some quick measuring) and the expense is no greater — not only that, the results are much better! I do hope that you and your family will pile a cloud of whipped cream on top of a square of warm, fragrant gingerbread and savor every crumb!

OLD FASHIONED GINGERBREAD

- ½ cup shortening
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 cup Grandma's Unsulphured Molasses
- 2 eggs
- 2½ cups all purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon ground cloves (optional)
- 1 cup hot water

Cream shortening with sugar. Blend in molasses. Beat in eggs, one at a time. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder, baking soda and spices. Add to creamed mixture alternately with hot water. Turn into a greased 9 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Bake in 350 degree oven for 40 minutes. Cool slightly. Yield: 9-12 servings.

Mrs. T. F., Walpole writes: I must share with you and the people who read the column this unusual recipe. I call it a Baked Carrot Ring — it is so tasty and when it is served (with canned green peas in the center) the dish is just beautiful. I don't consider it a company dish though it's pretty enough; I make it quite often for my family because they just love it!

Our thanks, Mrs. T. F. — the ring is all you claim it to be!

BAKED CARROT RING

- ½ cup brown sugar
- ½ cup vegetable shortening
- 3 eggs, separated
- 1½ cups carrots, grated
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon cold water
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup flour
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon nutmeg

Cream sugar and shortening. Blend in egg yolks, carrots, lemon juice and water. Mix in sifted dry ingredients. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into batter. Pour into greased 6 cup ring mold. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 40 minutes. Serve with peas in the center of ring if desired. Serves 8.

Question: Ever since I was very little, I've considered Kasha and Bows (groats and pasta shaped bow-like) a winter treat whenever we had meat for dinner. Recently, however, I tried varying the Kasha — making it with onions, but the results were not good. Can you suggest a variation please? — Mrs. N. Y., Chestnut Hill

Answer: Kasha (buckwheat groats) is a cereal well known in Russia. Served as a side dish with meats, it has a nutty flavor that is quite pleasant. See what you think of this method of preparation:

KASHA WITH MUSHROOMS

- One-third cup margarine
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- 2 cups kasha
- 4 cups hot chicken broth or water
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup sliced mushrooms, sauteed in margarine

Melt margarine; add onion and green pepper and saute lightly for 5 minutes. Add kasha and mix thoroughly. Transfer to casserole. Add hot broth. Season. Cover, and bake in preheated 325 degree oven for 1 hour. Check every 15 minutes to see if more liquid is needed. Add sauteed mushrooms; bake 10 minutes longer. Serves 6.

Question: I have a problem. I am going to have dinner guests and because my guests attend many gatherings, I want my main dish to be a little different — and I was told that Moussaka would be ideal main dish, except that I have never prepared it and I'm afraid to take the chance. I also need a very easy, light dessert. I would be grateful for your help. — Mrs. E. M. I., Dedham

Answer: First of all, it's not a good idea to prepare a dish for your guests before you've done a trial run on it yourself. I would suggest you make your Moussaka for your family — they're bound to like it — and then, you're all set. As for dessert — it's a breeze!

MOUSSAKA

- 2 pounds ground lean lamb
- 1 eggplant (2½ pounds)
- 1 onion, chopped
- 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon garlic powder
- 2 cans (6 oz. size) tomato paste
- 1 container (6 oz.) yoghurt
- 4 egg yolks
- ½ cup flour

Peel and cut eggplant into ½-inch slices. Salt and set aside for 1 hour. Pour off collected liquid. Saute chopped onion in 1 tablespoon oil. Add lamb, salt, pepper, garlic and tomato paste. Cook until meat is slightly brown. Put some oil in another skillet. Dip eggplant slices in flour and brown on both sides. In large casserole, arrange alternate layers of eggplant and meat mixture, finishing with eggplant. Bake uncovered at 350 degrees for about 1 hour. Blend yoghurt, egg yolks and flour and mix well. Pour over top of casserole and bake 15 minutes more or until brown. Serves 8.

EASY COFFEE CREAM

- ½ pound marshmallows
- ½ cup strong coffee, very hot
- ½ pint (1 cup) heavy cream, whipped

Cut marshmallows into small pieces with wet scissors. Put in top of double boiler with coffee. When marshmallows are melted, put aside to cool. Add whipped cream and chill. Serves 8.

Shirtdress accessorized

Accessories for Spring

Spring accessories will have the look of discretion, sophistication and refinement.

So say the designers and that means no jarring notes — nothing stands out or makes a vulgar noise — all accessories should harmonize with a gentle blending.

It's going to be a "dotty" season — polka dots in every size imaginable will dance wildly on dresses, gowns, raincoats, umbrellas, scarves — those spots before your eyes will be very real.

As usual, it's not what's new in accessories but how you wear them. Take scarves, for example. The scarf-wrapped head is the sporty tie-on with the new big skirts and scanty tops.

No item is a versatile as the scarf — they twist to improvise bras, halters and bare-tops. Shirred tubes, deep-plunge halters and tiny tops will be offered on scarf counters. You will also find scarf-printed clutch bags with colorful provincial prints, African and Chinese motifs as well as young-looking gingham, stripes and polka dots. This spring the square shape (large or small) wins out over the oblong.

Wearing a tailored shirt? Fold your head-sized square (or rectangle) and tuck it under the collar in back — then tie in front into a bow, normal fashion.

A long, slinky scarf looks best worn twisted around a long, lean neck and casually draped down the back in a careless flyaway manner. Those with short or fat necks are better off with other scarf looks.

When two scarves are offered — one selling for $10 and the other for $5, which one to buy? Price isn't always the answer. Often times the less expensive one will give longer wear.

The more expensive scarf may boast a lovely pattern, often times the work of a well-known designer along with impressive signature, however, the cost of applying the colors and the prestige of hiring the designer's efforts often times means that the manufacturer may resort to using 100 per cent acetate (an inexpensive fiber) with the results that the scarf will not stand up to constant wear.

Mass-producing the less expensive scarf, on the other hand, means that the more expensive 100 per cent polyester will be used. Which brings us to the question, why not create your own scarf collection merely by keeping an eye on the remnant counter of your fabric center. There are no laws, no patterns, no guidelines — you know your basic shapes — square, oblong, rectangular. Examine your own supply of scarves and you'll have and excellent idea of the type of fabric to look for . . . soft enough to drape and tie, which means your scarf can be anything in the line of chiffon, lightweight silk-like knits, cotton-blends to name a few. Remember though, it's important that you cut the scarf straight with the grain — always straight with the grain of the fabric. The only exception would be the cutting of a rectangular scarf which should be cut on the bias. Finish off your edges with tiny stitches on a hand-rolled hem.

Use a scarf to adorn one of the many plain, undecorated hats of the season, or even wear the scarf as a head-covering beneath a hat. You can also tie an oblong about the head, twist and braid both ends into one single flat "flower" over one ear.

Another scarf trick is using it as a strapless top look. This is, of course for the less amply endowed. Here's what you do, and it does take practice if you don't want to look fly-away or run the hazard of ending up topless by accident.

Using two oblong scarves, wrap one around the bust and tie securely in back. Take another oblong (perhaps in another color) and loop it through the front and tie at the neck . . . or, using a very long oblong scarf (anywhere from 1½ yards to 2) bring from around back, cross over bust and tie around the neck.

Should these styles seem immodest, you could wear the scarf bra under a shirt-jac or jacket that is left open.

Handbags this spring will be soft and squashy or the comfortable clutch style. Shaped small and flat, or wide. It does take some getting used to — tucked neatly high under the arm or held nonchantly in the hand — most comfortable is the clutch which has a detachable strap which enables you to sling it over your shoulder.

Across the Kitchen Counter

See that executive walking purposefully down the street, his attache case held firmly in his hand? Chances are that case holds no top secret documents, only his lunch carefully camouflaged to avoid the brown-bag look.

We recently polled a group of people as they munched their way through lunch eating sandwiches obviously prepared at home. (They were big.) "Why do you bring your lunch?" The reasons were varied. One stated simply that if she bought her lunch every day, plus the increased price of gas to get her to work, she would not have any money left at the end of the week for the many necessities of life. Another said that his wife didn't mind packing a lunch and, he added hastily, by not wasting precious minutes ordering food, he has time to play a quick game of chess with a fellow brown-bagger. Still another said that after 12 years of buying lunches, the taste of home-made is what he prefers.

Lunch toting has never been the single prerogative of children, and nowadays adults are discovering that a well thought out lunch can be as nourishing as a hot meal. Wide mouth thermos jugs allow for hot soups and stews and small cans of fruits and puddings can add pleasure to the lunch hour.

Lunches do need variety — variety that is carefully planned to meet the nutritional needs of all ages. The Basic Four food groups are: meat, fish, eggs or cheese from the meat group; lettuce and fruit, enriched bread from the bread and cereal group and milk (whole or skimmed).

Indeed, sandwich making is more than just putting two slices of bread together. It is an act of love — a wife can bring a note of confidence to a child when she tucks in a note: "Good luck on your test!" . . . there's the same thoughtfulness when she encloses a clever quote or cartoon along with a favorite cookie or piece of cake for her husband.

Crisp celery, carrots, cucumber, turnip, radish, fennel and zucchini sticks are best when put in ice water overnight. Crunchy leaves of lettuce, cabbage, spinach add texture to soft fillings but should be packed separately and added before the first bite. Grated carrots and celery provide texture and flavor to meat fillings. Grated cucumber and celery complement tuna and seafood mixtures.

meets April 1

Mrs. Nancy Howard DeBruyn, a member of the Boston Opera Group, will perform in "The King and I" for The Waban Women's Club on Monday, April 1.

The meeting will start with dessert and coffee at 12:30 p.m. followed by the business session at 1 p.m. The performance will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Jessie Sargent's book, "The Governor's Wife," was presented to the Newton Public Library at an Autograph Party. Gussie Swift (left) and Chief Librarian Virginia Tashjian (right) accepted the presentation from Mrs. Sargent (center). Ms. Swift is the president of the Newton Women's Republican Club.

Addition-

with a declining enrollment, as shown by a demographic study made by the School Department.

(The vote on the bond issue following the public meeting was 4-2 in favor, with one abstention. Those in favor were Ald. Joseph McDonnell, Matthew Jefferson, Alan Barkin, and Susan Schur; opposed were Chairman Edward Richmond and David Jackson; Ernest Dietz abstained.)

However, most felt that the school needed some upgrading and perhaps a smaller addition than the one planned.

It was estimated that relatively little money would be saved by creating a 7,000-sq. ft. addition instead of the 14,000-sq. ft. addition, and the loss of a new two-station gymnasium to save about $170,000 total, after reimbursement and including bond interest, did not justify the long delay in work that would be caused by having the work redesigned.

If the Board approves the project April 1, Larson said last week, the contractor could start work this June and the work would be completed in July, 1975.

Redesign would require the project's going through the lengthy process of the Design Review Committee and other procedures, and start of construction might not occur for two years.

At the public hearing, Gerard Byrne, speaking for the School Committee, reaffirmed the unanimity of the Committee that work should go forward as finally approved.

Joseph Utka, Title I coordinator (Title I is a federally funded grant program for supplementing school program in low-income areas), said, "Being poor in Newton is worse (than elsewhere). If any school in Newton should have an adequate lunchroom, it should be Linoln-Eliot."

Theresa O'Halloran, Lincoln-Eliot PTA president, said that the schoolchildren "suffer from a low self-image."

"We have the lowest reading scores, the lowest math scores. We know our needs," Mrs. O'Halloran said. "Our staff is excellent—they knock themselves out, but still we can't get over the hump." She added that "delinquency" has gone down with increased use of the gym.

The increased emphasis on getting girls' athletics on a par with boys' was highlighted by Helene Breivogel, the School Department's director of girls' physical education.

Ms. Breivogel described the physical education program at Lincoln-Eliot as utilizing the "minium amount of time for an elementary school," rwo half-hour periods per week while the citywide average is 2.5 periods per week, with three schools having three periods.

A larger gym would accommodate more classes every day, Ms. Breivogel said.

Barbara Mooney spoke impassionedly about the need for the addition to the school, saying, "For the last eight years many words have been said, many reports written, many committees have met . . . I was on Design Review, as you were (to Richmond). Things were going along pretty well. Then since January we find ourselves trying to establish the need again."

"Get it out of your committee. Put it before the full Board of Aldermen. The needs for our children have not changed despite the drop in enrollment!" Mrs. Mooney said.

The message got home.

Church women visit glass gallery

A visit to the Charles J. Connick Associates, makers of stained glass windows, located in Boston, will replace the usual monthly meeting of the Women of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Newton Lower Falls, on Tuesday, April 2.

Members will gather at the Church at 10 a.m. and will proceed by bus. Reservations may be made by either calling the President Mrs. William G. Bailey of Wellesley Hills (235-7683) or the church office.

Budget-

The Board of Aldermen may, and always does, find more money to cut from the budget after the Finance Committee makes its budget recommendations, although there is comparatively little left to cut.

The board may not add to any item in the budget but may ask the mayor to do so.

The full board has been asked to meet as a committee of the whole tonight (Thursday) to reconsider some changes in the budget, including funding for Turnabout (a counseling service), the Newton Guidance Clinic, and the psychiatric clinic of Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

Small, in his budget message, calls on Newton legislators to examine more closely the effect of state bills passed without concern for how the cities and towns will fund the actions required in the bills.

Small also admonishes legislators not to allow the state to "owe" cities and towns sums of money.

The Finance Committee chairman points out that "skyrocketing increases" in fuel oil and gasoline have offset the good fortune of a mild winter and are felt in the 1974-75 budget.

Of the budget procedure Small says, "It is to be hoped that we will find means of composing a budget based more upon fact and figures spent in previous years than the manner in which we are forced to examine figures now."

In the current budget message, Small's third as Finance Chairman, he thanks members of the Finance Committee for the many days and nights spent "examining and re-examining what we can do to alleviate the tax burdens of our community" and members of the School, Public Works, and Public Buildings Committees for their efforts.

Comptroller Arthur Marr is singled out for special thanks. "This is Mr. Marr's last budget performance with us before his retirement, and I am sure I express the sentiments not only of my colleagues who sit on this Board of Aldermen today, but also those who have worked with Arthur over many years," Samll said.

"We will miss Arthur very much, and we sincerely appreciate his help, thoughtfulness and responsibility to our city."

Mrs. E. Tucker captures award

Mrs. Eliot F. Tucker of the Newton Highlands Garden Club won an honorable mention in the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts exhibit at the N. E. Spring Garden and Flower Show held in Boston's Commonwealth Armory, March 16-24.

Entitled "Boston Tableau," the Federation exhibit interprets famous Boston landmarks through the use of flower arrangements.

Sixty top-notch arrangers from Federation clubs throughout New England compete in capturing the essence of these famous Hub scenes: Boston Harbor, Haymarket Square, Beacon Hill, Government Center, and Chinatown.

The Flower Show, sponsored annually by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, is the oldest continuing exhibition of its type in the country.

Janice Kaplan wins oratory award

Janice Kaplan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Kaplan of 75 Oak Hill St., Newton Centre, has won Yale University's 55th annual Buck-Jackson Oratory Award.

Ms. Kaplan, a sophomore at Yale, won with a speech on "Legalized Gambling." A five-judge faculty panel handed her the first place honor and a $100 prize after she outspoke three male competitors in the finals.

The prestigious prize speaking contest accepted entries from the entire sophomore class at Yale. The four finalists were chosen after preliminary rounds of speeches. All of the orations were on iriginal subjects.

Ms. Kaplan's 10 minute speech urged the legalization of state-run lotteries and betting as a means of easing tax burdens. She noted in financial success of state lotteries, including the one in Massachusetts.

At one point she said: "Only the people at Harvard were against the Massachusetts lottery. But that was just because they figured only the Harvard-Yale game should be called THE Game."

The Buck-Jackson Award has been given to the outstanding speaker in the sophomore class at Yale every year since 1920.

AUCTION OF PERSIAN RUGS
and other Oriental Rugs
Note About This Auction: Iran, the largest producer of handwoven carpets and rugs, has been a backward, slow-moving country for centuries. Suddenly with the advent of industry, oil and free education, it zoomed to the 20th Century. As a result, children, 75% of rug weavers, are lured away from the ancient art of weaving. And in our opinion, in the next five years this great art will be so scarce and will be hard to find. European collectors and dealers are rushing to America and collect these carpets. We urge the residents of Cambridge to attend this fabulous auction.
Included are: LUXURY KERMAN, KASHAN, PALACE QUMES, BOKHARAS, HUNTING CARPETS, VASE & GARDEN OF FLOWER CARPETS, PRAYER RUGS, BELOUCHESTAN, SAROUKS, SILK RUGS, and many others.

International Institute anniversary ball Mar. 30

Sounds of Scottish bagpipers, Greek singers and Polish dancers will abound at a golden anniversary ball on March 30 benefiting the International Institute of Boston. The ball lasts from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. at Boston's Statler Hilton Hotel. Dancing in the grand Ballroom begins at 7:30 p.m. to the music of Rudy Newman's Orchestra.

A highlight of this year's event is a short program of international music at 9:15 p.m. opened by the Scottish Clan MacPherson Bagpipe Band. Other performers include the Krakowiak Polish Dancers, Ethnic Dance Arts Compnay of Cape Cod, the German Cultural Club Singing Group of Lowell, the Portuguese Folkloric Dance Group and a talented troupe of Greek dancers.

Immediately following the stage program all guests in national dress will be invited to march in a Parade of Nations and compete for costume prizes including dinners for two at area restaurants and gifts donated by local merchants. Guests not in ethnic costume are asked to wear formal dress.

More entertainment including Turkish belly dancers and Spanish guitarists takes place throughout the evening in the International Cabaret, an added feature this year. It will be in the Georgian Room where Laduvane and the Cambridge Folk Orchestra provide music for dancing when a stage show isn't underway.

Those who enjoy a truly international meal can choose from moderately priced dishes at 18 nationaltiy food tables in the Ball's Around the World Buffet open from 7:00 p.m. to midnight. The nationalities include Albanian, Austrian, Chines, Colombian, Czechoslovak, Egyptian, Finnish, French, German, Greek Hungarian, Indian, Indonesian, Norwegian, Portuguese, Swedish, Syrian-Lebanese, and Turkish. International pastires and wines, champagne, coffee and punch will also be available.

Mrs. Robert D. Wrenn of Dedham is Ball Chairman assisted by Mrs. Albert Costa Jr. of Waban and Mrs. Francis R. Dobroski of Milton. Mrs. Kenneth D. Robertson of Chestnut Hill is Chairman for Consuls of which twenty-two will be in attendance.

General admission and box seat tickets can be purchased in advance from the International Institute at 287 Commonwealth avenue or weekdays at Lord and Taylor, Boston. They will also be sold at the hotel the night of the Ball. For information call 536-1061.

Handicapped chairman visits Carroll Center

Harold Russell, chairman of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, recently visited the Carroll Rehabilitation Center for the Visually Impaired in Newton.

Russell became known nationally for his role in "The Best Years of Our Lives," for which he won two Academy Awards—one as best supporting actor of 1946 and the other for "bringing aid and comfort to disabled veterans through the medium of motion picutres," an unprecedented award in cinema history.

After making the movie, Russell continued to support disabled people through activity in the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, the American Veterans of World War II, of which he was national commander in the late '40's, and the World Veterans Federation, which he helped found.

He has been a member of the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped since 1948. Appointed vice chairman in 1962, he traveled throughout the country on speaking engagements for the committee and, in 1964, became chairman. His positive approach to the vocational problems of the more than 15 million handicapped Americans is reflected in his appeal to employers to look for ability instead of disability and to recognize the advantages to the employer of hiring the handicapped.

Married to his childhood sweetheart during the filming of "The Best Years of Our Lives," Russell now lives in Natick.

The Carroll Center, formerly the Catholic Guild for All the Blind, is a non-sectarian agency which specializes in the rehabilitation of blinded adults. It was renamed in honor of the late Rev. Thomas J. Carroll, executive director of the agency for 25 years, and an internationally known pioneer in the field of rehabilitation for blind people.

Health Career Day April 10

One hundred and fifty high school students from Newton, Wellesley and Weston High Schools are expected to attend Health Career Day at Newton-Wellesley Hospital.

The event is scheduled for Wednesday, April 10 from 1-4 p.m. at the hospital's Usen Auditorium and North Conference Room.

Many medical careers, ranging from lab technology to hospital administration, are relatively unknown to students. Thirteen separate hospital departments will be represented at the April 10 event.

Initial student response has been high, hospital authorities report. Local students who want further information may contact the following guidance counselors at the following schools: Ms. Phyllis Monderer, Newton South High School; Ms. Myra Trachtenberg, Newton North High School; Ms. Mary-Jo Carroll, Weston High School; and Mr. Archer Harman, Wellesley High School.

Career Day's theme of little-known multiple opportunities in the hospital field was announced in the newest issue of the "Newton-Wellesley Quarterly," published by the hospital. A special career guide section titled "You Don't Have To Be A Doctor" detailed educational requirements, job opportunities, and special New England programs in 13 hospital disciplines.

The 13 departments will be represented in booths. Tours will be arranged so that students can see actual working environments including pathology and x-ray laboratories.

Newton-Wellesley Hospital is a 350-bed general community hospital affiliated with Tufts University School of Medicine. It has an accredited two-year School of Nursing and accredited programs in laboratory technology and radiology. Two other nursing schools are affiliated with it and altogether it has a total annual student population in excess of 300.

The hospital employs 1,200 persons in its total operation and benefits from the volunteer services of local people through its Hospital Aid Association and on its 100-member board of trustees. Mrs. Winslow H. Adams of Newton is president of the hospital's board of trustees. William S. Brines of Wellesley is administrative vice president of the hospital.

Acupuncture discussion at Science Museum

Some of the mysteries surrounding the subject of acupuncture will be dispelled at a Friday night program at Boston's Museum of Science March 29.

Dr. James Frederickson of Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and Dr. Han Twu Chiang of Massachusetts General Hospital will discuss the ancient medical technique as it was developed in China and views of western medicine toward it today in joint lectures at 7:30 p.m. A question and answer period will follow.

The lecture is free to museum visitors with tickets given on a first come, first served basis. Half price admission rates to the museum apply on Friday nights after 5 p.m. Fees are $1 for adults, and 50 cents for children, senior citizens, and college students with I.D.

The doctors will also talk informally at the museum's exhibit on acupuncture. The exhibit includes needles, an acupuncture doll, charts of body zones based on Chinese philosophy, and an explanation of how acupuncture is currently being used outside of China.

The exhibit was prepared by Fran Youssef and Bill Thayer of the museum staff with the cooperation of Dr. Chiang.

Mailgram messages by Postal Service and Western Union

The U.S. Postal Service and Western Union announced today that MAILGRAM messages will be transmitted coast-to-coast via the WESTAR domestic communications satellite to be launched next month from the Kennedy Space Center.

And the Postal Service announced that it will offer the public a package of three items to commemorate the start of the new service—a cacheted launch cover cancelled at the Kennedy Space Center, a MAILGRAM message transmitted via WESTAR and a cacheted MAILGRAM envelope in which the official launch cover and the message will be delivered. The message will be written by the Postal Service to commemorate the event.

MAILGRAM was developed jointly by the Postal Service and Western Union and the two organizations expect a significant increase in MAILGRAM volume will be made possible by the satellite's capability to handle more transmissions. Approximately 300,000 MAILGRAMS presently are being sent weekly.

MAILGRAMS presently are transmitted over Western Union's high-speed communications network to teleprinter terminals located in 119 key postal installations Deliveries are then made the next business day by regular postal service.

The National Aeronautics and Space Agency will launch WESTAR for Western Union on April 11. The official launch covered will be cancelled at Kennedy Space Center and will be shipped to California so as to be ready when WESTAR, after operational checkouts, is put into service at a date to be announced.

The earth stations serving Westar for the first day transmission are located at Glenwood, New Jersey and Steele Valley, California. The special transmission being offered to collectors will be from east to west and it will be in California that the Florida-cancelled launch coveres and transmitted messages will be placed in special cacheted MAILGRAM envelopes for delivery.

Participation will require the remittance of $3.00 per order and orders should be addressed to "MAILGRAM Covers, U.S. Post Office, Orlando, FL 32802." Orders must be accompanied by a check or money order—cash will not be accepted—and shoudl include the name and address of the person to whom the special MAILGRAM package is to be sent. The name and address of the recipient should be clearly printed or typed to insure legibility for the satellite transmission.

The special MAILGRAM package can be ordered only by writing to the above address. Orders will not be accepted at post offices, and the MAILGRAM packages will not be available through the Philatelic Sales Dvision.

Tickets are on sale at the Paulist Center Shop, 5 Park Street, Boston, Ma. (across from Boston Common).

Proceeds from the concert will be used for a scholarship fund and for the benefit of the Paulist Center Community.

Taxpayers ask IRS

Editor's note - The following questions and answers on federal income taxes have been prepared by the Internal revenue Service.

No 9

Q. What is the highest amount of income that can be reported on a Form 1040A?

A. Although last year only a maximum of $20,000 could be reported on Form 1040A, for 1973 there is no limit as to the amount of income from wages, salaries, tips, interest and dividend that may be reported on Form 1040 A. A standard deduction must be claimed if the 1040A is used.

Q. I own an apartment building. I am thinking about buying an apartment building. How would I go about figuring out my profit on it for tax purposes?

'A. Owners of rental property can claim any expenses paid in the course of operating the rental unit. These expenses would include real estate taxes, mortgage interest, utilities, repairs or any other expenses paid in operating the rental unit. In addition, you would depreciate the cost of the building, plus any improvements made to the property over its useful life.

Q. Someone told me that I can't take a loss on a house that I'm renting to my mother. Why not?

A. If you rent to a friend or relative at a rent which is less than fair rental value, you may not take a loss on that rental property but you may reduce your income from it by the amounts you spend on 1) mortgage interest, real estate taxes, 2) operating expenses and 3) depreciation. These must be applied in the order listed.

Q. Where should I file my federal income tax return?

A. Federal tax returns for residents of Massachusetts should be sent to: Internal Revenue Service Center, 310 Lowell Street, Andover, Mass. 01812.

Q. I understand that I can call IRS for help with my taxes, but I'm a working person and can't make personal calls during the day. How can I get help?

A. If you live in Springfield you may call 785-1201 on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Monday evenings until 8 p.m. In Worcester calling 757-2712 during those same hours will connect you with Taxpayers Assistance there. Residents of Boston call 223-3431 and the rest of the state (1-800-392-6288) can get telephone information until 8 p.m. on Mondays, until 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays, and from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturdays.

Q. In 1972 I took the standard deducation since the only large deductible expense I had was for interest on my car loan. Now I own a house and am itemizing my deductions. Since I didn't take a deducation for the interest last year, may I include it on my 1973 return?

A. No, you were given credit for such expenses withint the standard deduction. You may only deduct expenses which you paid during 1973.

Q. I'm a government employee. May I deduct the amounts I'm paying into my pension fund?

A. No, this expense is not deductible on federal tax returns.

Q. Is my car insurance deductible?

A. If your car is only used for personal purposes, no portion of insurance on it is deductible. A portion of this and other automobile expenses may be deducted if you use your car for business purposes.

Q. Last year I took a deduction for a casualty loss that I didn't think my insurance company would cover. This year they paid me an amount equal to the amount of the loss. Is this income to me?

A. Yes, you must report as income any reimbursement for expenses for which you took a deducation in prior years. Show it on line 37 of Form 1040. Q. I've spent a lot of money on lottery tickets but have never won. How do I show my loss?

A. You have no deductible loss. This is a personal expense. Wagering losses are deductible only up to the amount of wagering winnings.

Q. I was given some stock a few years ago and would like to sell it now. How do I figure out whether I have a gain or loss to report?

A. If the fair market value of the stock at the time of the gift was less than the donor's adjusted basis, your basis of the stock for gain is the same as the donor's adjusted basis. Your basis for loss is the fair market value at the time of the gift. This means that if the fair market value when it was given to you was $25 per share and the donor's basis was $30 per share, you'd have a $5 gain if you sold it for $35 and a $5 loss if you sold it for $20. If the fair market value of the property was greater than the donor's adjusted basis just before the gift was made, your basis for either gain or loss is the donor's adjusted basis increased by the gift tax paid on the gift to you, not to exceed the fair market value of the property at the time of the gift.

Income Tax Questions and Answers

Q. The stock I recently sold for $40 a share was inherited at .. time when it sold for $30 on the stock market. Jy father bought it 15 years ago for $25 a share. How much of a gain per share do I have?.

A. Your basis is the fair market value on the date of your father's death (unless an alternatue valuation date was elected for estate tax purposes). In your case it appears you have a gain of $10 per share.

Q. I'm single and run my own household, paying all the expenses for myself. May I use Head of Household rates for figuring my tax?

A. No, you must file using rates or tables for single taxpayers. Only persons providing over half the cost of a household for another person may consider using Head of Household rates. Normally the person for whom the household is provided must be a dependent relative who lives with you. The only exceptions to this are 1) your parents who are your dependents but do not live with you although they do live in a household for which you provided half the support, and 2) your child who is not your dependent but who lives with you in your home for which your provide over half the support. Only unmarried persons may use this filing status, except in the case of married persons who have lived apart from their spouses all year who provide households for their children who live with them.

Q. Is telephone tax deductible?

A. Telephone tax, like all other federal taxes is not deductible.

Q. I won $2,500 in the lottery after having spent $23 on tickets. Can I just report $2,477, the difference between what I won and what I spent to win it?

A. It's not that easy, I'm afraid. You must report $2,500 as lottery winnings on line 37 of Form 1040 and if you choose to itemize deductions you may deduct the $23 as a miscellaneous itemized deduction. If you take the standard deduction you must still report the whole $2,500.

Q. My lottery winnings were $100. I've got old tickets for 1973 that cost me $156. Do I put $156 down under miscellaneous itemized deductions?

A. No, you may only deduct expenses to the extent of your winnings.

Q. Because of an argument, my boss hasn't paid me yet for one week's work. Can I take a deduction for it?

A. Since this is simply income which you have not yet received, it is not a deductible expense. You cannot take a deduction against non-existant income. Make sure that week's wages were not included in the W-2 you file with your return.

Q. I don't have as much in itemized deductions as the standard deduction would allow me but I have to use the long form to report my income from the sale of a house. What should I do to figure out my tax?

A. If you do not want to itemize your deductions you will use the standard deduction, whether or not you use the long or short form. If your income is under $10,000 you should use the tax tables. If it is $10,000 or more you must compute your tax by deducting the amount of your standard deduction and exemptions and using Schedule X, Y, or Z.

Q. My income is $2,800 from wages, $670 in interest, $1.700 in Social Security. What is my income for purposes of using the sales tax tables? I certainly spend more on sales tax than an average with an income equal to the one I have to pay taxes on.

A. ALthough only your wages and interest are taxable, you should include all your non-taxable income in the total income you use on the optional state sales tax tables. You would use $5,170.

Q. When I have the time I make pottery in my basement. Sometimes I manage to sell a few pieces, but my expenses are much higher than my income. How does this affect my federal tax return? May I take a loss?

A. No loss is allowed to you. You should file a Schedule C with your Form 1040 to show how much you received from these sales and the expenses you incurred to reduce your income to zero.

Bill filed by Humphrey and Moakley to fight unemployment

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Congressman Joe Moakley (D-Mass.) have introduced comprehensive legislation to fight energy related unemployment.

The two Democratic legislators represent areas particularly hard hit by the energy crunch.

Senator Humphrey estimates that national unemployment could reach 5.8 per cent to 6.5 per cent during 1974. He contrasts this with the pre-crisis figure of 4.5 per cent during October, 1973 to demonstrate the need for Federal action.

Moakley stated that Boston unemployment may already have exceeded 8 per cent.

"There are 2,000 households in the city whose breadwinners don't have jobs today — jobs they were working hard at until the energy crisis robbed them of a livelihood," he said.

Moakley added that new Labor Department statistics underline the additional impact of the energy crisis on employment. "Energy layoffs account for 16 per cent of our nation's unemployment," he said. "Of 313,000 unemployment compensation claims filed during the week ended March 2nd, 49,600 workers attributed their job loss to the energy crisis. This means that more than 425,000 people have lost their jobs since the onset of the crisis."

Moakley added that "these figures indicate an urgent need for the kind of legislation Senator Humphrey and I are proposing.

"And," he noted, "this has been recognized by Congress. More than 30 of my colleagues in the House have agreed to add their names to this bill as co-sponsors."

The Humphrey-Moakley bill would provide:

—Financial assistance to public service employers to provide jobs for the unemployed; 80 per cent of the federal funds would be divided among states according to the number of jobless.

Temple Beth Avodah to celebrate Passover

Passover, considered one of the oldest Jewish holidays, may have originated as far back as three thousand years ago! It is a festival of freedom, commemorating the emancipation from slavery and the exodus from Egypt.

It recounts the story of Moses, how he led people out of bondage. It tells of the long march from Egypt to the promised land and of the establishment of a Hebrew nation.

Passover is celebrated as a family feast the youngest in the family asks four questions, which are answered by reading portions from the Bible relating to how the Jews were enslaved, and how they became free, Matzo is eaten throughout the week long celebration.

The family feast is called a "seder", and the Temple Beth Avodah family will celebrate the first night of Passover together. Rabbi Robert Miller and his family will conduct the seder, and read from the Haggadah

There will be Pesach food, pageant, with everyone taking part, reminding the Jew of his eventful history, and rekindling hope for the future. This seder, combining ceremony, songs, stories, food and drink, will be shared by the congregation on Saturday evening, April 6.

The following morning, a zpassover cantata written by Rabbi Miller and sung by the Junior Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Herbert Bamel and Mrs. Jerold Wise, will be heard at 9:05 a.m. on WBZ-FM. And, at 10:30 a.m. on April 7, services will be held in the Sanctuary, conducted by Rabbi Robert Miller in comemoration of the holiday of Passover.

Rabbi inspires Schechter kids

By ELAINE ADLER

"What does being Jewish mean?"

"Am I committed to a Jewish education, or am I going to the Solomon Schechter Day School because my parents are sending me?"

"How am I to feel when other kids (in public school) make fun of me for attending a Hebrew Day School?"

"Am I really different from other people?"

These are just a few of the thoughts raised during recent, exciting discussions held by the sixth and seventh grades at the Solomon Schechter Day School, after meeting Rabbi Jonathan Porath, coordinator of all the Solomon Schechter Schools for the United Synagogue.

It all started a few months ago, when many of the Solomon Schechter Day School faculty members went to New York for a teacher's conference, and there had an opportunity to meet and hear Rabbi Porath. They were so impressed with him that they invited Rabbi Porath to come to Newton to speak to the PTA of the school.

On Thursday, March 14, a number of parents and teachers enjoyed a stimulating and informative discussion, led by Rabbi Porath, on the subject of "The Need to Build a Jewish Life Curriculum," held at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Kolodny.

Encouraged by their teacher, Mrs. Bea Maslin, seventh grade Schechter students also attended, and in Rabbi Porath, found a man steeped in the Jewish heritage, with an ability to relate to young people and excite in them the thirst for knowledge about themselves as Jews.

Their quest continued the following day in school, when Mrs. Maslin found she was unable to teach the planned curriculum, as the students were still so wrapped up in the discussion started the night before. They were eager to share their questions and thoughts with the sixth grade.

Rabbi Porath, who was spending the day at the school, happened to walk into the classroom and was immediately dragged into the students' circle and involved in a session that continued on and off all day. When the Hebrew half of the day started, the lively group instinctively switched to speaking in Hebrew!

It was an educator's dream. The students were so turned on, so inspired to learn, to share thoughts and feelings, to find ways of dealing with those things that being part of a Solomon Schechter Day School mean to each individual. Truly an exciting "happening."

New options available in North gym program

By TOM GRAVES

Before Newton North High School was built, shivering students in gray uniforms could be seen running across Elm Street twice an hour during the winter months.

They were commuting between the boys' locker room and the now-demolished drill shed on the old Newton High School campus.

The drill shed, which was more like a barn than a modern gymnasium, was used for basketball games and running.

In those impoverished days, there was no swimming pool or physical fitness room at the high school. Limited facilities dictated that there be few options available to students in gym classes.

According to Jim Ronayne, the physical education program at the high school has changed radically.

"The physical education program is all elective now," said Ronayne. He explained that during a recent eight-week quarter, nine physical education activities were offered to Newton North students.

It used to be that one half the gym at the old high school was for boys and the other half was for girls. A diversion for the boys would be for them to peek through a crack in the partition at the girls doing dance exercises.

Most of the gym programs at the high school are now co-educational. Co-ed activities include gymnastics, swimming, body building or fitness, volleyball, badminton, dance and fencing.

"Everything is co-ed except boys' and girls' team sports," Ronanyne noted. "If a boy is competitive he usually goes for team sports."

Ronayne commented that the facilities at the new high school help to make the elective system possible.

There is a physical fitness room with all sorts of impressive equipment. Students move from station to station working with weights, pedalling bicycles, etc.

Boys and girls share the physical fitness room. Ronayne noted that boys emphasize working on the top half of their bodies, while girls concentrate on the lower half.

Ronayne added that the materials for teaching golf at the high school are better than an average golf professional would probably have.

Physical education is divided into eight-week quarters. A student receives two credits for passing gym.

There are no longer any semi-annual physical fitness tests for evaluating students. Passing gym is largely dependent on a student's attendance.

Ronayne said that subjective evaluations are made of students' "spirit of competition." He stated that "we're getting away from measuring everybody by a number."

Superior effort in gym is noted on white cards which are placed in a student's file.

Ronayne said that the stimulus for the present program came from Reggie Smith, who was head of the physical education department at Newton North at the time of his death last month.

Student absences have always plagued gym classes. Ronayne said that this problem still remains. He noted that students are especially inclined to skip first and last period gym classes.

All the options offered are apparently not enough for everyone. Ronayne remembered one student who was involved in yoga and table tennis, and then stopped coming to gym. "His scope was gone," Ronayne remarked.

Ronayne said that physical education should be enjoyable, but that "it should also have a learning feature." He mentioned tennis and golf as two activities which can teach skills that can be used by students in later years.

"We have to guard against being too recreationally minded," Ronayne said. "We're trying to get a balance between carry-over (tennis, golf) and term (basketaball, soccer, touch football activities."

Ronayne commented that students are sometimes resentful of instruction. He gave an example of a gym class containing two friends. If it is determined that one kid is more skilled in the activity than the other, the less-skilled student may be resentful if he is separated from his friend for instruction.

In addition to regularly scheduled gym classes, there are four open gym periods every week at Newton North. Connected with open campus, it is open to "anyone with a pair of sneakers. Students primarily play volleyball and basketball. Next year, there will be six open periods.

Students who enjoy athletics can also participate in intramurals and after-school sports.

There were intramural basketball and hockey teams during the winter months. Approximately 90 students were involved in these sports.

There were also numerous varsity and junior varsity teams.

Girls were involved in cheerleading, gymnastics, basketball and orchesis (a dance group). Boys competed in basketball, hockey, wrestling, gymnastics, track and swimming. Riflery was co-educational.

Recently, 258 letters were awarded to students for involvement in winter athletics. This was the most letters ever awarded.

Boston College cagers gain third place in NIT

By RICHARD SILVER

When the National Invitation Tournament was over Sunday The Boston College Eagles had proved certain things to the Boston sportscasters, the B.C. fans and especially themselves.

To the sportscasters they proved that they deserved to be in the tournament. They proved to the fans who all year long did not come to Roberts Center that there was another winter sport besides hockey. And those fans did indeed come down to Madison Square Garden to cheer them on.

They proved to themselves that they were the team they knew they could be and when they walk around the Heights this spring they can be proud.

When they left for the preliminaries many people thought it would be a quick trip. As underdogs they gained a thrilling one point victory over the Cincinnati Bearcats. Before taking on the University of Connecticut they went back to Boston for four days of rest.

Upon entering Madison Square Garden for the second time they started play like they were still in Chestnut Hill resting. It was not until shortly after the eight minute mark that B.C. chalked up its first field goal, though a series of foul shots kept them close. But inconsistent play caused them to be down by as much as 10 and they left at halftime down seven.

With around 15 minutes left in the game they were down 17, 57-40.

UConn slowed down the game's pace. The Huskies were in foul trouble. This was the point in the game senior Mark Raterrink referred to when he said he decided not to look at the clock any more and just keep pluging to make the game respectable.

Respectable was an understatement as B.C. staged a tremendous comeback.

With three minutes left, the game was tied at 70. With 26 seconds left, UConn led 73-72. Jere Nolan scored with a layup and UConn hit on a quick jumper. Only 11 seconds were left.

B.C. fans will long remember the end of this game. The play Nolan called for fell apart. He passed the ball to Raterrink, got it back, and passed to Paul Berwanger. The kid from Cornwall, N.Y. spun around and threw in the basket a crazy six to eight foot jump hook. Time ran out before UConn could put the ball into play.

The buzzer beater avenged a loss to UConn which occurred only a couple of weeks earlier. It may also have mde up for the buzzer beaters defeated B.C. down in Providence and against B.U. The Eagles savored the win for a day and a half and then it was on to the semis and the Utes of Utah.

The first half was close. Bob Carrington hit nine of 12 field goals and had 25 of B.C.'s first half points. The Eagles were losing at halftime 48-45.

But in the second half the N.I.T. dream ended. Rarerink said later that they knew if they got into a shooting match with Utah they would get beat. They knew also if they got in a running game with Utah they would get killed. They got into a running game. They got killed.

They found themselves down 19 midway through the period. This was quickly cut to 13 and once again there was hope. They could not repeat the UConn performance as Utah regrouped, got the six points back, and more. When it was over B.C. had lost 117-93.

Sunday at 11 a.m. was the consolation game. For Boston it was not much more than an exercise in pride. The team went out on the court, did a job, got dressed and left. It beat Jacksonville 87-77. Third place was the best they could get after the Utah game, and they went after it.

Maybe Jere Nolan, who only had a fair series, was a bright spot on Sunday. He set an N.I.T. record with 14 assists in one game. It probably did not cheer him up very much. He wanted to go all the way, and like the rest of the team felt he could.

No, Boston College did not win the N.I.T., they came in third, But to win on Sunday took pride, and they have a lot to be proud about. They brought basketball back to the Heights and got people excited about it. And by the looks of the people coming back, Weldon, Carrington, Morrison, etc. basketball will be at B.C. for a long time.

South pitchers lack varsity experience

By HOWIE APPELSTEIN

Newton South baseball Coach Neil McPhee is faced with a major question mark this season. He has an unproven pitching staff.

"Unortunately we don't have any real outstanding pitchers like we had on last year's team in Jim Kavanaugh and Mark Fogel," McPhee commented. "We also don't have any pitchers that have had any varsity experience, although I do feel we have six or seven pitchers that are varsity material.

"I've been very pleased with the good control many of them have shown," McPhee added.

The 10 pitchers who have made the team so far are Ken Bianco, Dave Kase, Chandler Bosworth, Tom Irvine, Carson Milgroom, Ara Shismanian, Don Ferreri, Mike Mosca and Steve LeBlanc.

Three infield starters have returned from last year's team. At first base, McPhee sees a strong two-way battle between senior Bill Tarter and junior John Bamel.

Second baseman Tony Lombardo and shortstop Rob Shahon are this year's captains, and both players are expected to start for the second year in a row. McPhee calls Shahon the best hitter on the team, and he is also an excellent shortstop.

At third base, McPhee gives the nod to junior Greg Moan, but says that sophomore Bruce Jennings is not far behind. McPhee plans to use junior Pete Castellanos as a back-up infielder.

At catcher, McPhee gives the edge to Hal Bennett, a senior with good experience behind the plate. Four underclassmen have shown promise as catchers. Juniors Larry Brownstein and Jerry Antonellis, and sophomores Glenn Mackenzie and Phil Small are competing to be back-up catcher.

McPhee's starting outfield is set. He plans to start senior Steve Rittenberg in left field, senior Steve Tresca in center field, and junior Mike Malkasian in right field. Senior Dave Mark will be used as the fourth outfielder.

While talking about the possibility of South repeating as Dual County League champion McPhee said, "In this league you don't win on hitting, you win on pitching and defense. We have the good defense but its too early to tell how the pitching staff will make out."

April 28 jog-a-thon planned

Men and women from the Boston area will be converting jogging into financial support for the United Cerebral Palsy Association of Metropolitan Boston on Sunday, April 28.

People will join Chairman John Kelley in a jog-a-thon along Commonwealth avenue. It will begin and end at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Newton.

Joggers may run any distance up to five miles at their own speed. The event will begin 15 minutes after the start of a 10-mile A.A.U. sanctioned road race which is open to anyone over 16 years of age. It is estimated that the jog-a-thon will begin at 11 a.m.

It will not be a competitive race. Support for United Cerebral palsy will be derived from entry fees and sponsors who will pledge money for each mile a jogger runs. Sponsors can include friends, neighbors, businesses, corporations, etc.

The public is invited to join Kelley, Australian Ralph Doubell (a 1968 Olympics gold medalist), Paul Benzaquin and others. Prizes will be awarded.

Sponsor sheets and entry forms for both the 10 mile A.A.U. race and the jog-a-thon are available and can be obtained by phoning 965-9850, or by writing to Johnny Kelley, Jog-A-Thon Chairman, U.C.P. of Metropolitan Boston, P.O. Box 62, West Newton, Mass., 02165.

Four to become full professors

Among the 19 members of the faculty of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to be promoted to the rank of full professor this year are four Newton educators.

They are Martin L. Weitzman, Willard R. Johnson, James L. Kinsey, and Alvin J. Silk.

Weitzman, in the department of economics, received a B.A. degree in 1963 from Swarthmore College and his master's degree in 1964 from Stanford University, and his doctorate in 1967 at MIT. He was appointed an associate professor in 1972 and currently lives in Newton.

Johnson, on the political science faculty, was appointed assistant professor in 1964 after receiving his bachelor's degree in 1957 from the University of California, his master's in 1961 from Johns Hopkins University and his doctorate from Harvard in 1965. He lives in Newton Centre.

Kinsey is in the chemistry department. He joined the MIT faculty as an assistant professor in 1962. His degrees are from Rice University and he lives in Newton Corner.

Silk, on the faculty of the Sloan School of Management, lives in Newton Centre. He holds a bachelor of science degree from the University of Western Ontario (1959), a master's degree from Northwestern University (1960) and his Ph.D. from Northwestern (1968). He came to MIT in 1968 as an associate professor.

The promotions become effective on July 1.

Chamber suggests procedure to aid Board

The Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce has suggested a procedure to assist both the Board of Aldermen in Newton and the Board of Selectmen in Needham in determining the suitability of granting permission for providing oil and gasoline storage facilities to business firms which are petitioning for the necessary local governmental approval.

The Chamber is suggesting to the heads of both legislative bodies that they request a "statement of need." The purpose of the statement would be to identify the economic importance of the storage facilities to the firm, to acknowledge that safety precautions are being taken and to spell out the locational factors, both on-site and in the neighborhood.

The Chamber is suggesting that those firms already located in business zones be given first consideration. The requests have become necessary due to operating problems caused by the energy crisis and fuel supply uncertainties.

The Chamber is asking the Newton Board of Aldermen to consider establishing a program in conjunction with the city's gasoline stations to have one or two stations open on Sundays to meet the needs of the several thousand weekend visitors in Newton staying at local hotels and visiting friends and relatives at seven local colleges.

While fuel and gasoline supplies have improved, the Chamber noted, there are still numerous situations which cause problems for out-of-town visitors on weekends.

Plans of Chamber announced

Program objectives in 1974 for the Public Affairs Council of the Newton-Needham Chamber of Commerce have been announced by Robert L. Tennant, Chamber president.

Program objectives for the Economic Development, Manpower and Education Planning, and Organizational Development Councils have already been made public. Together, the four council statements of goals and objectives constitute the 1974 program of work, published and mailed to members of the Chamber during this past week in a brochure entitled, "Emphasis '74."

The Public Affairs Council is principally concerned with government and community issues. The Community Planning and Development Committee will recommend to the Chamber's board of directors, policy positions with respect to land use, zoning, housing and public construction, including open land and golf courses. It will assist the Businessmen's Advisory Committee of the Needham Town Planning Board in upgrading the appearance and development of Needham Square.

Through the Government & Business Forum Task Force, at least four open membership forums will be held to bring together government and business leaders during the year, while the local government issues task force will consider and recommend action on matters relating to local government operations and finances.

Finally, as the fourth group represented within the council the public safety committee will establish business-related programs in conjunction with local fire and police departments and carry forward the "Deter and Deny" program established in 1973 for reducing commercial burglaries.

Led by Lewis M. Sherer, Jr., of Marriott Motor Hotel, Chamber vice president and chairman of the public affairs council, the council's steering committee includes: Richard J. Brownell, Norfolk County Trust Co.; A. Jefferson Cornell, Cornell Insurance Agency; Paul K. Daley, Paul Daley Real Estate; Robert E. Kettlety, Needham National Bank; Bernard F. Bills aid juveniles

A. Joseph DeNucci of Newton testified last week before the Joint Committee on Social Welfare in favor of two pieces of legislation he filed that would aid juvenile offenders.

The two bills are co-sponsored by Newton representatives Paul H. Guzzi (D) and Representative David J. Mofenson (D).

Speaking on the first bill, H.1104, which would limit the number of children who may be detained by the Department of Youth Services in one detention home or facility, DeNucci said, "I feel the intent and purpose of this bill is quite obvious in that it would create a better opportunity to devote special care and attention to youngsters in difficulty."

DeNucci, former world-ranked professional boxer, further stated "The smaller the institution the greater chance a youngster has of getting the attention and therapy he or she needs or deserves, the added care he or she in all probability would not receive in a more populated, more impersonalized institution."

DeNucci, a legislative aide and general court officer in the Massachusetts House of Representatives, also urged the committee to act favorably on the second bill, H.4361, which would establish a second youth forestry camp under the Department of Youth Services.

He said, "I feel this proposal will offer a worthwhile and progressive alternative to the usual pracice of institutionalization of juvenile offenders."

DeNucci then informed the Committee members, "There is currently a youth forestry camp located in Nickerson State Park in East Brewster, Mass., for 14 to 17-year-old adjudicated and court-referred boys. The program has met with great success, according to follow-up studies regarding the rate of recividism.

DeNucci stated, "Although there is no geographical site mentioned in this bill, I feel that our second forestry camp should, if possible, be located in the western part of the state for a geographical balance."

In conclusion DeNucci said, "I hope that this committee, in its wisdom, acts favorably on these proposals and gives these youngsters the opportunity of assuming their roles in society as useful citizens."

Enrichment program

International Day planned

International Day Planned

The Enrichment Program at Newton South will offer a varied group of programs during the first week of April.

On Monday, April 1st at 12:45 p.m. in the auditorium, Richard Charness will give a karate demonstration and discuss various aspects of karate as a form of self-defense. He will also illustrate the benefits of Karate as a method of strengthening both mind and body while at the same time increasing one's coordination and self confidence.

Wednesday, April 3 is designated as International Day, a day which will give South students an opportunity to meet with and listen to foreign students representing countries from around the world who are now living and studying in Massachusetts.

There will be programs in the Lecture Hall. Some students will attend classes appropriate to their native countries. A luncheon will be held and an exchange of ideas and experiences will take place. Fred Olson, American Field Serivce advisor and Mrs. Phyllis Monderer, co-ordinator of the Enrichment Program, have worked together to plan this day.

Also on International Day, a native of Russia and of a different generation, Boris Kleid, will relate this own stories and experiences in a lecture entitled, "Life in Pre-Revolutionary Russia". Kleid, a volunteer for the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program, emigrated to the United States in 1914 from Russia where he was a mechanical engineer. Kleid will speak in the language lab at 10 a.m. This will be of particular interest to those students who are currently studying Russian.

At 8:45 a.m. on April 3, in Room 5103, Ms. Rosanne Howard, dietician at the Children's Hospital will discuss "A Career in Dietetics". This may interest students contemplating this type of career since Ms. Howard will talk about the credentials necessary for this career, the type of work involved, as well as explaing the personal fulfillment a person may derive from it. She will answer questions following the lecture.

A feature speaker of the week will be Tom "Satch" Sanders, coach of the Harvard basketball team and former Celtics player, who will be at Newton South at 10:55 a.m. on Friday, April 5 in the Lecture Hall. Sanders, a former college basketball star at N.Y.U. where he received a B.S. in marketing, played with the Celtics for 13 years. He played a major role in helping the Celtics to win 8 N.B.A. titles. Sanders played in 1,000 regular games and scoring a total of 9908 points. He is also the head of T. E. Sanders Associates and is constantly working with youth groups for which he has received many humanitarian awards.

The public is welcome to attend free of charge.

Recreation notes

Levine elected chairman of Recreation Commission

The Newton Recreation Commission, at its regular March meeting, elected Dr. Burton D. Levine as chairman.

At the same meeting, Mr. Francis Rice was elected vice-chairman.

According to Recreation Supervisor, William Barry, director, the Newton Recreation Department's Softball League will hold an organizational meeting at the Recreation Department office, 70 Crescent St., Auburndale, on Tuesday, April 2, at 7:30 p.m.

Current plans are for three leagues, A, B, and C, with a total of 24 teams. The season opens on Monday, May 6, and games will be played Monday through Firday.

There will be two games each night at the Albemarle Playground, the first beginning at 6:15 p.m., and the second at 8:15 p.m., under the lights. There will also be games beginning at 6:15 p.m. at Weeks Junior High, Warren Junior High, Cabot Park and Cold Spring Playground. The leagues play regular softball rules with nine men to a team and seven inning games.

Barry has noted that softball become estremely popular and there is tremendous interest in the sport. These factors complicate the picture because the number of teams is limited by facilities, budgetary consideration and the number of competent officials available.

Barry emphasizes that he is working to accommodate as many new players as possible. There are at present, seven or eight teams on a waiting list. The league is exploring all possibilities with the aim of getting as many players as possible active. Officials are cognizant of the problem and doing everything possible to reach an equitable solution for all concerned.

The Recreation Department's basketball program is concluding with the finals of the A and B Divisions of the American League scheduled for next week.

Standings in the A Division show the Troubadores out in front with 10 wins and a single loss. The Waban Wonders, George's Cafe and Boys' Club are tied for second with 8 wons and 3 losses each. The Stearns Club is 7-3.

Final positions in the league standings will be determined either by a draw, or special playoff games.

In the semi-finals, the first and fourth, and the second and third teams play a two out n three series.

The Big Blue Club, Upper Falls, and Ziphaels, each with nine wins and two defeats are tied for first place in the B Division. The Hoops and the Zepp's Cafe team are also tied with 8-3 records.

Positions in the final standings will be decided in the same manner as in A division and the playoffs will be conducted under the same rules.

With less than ten days before the scheduled opening of the Mini-Bike complex on the former City infirmary land in Winchester St., Newton Highlands, Barry reminds owners and operators that they may register at the track beginning on Saturday, April 6.

The three tracks maintained by the Recreation Department are open to Newton residnnts Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., offering a safe and legal area in which to ride mini-bikes.

The indoor recreation programs are coming to a close, having been in operation since last November and continuing to the end of this month.

Spring and summer activities are being planned for the coming months. These include, in addition to the softball program scheduled for May, the Newton Twi Baseball League for junior and senior high boys beginning play in June, following the close of schools, and extensive playground activities conducted during the summer.

Premiere

Mia Farrow charms Sam Waterston in the film production of F. Scott Fitzgerald's, "The Great Gatsby." A premiere performance of "The Great Gatsby" will be shown in honor of State Senator Jack Backman April 11 at 8:15 p.m. at the Cleveland Circle Theatre. There will be a champagne reception at 7 p.m. for all of those attending the performance.

Northword

Litany of parking woes goes on

By PAULA BARRY

Another episode in Newton High's litany of parking problems is in the making. As the novelty of the new school diminishes, the faculty, administration, neighbors and students are faced with choosing a plan for the exterior facilities which would include the parking lot.

Parking in the past, has caused such a problem that the residents of the streets bordering the Newton North Complex formed an association to find a viable solution to it. The resulting Newton North High School Neighborhood Association maintains that "choking the streets with high school parking threatens the safety of children, restricts the access of fire and other emergency vehicles, makes difficult the provision of city services . . . and undermines the character of one of Newton's fine residential neighborhoods."

The school's parking needs must therefore be satisfied by an off-street parking lot providing for about 300 cars. The association's study of three proposed parking situations only succeeded in provoking "an every man for himself attitude" among the separate neighborhood factions, when they should strive as a group to find an acceptable solution to their problems and the practical ones of walking distance to the school, aesthetics and traffic control.

The three proposals provide that Elm Road be eliminated from Walnut Street to the point where it would form a curve with Kimball Terrace. Cars would be able to drive out Kimball to Otis Street or to Walnut Street via the former Russell Court.

Parking lots A and B pose almost identical problems. The former would extend from beside the student mall along Elm Road to the other side of Kimball Terrace where it would extend to Walnut Street. Entrances would be on Elm Road and on Russell Court. The latter plan would extend to the right of the abbreviated Elm Road and along Kimball Terrace to Russell but would stop before it got to Walnut Street. Each of these situaations are at a great distance from the athletic complex at the Hull Street side of the school so that they offer no solution to the traffic tie ups unloading athletic buses cause at the Hull Street door.

Another problem involves drivers who will refuse to walk the distance from the parking spaces closest to Walnut Street in Parking Lot A and who may clog side streets in their attempts to park closer to the building.

A traffic menace would develop as cars enter and exit from Russell Court into the Cabot-Otis-Walnut Street intersection. The Kimball Terrace to Otis Street exit involves a narrow residential street which would not lend itself to the strain a swollen traffic flow would present.

The problem of a swollen traffic flow is least likely in Plan C. which provides for a parking lot to extend from the Student Mall along the athletic field to a gate on Walnut Street. A median strip decked with shrubbery and lined with benches would enhance the aesthetic value of the campus

Buses carrying athletic teams and residents using the recreation facilities could park near the school and tickets could be taken more easily at football games because of the presence of a fence with gates.

The sole opposition to this plan comes from the residents near the Walnut Street exit who claim that their children will be unable to cross the street and that the blind curve at Hull and Walnut which has been the scene of many accidents would cause a tremendous problem.

Walnut Street however, is a main thoroughfare where traffic problems pose less of a threat than they do at Kimball Terrace. Plan C is the most viable solution because of its universal possibilities. The proposed situations can be adjusted to fit the needs of all concerned. However, the neighbors must make the final decision because they alone cannot drive away from the problem.

By DOC ABRAHAM

NEWSPAPER LOGS: You can help in the energy crisis by burning newspaper logs in your fireplace. Our readers have sent us a good many tips on making newspaper logs and we'll pass them along. "Better than tightly rolled newspapers for burning as 'logs,' are paper balls. Soak the newspaper in water, roll into a tight ball; keep adding wet paper until the ball is very large. Then let dry thoroughly in the sun. It will burn as long as any "log" says a reader.

Another writes: "No need to use a broomstick or curtain rod for rolling newspaper logs. Instead of unfolding the sheets altogether, take two full pages, leaving them half folded. This makes a log about 15 inches long. Spray the sheet, using a spray detergent bottle, with the following solution: ¼ water, ¾ kerosene, plus 1 tablespoon of liquid detergent. Roll the paper tightly as possible. At the end of the roll, start another two sheets. Spray these two with the same solution and continue to roll. Repeat this process until you have a 4 or 5" diameter roll. Tie ends with thin wire for completed roll.

These logs do not have to be dried out. They can be used right away. However, a fire must be started with wood hot enough to start the paper logs. Once the logs start burning they form a very hot bed which aids the burning of additional wooden logs. Two or three paper logs will burn more than 8 hours."

David E. Lofgreen an environmentalist says that ordinary newspapers converted into logs burn as cleanly and pound for pound give the same heat as wood. With just a half hour of labor any one can provide himself with three or four hours of comfortable fireplace fire. Here's his method: Divide the day's paper into sections and fold them into ½ page size (about 12x15 inches and ½" thick or less. Soak them in a tub of water and detergent overnight. While they are still wet, roll the sections individually on a one inch rod and squeeze out the excess water while smoothing the surface edges. Slide the rolls off the rod and stand them on end to dry, tipping the rolls slightly to allow air to circulate the logs.

The "logs" should be about 12 inches long and 2 to 4 inches in diameter. They are ready to use when completely dry.

A wheelbarrow or laundry tub is good for soaking the papers. Detergent in the water soaked the paper faster and cuts down the process to a few hours. The purpose of the rod is to make a hole in the center which in turn helps the fires burn clean. Each log lasts about a half-hour. The average weekday newspaper will make two or three logs, and the Sunday edition will make up to seven logs. Not only are newspaper logs about the same as wood as an energy source, but what other fuel is delivered to your doorstep each day?

In case you're wondering more about detergent. A tablespoon of it in water not only helps soaking, but will minimize the fly ash when the log is burned.

COLORING YOUR LOGS: Newspaper logs can be treated so they will burn with different colors, as you do pine cones. Copper sulfate gives off green flames; Calcium chloride, orange; copper chloride, blue; lithium cholride, carmine and potassium chloride, purple. These solutions should be made outdoors and only in wooden pails or earthen crocks. The ratio is 1 pound of the chemical to a gallon of water. If you want many colors, have many pails, or start fresh with each chemical. Always wear rubber gloves.

NEVER USE Chlorates, nitrates, or potassium permanganate. Keep to what has been listed. Buy the chemicals from the drug store. Allow the logs to soak for a day or two in the solution then dry thoroughly. Pine cones also may be tossed into these mixes. The end result is spectacular.

Spring car inspection starts Apr. I

Registrar of Motor Vehicles David J. Lucey called attention today to the forthcoming compulsory motor vehicle inspection period which begins April 1 and suggested that during the balance of this month drivers would be wise to pre-inspect their motor vehicles and have necessary repairs made now.

While it is too soon to determine whether the shorter hours and gas lines will affect the availability of mechanics, we do know, by experience, that the official inspection stations are usually deluged with last-minute inspections and that when parts are required, it becomes difficult to complete the work prior to the end of the inspection period.

Now is a good time to check your vehicle, and if you find that parts are required for repair work, give the garage mechanic time to seek the necessary components to do the work so that you won't be caught short at the end of the inspection period. There are 2, 900,000 vehicles which must be inspected from April 1 to May 15.

Items to be checked include: Brakes, stop lights, lights, horn, exhaust system, steering gear, windshield, windshield cleaners, number plates, rear windows, tires, fenders, bumpers, external sheet metal, reflectors, splash guards and chock blocks and pollution control systems or devices, and vehicle identification number.

Joe Benson knows the way . . .

How to become dog's best friend

By SYLVIA SHUMAN
(Dedham Community House)

What does a man do when he has recently retired from 15 years of service as officer-in charge of the K-9 Unit of the Boston Police Department? Why, he continues to train dogs, of course. That is what Joseph L. Benson of South Walpole has been doing, and very successfully, so, every Thursday evening for three hours in the gym of the Dedham Community House.

And he does it with a flair — with an earthy humor, with anecdotes, but with a conviction that all dogs can be trained and all owners can learn to understand their dogs a little better.

Ever since he was a small boy in Wesley, Maine, Joe Benson has lived with and loved dogs. Instinctively, he knows that a dog needs love, affection and praise. A dog also needs to be corrected when he has done something worong. When he receives this kind of attention, obedience will come naturally, Mr. Benson said.

During this fourth session of an eight week course, the dogs in the class I observed were learning to respond to the "Come" command. When Mrs. Paula Panciocco of Hyde Park called her 11-month-old dachshund, Bonne, she wouldn't come, but another dog, a curly-haired black cocker spaniel, named Tarye ran to her. Bonne seemed to have her little Teutonic mind set on doing other things, like not moving. But Mrs. Panciocco was encouraged to work with her for about 15 minutes twice a day and was reassured that Bonne would rise to the occasion and learn to obey this command. Mrs. Panciocco's primary concern in coming to dog obedience class with her little dachshund was precisely so that she would learn to obey and not get hurt.

Brian Buckley of Walpole has been bringing his English bulldog, Cuddles, to class and is impressed with his (Cuddles', that is) progress. Mr. Buckley works with his dog, which is very important, taking him out in the early evening for about 15 or 20 minutes after he comes home from work and again late at night. His early outing is a rather unique experience, he told me. He and Cuddles are joined by the family cat and they make an engaging trio as they walk around the neighborhood.

Helen Loring comes with a "handful" of dog . . . a large mixed-breed male of unknown breed named Cocoa who is two years old and was badly in need of training. He is improving, she said, but I was glad I didn't meet up with Cocoa before his training started!

Not only will dog obedience classes teach a dog to heel, to reverse turn, to come on command, to learn to retrieve, etc., but, more importantly, Mr. Benson encourages people to spend time with their dogs, to give them exercise, to transform them into real pets. A well-trained dog is an asset, Mr. Benson said, an untrained one a liability. Dogs should not be allowed to roam around the streets because they only get into trouble, or worse, get hit by cars. Mr. Benson was adamant on this point.

Joe Benson worked for the Boston Police Deaprtment for five years before the advent of dogs. He had always been an advocate of trained police dogs and when such a unit was formed he was "first in line" to take charge of the unit. This was in 1963. From then on, Joe was in charge of the Boston K-9 Tactical Unit, and has also trained 26 other units, as far away as Fort Wayne, Indiana. He has seen his trainees walk away with top honors in state and national competitions.

Joe has received many commendations during his career, but is especially proud of a plaque awarded in 1972 by the Commonwealth police departments with canine units "in recognition of the outstanding service to the police K-9 units in Massachusetts," and also the Walter Scott Medal of Honor from the Boston Police Department, the highest award given.

This spring, Mr. Benson is engaging upon a new venture. He is starting a canine training academy, an intensive 90-hour program, instructing dog trainers in both obedience and attack.

It is unusual when a man's lifelong interest and hobby also becomes his vocation. Mr. Benson is indeed a fortunate man to have been able to devote his working years to something he evidently loves and does so well.

It's a wonderful evening's entertainment to come down to the Dedham Community House and observe the camaraderie of the class, and the fascinating interchange between dog and owner, and dog and Mr. Benson. There is no admission charge and it's better than a movie! However, if you have a dog who doesn't do any of the things a well trained dog should do, or only some of them, bring him along too!

A new session of Dog Obedience classes begins again in April. Please feel free to call the Community House, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 329-5740 for further information and-or registration.

Gift to Simmons by Jewel Foundation

BOSTON — The Jewel Foundation has become the first major company in the nation to give financial support to the new Simmons College Graduate Program in Management to stimulate expansion of opportunities for women in management.

The renowned women's college, situated in The Fenway section of Boston, will begin in the fall of 1974 a special master's degree program planned to prepare women of ability for managerial roles in business and industry.

Dr. William J. Holmes, president of Simmons described the Jewel Foundation's financial contribution as "strong evidence of approval of this pioneering project."

In presenting the Foundation's initial gift to help launch the Simmons Graduate Program in Management, President John M. Mugar of Star Market, a subsidiary of Jewel Corporation, declared that "Jewell and Star Market strongly believe that talented women are entitled to more opportunities for quality education in management. We shall continue to help Simmons College, a pioneer in women's education at all levels since its founding, to provide women with the high quality training and education that will enable them to compete on an equal footing in male-dominated corporate organizations."

According to Associate Professors Margaret Hennig and Anne Jardim, women contemplating management careers require a curriculum which will prepare them to handle situations which are unique to women in management positions. The Simmons educators feel that men and women may enter a corporation as specialists but it's the males, they say, who ultimately become the policy and decision-makers, because of the long-standing condition of male dominance in corporate life.

"In the meantime," they note, "women remain specialists, even though some may rise to supervisory levels, while the men, even those of average talent, encourage each other to learn the techniques that lead to top management positions."

Dr. Hennig adds that the forthcoming new Simmons Graduate Program in Management, "will provide women with the knowledge and skill to help them overcome the traditional organizational bias that is built into the system of business life." Simmons, she revealed, will also conduct special seminars for male executives to expand their knowledge of the role of women in business.

Edward Buron, Star Market's Human Resources vice president, expressed enthusiasm for the Simmons program and stated that "a program of such importance merits thoughtful and generous support from the entire business and corporate structure of this country and I am delighted that Jewel, or parent company, is at the forefront."

Accepts gift

Simmons College President Dr. William J. Holmes, right, accepts Jewel Foundation's gift to launch new graduate program for women, from John M. Mugar, president Star Markets, a Jewel Co. subsidiary.

Vietnam Veterans' Day March 29th

Commissioner Charles N. Collatos today urged all citizens, community groups, and business firms to join with veterans organizations in observing "Vietnam Veterans' Day" on March 29th.

Governor Francis W. Sargent has signed a Proclamation setting aside the 29th of March to honor and pay tribute to the Massachusetts men and women who served the United States in uniform during the period of hostilities in Southeast Asia.

Commissioner Collatos said, "I am pleased that we shall soon have the opportunity to officially recognize the sacrifices and contributions of our Vietnam veterans who have served their country quietly and ourageously but have not received much in the way of expressions of appreciation." Commissioner Collatos observed that "Vietnam veterans now constitute the second largest segment of our nation's population of wartime veterans; they have returned home seeking to re-adjust to civilian life without fanfare or attention. I am confident that Massachusetts will lead the way in giving these veterans a proper welcome."

Fifth annual cleanup of Charles River set

The Charles River Watershed Association announces that it's time to think about the annual Charles River Cleanup, this year scheduled for Saturday, May 11.

This will be the fifth successive year that citizens in the 35 watershed communities have turned out to rid the Charles and its tributaries of their burden of litter and debris and the second year that CRWA will coordinate the project, which was initiated in 1970 by the Metropolitan District Commission.

Local coordinators in each watershed community have already been advised to reserve Saturday, May 11, and to begin to marshal the local individuals and organizations that have contributed so much to the success of past cleanups. CRWA's Executive Director Mrs. Rita Barron says that this year every effort will be made to involve municipal representatives including public works and park and recreation departments.

All who want to participate in this year's effort in any way are invited to call the Charles River Watershed Association at 527-2799 or write CRWA at 2391 Commonwealth Ave. 02166.

SSI Alert helping elderly blind, and disabled people

Project SSI Alert in Newton has filled out over 50 forms for elderly, blind, and disabled people eligible for supplemental security income benefits paid through the social security administration. Many of the people that were found in the outreach program were living in conditions of poverty with incomes as little as $100 dollars per month.

Although SSI payments have been available to people who can meet the eligibility requirements since Jan. 1, 1974, many potentially eligible people in Newton did not even know of this possible source of added income.

People who qualify for SSI payments are also eligible for medicaid. SSI will be bringing new hope to people living below the poverty level. One of the potential eligibles was overjoyed that she now could hve desperately needed dental work done with medicaid help.

As lead agency for the SSI Alert in Newton, the Newton Community Service Center is coordinating the project and providing information and referral services to potentially eligible people with special needs.

Mrs. Majorie Glassman of the Newton Community Service Center staff has been coordinating the program. Mrs. Glassman is also chairman of the Cambridge District SSI Consortium.

Eleven Newton organizations have formed a consortium and are engaged in an outreach program to attempt to make sure that every eligible person in Newton learns about supplemental security income and has a chance to apply.

The Newton SSI Consortium includes Newton Community Service Center, Newton Rred Cross, Newton City Hall, Family Counseling West, Newton Visiting Nurse Association, Eliot Church, Myrtle Baptist Church, Carroll Rehabilitation Centr for the Visually Impaired, Garden City Activity Ceneer, Vista, and the Newton Police Department.

Members of the Newton Wellesley Weston Retired Senior Volunteer Program from the Auburndale RSVP community helpers group and the Newton Community Center RSVP community helpers group prepared a 7114,711 piece mailing that was sent to every senior citizen in Newton aged 65 and over. While there has been a huge response to this mailing, members of the Newton SSI Consortium have expressed concerned that there are potentially eligible people with financial needs and limited resources.

Basic eligibility requirements for Supplemental Security Income include: an applicant must be either disabled, blind, or at least 65 years old; an applicant must have limited income and limited resources; an applicant must have a financial need. Further details about eligibility may be gained from any member of the Newton SSI .Consortium.

Students learn about nutrition

Weeks Junior High School students added good nutrition to the joy of eating during National Nutrition Week, March 3-9, and discovered that a proper diet doesn't have to spoil the fun of eating.

Home economics teachers there decided that since students' enthusiasm to the week's discovery was so strong, nutrition education will be promoted throughout the school year.

The week's program, part of the American Dietetics Association's "Nutrition Saves" campaign was designed to emphasize that good nutrition at every meal and snack saves health.

A student breakfast it revealed, to Weeks home economics teachers' surprise, that most students do eat breakfast. Only 22 per cent of the students reported that they skip the meal.

For lunches, "nutrition point charts" rated the nutrient values of foods that students at Weeks generally consume. Their aim was to eat lunches of 100-125 nutrient points.

After school snacks representing the four basic food groups were prepared and sold by the students. Among the snacks were "natural sweet treats" made of peanut butter for protein, and three fruit flavors of "frogurt," a milk treat of frozen yogurt.

"Nutrition Saves" was advertised, radio-type spots were broadcasted over the public address system every morning. Films sponsored by the New England Dairy Council were shown to classes as part of the week's "Film Festival."

"Students wanted to know what was going on and the significance of the week. They were ambitious about getting a nation-wide program into gear at their own school," Janet Carlson, home economics teacher and program coordinator at Weeks said.

As a follow up to the week, home economics teachers at the Newton Junior High School plan to continue with more nutrition centered activities throughout the school year.

They are making plans for a school-wide breakfast, and cookbook to be compiled by students. They will offer more nutritious after-school snacks prepared by the students.

YMCA plans program for non-swimmers

The Newton YMCA has announced that its annual Learn-to-Swim Campaign will be held for four days during the April school vacation week this spring.

The campaign, along with the Operation Drownproof program each February, represents part of the "Y's" effort to combat some of the 7,000 drownings that occur every year. The campaign is for non-members and is free of cost.

Classes are limited to 20 persons and are open to males and females seven years old and over. Classes, which are divided into age groups, last 30 minutes once each day during the April 16-19 period. Only non-swimmers may register for the program.

Registration is being taken in person and by mail. For further information, people may call the Newton Y at 244-6050.

Next time you see someone polluting, point it out.

It's a burning dump. It's a smoking car. It's litter in our parks.
You know what pollution is.
But not everyone does.
So the next time you see pollution, don't close your eyes to it.
Write a letter. Make a call. Point it out to someone who can do something about it.
People start pollution. People can stop it.

Film programs for children planned

Films are free at the Boys' & Girls' Library and at children's rooms throughout the city.

Newton youngsters can enjoy such films as "Doughnuts," a Homer Price film; and "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau: the Coral Jungle" at the Boys' & Girls' Library on Tuesday, April 2 at 2:30 p.m.; at West Newton on Wednesday, April 3 at 3 p.m.; or at Upper Falls branch, Thursday, April 4 at 3 p.m.

Charlie Chaplin's film, "A Woman" and "The Universe," a film portraying University of Toronto Professor, Donald Macrae, exploring the solar system at the Dunlap Observatory, can be seen at Waban, Wednesday, April 10 at 3:30 p.m., or at the Boys' & Girls' Library Thursday, April 11 at 2:30 p.m. "The Universe" uses animation, live photography and special effects to show the moon, the rings of Saturn, the gaseous geysers of the sun and other galaxies.

"The Tramp," with Chaplin, and "Enduring Wilderness," which shows scenes of the Canadian wilderness and stresses the preservation of remaining wild areas and sanctuaries, are two films scheduled for viewing at Boys' & Girls' Library, Tuesday April 16 at 2:30 p.m.; at Highlands branch, Wednesday, April 17 at 3:30 p.m.; and at Nonantum branch, Thursday, April 18 at 3:30 p.m.

The Newton Free Library's Family Film Program, scheduled during school vacation week, features "Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau: Sharks," "Elsa and her Cubs" and "Elsa, the Lioness," two documentaries filmed in Kenya by Joy and George Adamson on Wednesday, April 17 at 7 p.m. at the Main Library.

Newton boys and girls can find more free films by traveling to Oak Hill Park, Wednesday, April 24 at 3 p.m. to view "Three Apprentices," a film comparing the lives of three youths in three different countries and "Police," a Chaplin film. These two films will also be screened at the Boys' & Girls' Library on Thursday, April 25 at 2:30 p.m.

The film programs last about one hour and are but one aspect of the Newton Free Library's programming for children, organized by Mrs. Beryl Beatley, supervisor of children's services, with the cooperation of Newton Free Library children's librarians.

Other programs for boys and girls include regularly scheduled pre-school story hours and varied creativity programs.

People may pick up a copy of the Newton Free Libra Bulletin at a library to confir film titles, and to check specific dates and times.

Art works offered by Newton Free Library

People can borrow original works of art, including oils, watercolors, graphics and silk screen prints, as well as photographs and art reproductions, from the second floor gallery at the Newton Free Library, 414 Centre Street, Newton Corner.

The Main Library maintains a free circulating art collection. Works of art, lent to the library by both regional professional and non-professional artists, may be borrowed for one month free of charge, and are then renewable for a second month.

Adult holders of a Newton Library card may select a painting or photograph and sign for it at the reference desk on the second floor of the Main Library. One picture may be borrowed at a time on one card.

In inclement weather borrowers should bring adequate covering to protect all art work.

The oils, collages, silk screens, acrylics, photographs and mixed media, most of which are valued under one hundred dollars, amy be purchased from the artist. The quality framed reproductions may be borrowed, though the prints are not for sale.

People interested in lending art to the library may contact MaryAnn Tricarico at 527-7700.

Youth orchestra to be on television March 31

On Sunday, March 31, 8:30 - 9:30 p.m. WNAC-TV will present a concert by Greater Boston Youth Symphony Orchestra (GBYSO). Composed entirely of area Junior High and Senior High School students, the orchestra has performed under the direction of Walter Eisenberg throughout New England, and on world tours that included Switzerland, Israel and Great Britain.

Highlights of the television concert will include a salute to George Gershwin, and selections will include his famous composition "An American in Paris." The orchestra will also play Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony and Vivaldi's Concerto for Four Vioins.

GBYSO musicians are selected from candidates who audition in the spring. Competition is keen and those selected must exhibit exceptional musical proficiency. Membership changes each year as former members graduate and younger musicians are added.

Walter Eisenberg came to Boston University in 1967 and has served as a guiding force of the orchestra ever since.

GBYSO is supported by Boston University and a board of directors of interested citizens.

Newton performers include Michael Barber, Adam Grossman, Frank Powdermaker, Judy Sidman and Sato Knudsen of Newton South High School; Jane McBride, Margy O'Donnell, Neal Kravitz and Patricia Feig of Newton North High School; Ellen Langer of Warren Junior High School; and Elizabeth Mann of Bigelow Junior High School.

The strong orchestra will perform works of Corelli and two contemporary composers, Gordon Jacob and Benjamin Britten.

The following is a list of orchestra personnel: Doug Baird, Michael Barbour, Jan Barnett, Priscilla Bennett, Any Cantos, Kimberly Diette, Alayne Green, Adam Grossman, Wendy Karg, Jeff Karol, Ellen Kazis, Sato Knudsen, Ned Kroeker. Jan Lerbinger, Judy Sidman, Marjorie Williams, and Barbara Wright.

Music School elects director

The board of trustees of the All Newton Music School has announced the appointment of Ayrton Pinto as the new director of the school.

Pinto, a member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra for 14 years and currently concertmaster of the Sao Paulo, Brazil, Symphony Orchestra, will assume the directorship on Aug. 15 of this year.

Pinto is a violinist and pianist with a bachelor's degree from the Brazilian Conservatory of Music, a master's degree from the New England Conservatory of Music, and an artist's diploma from the New England Conservatory in 1957. His awards include: The Koussevitsky Prize of Tanglewood (1956), the prize of the Jornal do Comercio of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, (1958). He was a Fulbright Scholar in 1953.

His professional experience includes: Member of the Boston Symphony Orchestra from 1959 to 1973, faculty member of the extension service of the New England Conservatory from 1955 to 1962, and teaching at Wellesley College from 1956 to 1973. In May of 1973, Pinto was called back to Brazil to help organize the Sao Paulo Symphony Orchestra (Eleazar de Carvalho, conductor) where as concertmaster, he has held classes on string and orchestra techniques.

Pinto succeeds Anne Gombosi who is retiring after 15 years of service.

During these years the enrollment of the school increased from 400 to nearly 1,200, the present building was acquired and renovated, and the school achieved a national reputation for excellence among community music schools.
